THE TRUTH HURTS

BY TALİ WOODWARD AND TIM REDMOND

AFTER 35 YEARS, THE SAD, SORRY TRUTH ABOUT SAN FRANCISCO'S DAILY NEWSPAPERS HAS FINALLY COME TO LIGHT.

As the business records, financial projections, and internal communications of the San Francisco Chronicle and the San Francisco Examiner were hauled out in federal court last week, the real message of the trial became increasingly clear: there are no limits on what these big publishing companies will do in their drive to make obscenely high profits.

The real story of the trial goes far beyond the coverage-for-favors deals exposed in court and straight to the fundamental premise on which the San Francisco newspaper industry has been run since 1965. The evidence shows that the publishing companies have lied to the public so many times, on so many fundamental issues, over so many years, that it's hard to believe either paper will ever salvage its journalistic credibility.

At the Webbys, acceptance speeches are limited to five words or less.

"I'd like to thank..." Oops. That's four words right there. Brevity is the soul of wit, and the 4th Annual Webby Awards will have plenty of both. See which of your favorite sites win, and hear the most creative (and shortest) acceptance speeches around.

The Webby Awards will be webcast live from San Francisco on May 11, 2000. For more information, go to www.webbyawards.com.

The boring, beautiful future..52

The debate about MP3 technology is heated, anarchistic, and hyperbolized beyond belief — and it's all wedded to the idea of music as a commodity. But the biggest payoffs of music on the Net will be artistic.

in this issue

On Monday, May 1, just moments before the "truth hurts" trial started in San Francisco for JOA and big conglomerate journalism, I was on the other side of the continent in Boston challenging a panel of newspaper editors on the billion-dollar question, Does the U.S. press have a credibility problem?

The panel was a key American offering for the 50th anniversary of the International Press Institute, a global network of editors and media executives founded to defend and advance press freedoms throughout the world. The panel represented the cream of daily editors dealing with this problem — the top editors of the American Society of Newspaper Editors who have been doing lots of heavy lifting for years on something called a journalism credibility project.

As always, the daily editors ducked the gut credibility issue, so I raised it with a question from the floor: how can the monopoly dailies ever improve their credibility when they are so close to the local political establishments, assassinate their competition, and impose one-daily cities on the public? No adequate answer came from the panel.

Meanwhile, back in San Francisco, Hearst was answering my question with spectacular clarity. Hearst had just replaced its Examiner editor-publisher for testifying truthfully, under oath, in a federal trial, that he had faithfully done what scores of Examiner executives had for decades done before him: used editorial space as a bribe or club to get a government favor. This time around, Hearst offered editorial space for Mayor Willie Brown's help in Hearst's march to monopoly. Shock and pandemonium erupted in the Chron-Ex staffs.

But as Tali Woodward, Tim Redmond, and Dick Meister report in this issue (and as we have reported regularly since our founding in 1966), Hearst has a long history of trading editorial coverage for political favors. Trust Hearst to dramatize the point in 96-point Tempo Bold: the coverage of the terrible impacts of JOA journalism — and the coverage of the terrible impacts of chain and conglomerate journalism — is the great annual, monthly, weekly, daily censored story of our time.

Stay alert. Stay tuned to the Bay Guardian and the alternative press that provides each week what competition there is in monopoly daily cities throughout the land.

letters to the editor

High-tech is safe

I write to express the Semiconductor Industry Association's concerns over your cover story this week on the high-tech industry ["High Tech's Toxic Toll," 4/26/00].

You indicated in your editorial on page 11 that you wanted state and federal regulatory bodies to "force" the industry to do more health studies, when your reporters noted on page 21 of the story that we had announced last November plans for a new study on potential worker health risks — especially cancer health risks.

While there is no scientific evidence that working in the semiconductor industry involves unusual health risks, we take all claims about potential health risks to workers very seriously. We are one of the most proactive industries in the nation in terms of implementing control measures, monitoring and measuring exposure levels, and acting to prevent, minimize, and eliminate workplace exposures to hazardous materials. During this past decade, our industry has dramatically reduced toxic emissions. Between 1987 and 1996, we reduced releases and transfers of such chemicals by 75 percent. In the total context, semiconductor emissions are less than one-half of 1 percent of total U.S. emissions.

There are numerous complex factors involved in cancers — including family health history and genetics, diet, behavior, and lifestyle choices — especially smoking and drinking alcohol. The latter are high health risk behaviors which experts believe play key roles in causing cancer — and which Bay Guardian ads unfortunately promote. But no scientific evidence suggests semiconductor workers have elevated risks of cancer; and nowhere in your story do you even refer to the widely recognized complexities over what causes cancers.

Compared to most manufacturing industries, the semiconductor industry has an enviable record in protecting our workers on the job. The most recent (1997) U.S. government data on workplace safety issues show injury and illness rates for semiconductor workers are 3.1 cases per 100 employees, or the sixth-best rate in the nation when compared to 205 manufacturing industries monitored by the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics. A review of health data back to 1972, nearly 30 years, shows the semiconductor industry ranking in the top 5 percent of all U.S. industries for having the fewest number of employee illnesses and injuries.

Nader and hemp

While I'm happy to read Nader [In the Public Interest, sfbg.com, 4/3/00] on the need to allow U.S. farmers to grow industrial hemp (one of the most versatile plants in the world) in order for us to be competitive in the world market, I pose a question that is rarely asked: if the Constitution specifies those jurisdictions which the federal government has a right to regulate — all the rest residing with the states — how can the feds tell a state what it can and cannot grow?

Other than that, to those who question why Nader isn't running harder for the job of president, I refer to Plato's Socrates, who strongly recommended that we elect a leader who does not zealously seek the office.

For the record

Our story "The Examiner's dirty secrets" (5/3/00), suggesting that the Independent overlooked the news of San Francisco Examiner publisher Tim White's meeting with Mayor Willie Brown should have noted that the Independent's deadline is early Monday and that the information did not come out at trial until Monday afternoon.

Superlist no. 761 omitted the following Cajun/Creole restaurant: La Bayou (3278 Adeline, Berk. 510-594-9302).

In Letters to the Editor two weeks ago, the Web site for Progressive Agenda should have been listed as www.progressiveagenda.homestead.com.

The group's next meeting is Monday, May 15, 6:30 p.m., City College Student Union Building, 50 Phelan, S.F.

The Bay Guardian welcomes letters commenting on our coverage or other topics of local interest. Letters should be brief (we reserve the right to edit them for length), typed, and signed (unsigned letters will not be published). Please include a daytime telephone number for verification. Send to: Letters, Bay Guardian, 520 Hampshire, S.F., CA 94110, or e-mail to letters@sfbg.com. See more letters at www.sfbg.com/TalkBack/.

Corrections and clarifications: The Bay Guardian tries to report news fairly and accurately. You are invited to complain to us when you think we have fallen short of that objective. Complaints should be directed to Tricia Taborn, the assistant to the publisher. We'd prefer them in writing, but Tricia can also be reached by phone at (415) 255-3100. If we have published a misstatement, we will endeavor to correct it quickly and in an appropriate place in the newspaper. BIPOLAR DISORDER

PEACE OF MIND

People with bipolar disorder want it.

Their families would do anything to provide them with it.

And their doctors work with them to achieve it.

Through medical research, physicians are working to find new treatments that will help those suffering from bipolar disorder pursue peace of mind.

A new medical research study will look at an investigational drug to determine if it is safe and effective in treating adults suffering from bipolar disorder.

Study participants may receive at no charge the following study-related benefits:

- Impatient hospitalization
- The option of receiving up to 8-10 months of continual medical care
- Professional mental health assessment
- Physical examination
- Laboratory services

The sleaze tradition

So, did San Francisco Examiner publisher Tim White offer editorial favors to Willie Brown in exchange for the mayor's backing the Hearst Corporation's purchase of the San Francisco Chronicle? Or didn't he? Whatever you think, I'm sure you won't be as seemingly naive and unaware of local newspaper history as the Examiner and Chronicle staffers who've been arguing that it couldn't have happened — or that if it did, it was an aberration.

As Tali Woodward and Tim Redmond note elsewhere in this issue (see page 22), such conduct is hardly uncommon. Their example of Hearst's trading its endorsement of Richard Nixon for president in 1972 for his signing the law that legalized the Examiner and Chronicle's joint operating agreement and others is only one of many.

The papers also had used endorsements earlier to win support from local politicians for their joint operating agreement. That included even liberal Democrats such as Rep. Phil Burton, whom they previously attacked as unfit for office. The papers got the politicians to intervene on their behalf with the Justice Department, which was threatening to overturn the agreement as monopolistic.

In previous years, the Examiner, the Chronicle, and the state's other major papers had used endorsements to become the most important players in California politics. A few papers supported Democrats, but the vast majority backed Republicans.

The papers actually were part of the Republican Party hierarchy. I found that out firsthand as a young reporter for the Associated Press in Sacramento. I was genuinely shocked to discover that the political editors of the Examiner, the Chronicle, the Oakland Tribune, and the Los Angeles Times met regularly with GOP leaders to discuss strategy and possible legislation and how it should be treated on the news and editorial pages.

Locally, the Examiner had great influence in city hall. For years, its circulation was much larger than any of San Francisco's other papers, and, of course, it was backed by the powerful Hearst Corporation. Thus whatever Hearst and the Examiner wanted from the mayor and the Board of Supervisors, they usually got. Those doing the paper's bidding were certain to be treated well in the Examiner's pages, others not so well.

Among other matters, former Chronicle columnist Charles McCabe noted, "Nobody in San Francisco would think of appointing a chief of police without getting the prior blessing of the Hearst machine."

The tables were turned during the McCarthy hysteria of the 1950s, when red-hunting politicians demanded that the Examiner and other papers do their bidding and join in the war against communism. With few exceptions, the papers buckled in. They printed the unfounded accusations of Senator McCarthy and others, in many cases destroying the careers — sometimes the lives — of those accused of traitorous conduct. They did little or no independent investigation of the accusations and often made their own charges about other alleged "subversives." The papers even fired some of their own employees for being suspected red sympathizers.

The Examiner, a particularly notorious soldier in the war on communism, fired one reporter for refusing to tell the House Un-American Activities Committee whether he or any of his associates had been Communist Party members a quarter-century earlier, as the committee claimed.

Political pressures aren't the only outside influences that affect newspaper content. There are advertisers, of course, although newspaper people invariably insist that advertiser pressure is ignored. But was it really just a coincidence that not many years ago the items listed in an every-Thursday feature of the Examiner, "Best Food Buys of the Week," were precisely the items listed in the full-page Safeway ads that also ran on Thursdays?

I also wonder how they'd explain the "must go," or "MG," memos regularly sent from the managing editor to the staff at the Chronicle during my time there. A typical memo, which I've saved for non-sentimental reasons, called for "Business Page MG 3 or 4 Paragraphs" about JCPenny offering its "own private-brand television sets for sale ... the latest step in the national chain's move into the sale of major appliances."

Give Tim White this: If he did indeed say what he said he said to Willie Brown, he was only doing the sort of thing many others before him had done. It's a grand old newspaper tradition. ♦

Dick Meister has been labor editor of the S.F. Chronicle, city editor of the Oakland Tribune, and a reporter for the San Jose Mercury News, United Press, Associated Press, and KQED-TV's Newsroom. He also has taught journalism history at S.F. State University.

Stop the monopoly march

After you sift through all the lies and obfuscations that have come to light in the trial of Clint Reilly's lawsuit against Hearst Corporation, a few key facts stick in the mind. And one of them is this:

Last year Hearst announced that it couldn't find any qualified bidders who wanted to buy the San Francisco Examiner. A few months later the company announced it was selling the afternoon paper to the Fang family, publishers of the Independent.

What had changed? Well, according to public statements by both sides, Hearst had agreed (under pressure from the U.S. Department of Justice) to sweeten the pot, to offer more than just the name of the paper and the subscriber list. (Interestingly, the Fang deal doesn't include all of the physical assets that supposedly made the sale more attractive.)

But now, after Reilly has done what the Justice Department (and the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, city attorney, and district attorney, and the California attorney general) all refused to do — get the Hearst executives under oath, in public, and ask them a few tough questions — the real story is emerging.

Hearst didn't sell the Ex. It plans to give the paper away, along with a $66 million subsidy. If that offer had been on the table from the start — openly, publicly — we suspect there would have been a lot of bidders willing to take the paper off Hearst's hands.

But instead, like so much of local politics, the deal was done secretly, orchestrated with the help of Mayor Willie Brown. We are learning what deals the publisher of the Examiner offered Brown in exchange for his help in getting Hearst's purchase of the Chronicle; we still have no idea what, if anything, the Fang family offered him in exchange for his role in securing the sweetheart deal to purchase the Examiner.

We don't know whether the Fangs are serious about publishing the Ex for the long term or are only out to pocket some big money while they back Brown and the local political machine for a few years.

But we do know this: Ex publisher Tim White, in an e-mail back to corporate headquarters, stated that Brown had spoken to Attorney General Janet Reno and that she had promised there would be no public hearings in San Francisco or Washington, D.C., on the sale of the Chron and the possible shutdown of the Ex. So the public was never going to have any role in what is looking more and more like a world-class sleazy deal.

There's a lot more at stake than an ordinary business acquisition. A daily newspaper is (even in this era of exploding new forms of communication) still a powerful force in a city, and it should be treated in part as a public trust. If Hearst manages to buy the Chron and the Ex folds in short order, every advertiser in town will pay even higher exorbitant rates; every reader will lose any chance at a second opinion and perspective on the news; every political activist will be forced to go through one publication to get his or her message out.

This is a disastrous possibility — and it's also all too real. Every local and federal official who allowed the situation to get to this point without demanding public hearings was a collaborator in this march to monopoly. And every one of them should now demand that the entire process be brought to a screeching halt, that the Justice Department take a new, hard look at this (including public hearings), and that Hearst be forced to reopen bidding on both papers with the terms and conditions of the sale known to all bidders and the public up front.

Judge Vaughn Walker has an antitrust case in front of him, but he also has the authority to issue an injunction barring the sale of the Chron to Hearst, barring the sale of the Ex to the Fang family, and sending this entire fiasco back to square one.

A strong ruling blocking the entire deal would send a national message and encourage the courts and the Justice Department to stop any further newspaper sales or actions that lead to the shutdown of daily newspapers. It would expose Justice's sellout on this (and so many other) deals, and it might force federal officials to stop all this backroom secrecy and shine some sunlight on future investigations. It could even spur Congress to reopen the entire question of the Newspaper Preservation Act and the monopolies it has created. ♦

P.S. Where are the journalism professors? They've been notably absent from the ranks of the opposition, except for UC Berkeley's retired journalism dean, Ben Bagdikian. His successor, Tom Goldstein, now the dean of the Graduate School of Journalism at Columbia University in New York City, weighed in with timely rah-rah quotes on Hearst's selection to replace publisher Tim White, who told the truth under oath. Goldstein told the Chronicle that George Irish, who was White's boss and the president of Hearst Newspapers, was "a very good citizen" and that he is "universally respected."

Astounded with Goldstein's remarks (coming from Columbia and the home of the Pulitzer Prizes), we asked him if he had been quoted correctly and, if so, how he could make such statements when the trial evidence showed that Irish knew about White's horse-trading of editorial space for help in monopolizing San Francisco. Goldstein replied by e-mail, "All I know is that George Irish is a person of absolute probity and is so viewed by publishers around the country. I really can't get involved in a matter now under trial."

The home wreckers

In a city getting more crowded and more expensive by the day, it shouldn't be easy for developers to knock down affordable housing and erect pricey live-work lofts. That's why the planning code prevents landlords from demolishing existing housing unless it's in serious disrepair.

But as Cassi Feldman reports on page 13, a gaping loophole in the law is allowing a profiteering property owner to tear down a two-unit building in SoMa and replace it with housing that is certain to be far more expensive.

The loophole is an anomaly in the city's planning code. The law on demolition requires that developers replace torn-down affordable units.

The guidelines on live-work developments don't require loft projects to have an affordable component. So when affordable housing is torn down to make room for lofts, does the law require replacement housing to be built?

The law itself is ambiguous. And that kind of ambiguity was made to be exploited by developers eager to cash in on San Francisco's real estate boom — but less eager to give anything back.

That's why the Planning Commission should take steps to close the loophole and require that all demolished affordable units be replaced, live-work or no. Working people in this city can't afford to lose any more potential homes. ♦

Breaking it down

Developers call the shots on demolition

By Cassi Feldman

Good news for developers: destroying affordable housing may be easier than you think. Housing activists were incensed at an April 27 Planning Commission hearing by one property owner's plans to demolish a South of Market residence and replace it with a live-work development. Not only is the demolition itself open to question; the new building fails to comply with a city mandate requiring that affordable housing be replaced.

A two-story yellow house, 360-362 10th St. is surrounded by a print shop, a furniture store, and an auto-body repair business. According to neighbor Jim Meko, who has lived two doors down for more than 20 years, the old building was already dilapidated when the 1989 Loma Prieta earthquake struck, rendering its upstairs unit unlivable.

Last year owners Doug Cowles and Vera Stanton sold the property to John O'Connor. On Oct. 28 O'Connor applied for permits to demolish the existing structure and construct a four-story, six-unit live-work complex in its place.

Under the city's planning code, a building can only be demolished if it has become "unsafe and uninhabitable" through no fault of the owner and if rehabilitation is prohibitively expensive. The requirement is intended to discourage builders from destroying the city's dwindling supply of affordable housing.

To certify that a building can be demolished, the owner must hire an engineer, whose findings are reported to the Department of Building Inspection. DBI then conducts its own inspection of the property and reports back to the Planning Department. John Kerley, the DBI inspector who assessed the property, said that the building was "severely structurally damaged" but that, although the former owners were aware of the damage and did not make any repairs, he did not think they were neglectful. "It was a very old building," he said.

Land-use attorney Sue Hestor points out that it probably didn't hurt that an additional letter of support was submitted by Rodrigo Santos, a structural engineer who was hired by O'Connor to inspect the property in August 1999 and now sits on the Building Inspection Commission. Santos has also contracted with the Residential Builders Association in the past, an organization that has been outspoken in its support of live-work housing.

"I don't think this was an arm's-length determination," Hestor said. She added that Santos's work as an engineer does not legally constitute a conflict of interest.

Santos said that his connections have "nothing to do with the state of the building and why it was structurally unsound."

Live-work loophole

The case also highlights a major conflict in the city's planning code. Not only can developers hire well-connected engineers to write reports, but they may also be able to use vague live-work guidelines to skirt the city's affordable-housing goals.

San Francisco's South of Market Area Plan, adopted in 1990, states that one of its objectives is to "preserve existing housing and encourage the development of new, affordable housing." And the city's guidelines on demolition require developers to replace all affordable units or make contributions to the City's Housing Affordability Fund.

But a more recent interim resolution designed to protect industrial zones does not require that live-work developments contain affordable units. So in the case of the 10th Street house, which involves both demolition and new live-work construction, which code takes precedence?

At the Planning Commission's April 29 meeting, planner Ricardo Bressanutti urged commissioners to approve the project without affordable-housing requirements.

Former sweatshop worker sick with T.B.

By Alison Hawkes

Chie Abad, a former sweatshop worker who has become a leading spokesperson for the anti-sweatshop movement in the United States, is suffering from tuberculosis and other health problems, which she believes she contracted during her six years working in a sweatshop in Saipan.

Abad has been in extreme pain since November. She has no health insurance and little money for medical care. The illness, she said, "might be because of the hard work I underwent in the past years." She told us many of her fellow garment workers have suffered similar health problems.

"Chie is a woman who is strong, and so modest," said Medea Benjamin, cofounder of San Francisco nonprofit Global Exchange. Benjamin took Abad to the hospital Friday morning. "She never complains about anything, and she doesn't want to burden anyone. We were surprised to learn that her condition is so serious."

Abad left her home in the Philippines to work in a garment factory on the Pacific island of Saipan, in the U.S. commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands. She worked for the Sako Corporation, which makes clothes for the Gap and other retailers. Manufacturers such as Sako choose to locate in Saipan because they can export products duty-free to the United States — and label their clothes "Made in the U.S." — without adhering to U.S. labor standards.

In a May 8 interview, Abad described living and working conditions on the island as "intolerable."

"Many workers live in squalid and unsanitary conditions," she said. "Workers do not have healthy food or safe drinking water and do not get enough rest and sleep. There is no safety from the fumes."

Abad lost her job after she tried to organize employees in the factory to push for better working conditions. She brought her case to the U.S. Equal Employment Opportunity Commission,

Furor over S.F. General staff transfers

By Bruce Mirken

San Francisco public health director Dr. Mitch Katz may have inadvertently done opponents of his proposed budget cuts a favor last week when he moved to cut 21 inpatient psychiatric beds at San Francisco General Hospital before the Board of Supervisors had even debated the proposal, much less approved it.

On May 3 hospital administrators announced that psych ward staffers would be reassigned — a move that, hospital workers agree, would force the closure of one ward.

"He doesn't have the authority to do that," Sup. Tom Ammiano told us. Ammiano had asked Katz for assurances that no cuts would take place before the board approved the department's budget. "As a supervisor, I don't like being blown off," he said. "We're not going to let him get away with it."

In interviews with the Bay Guardian and elsewhere, Katz had stated that beds would not be cut until patients had been placed elsewhere.

Katz's sudden action prompted a new wave of opposition to the psychiatric bed cuts — some of it from unexpected sources. Advocates for the poor and public health supporters who sounded the alarm about the possible closures have now been joined by the city's tourist hotels and its police union.

A strongly worded May 8 letter to Mayor Willie Brown from the San Francisco Police Officers Association states that the closure of inpatient beds "will create a serious threat to public safety."

And Bob Begley, executive director of the Hotel Council of San Francisco, e-mailed Sup. Barbara Kaufman May 3. "I strongly urge that all efforts be made to reconsider the budget cutbacks at San Francisco General Hospital that would reduce the quality of care and number of beds available for the men-which filed a class-action lawsuit against Sako Corporation on behalf of Abad and her fellow workers. Since then, Abad has testified in lawsuits filed against manufacturers in Saipan charging violations of overtime laws, use of forced labor, and firings of pregnant women.

Recently, Abad has worked with an anti-sweatshop coalition that reached an $8 million settlement with 17 U.S. clothing retailers that had contracted with sweatshop factories in Saipan, including Nordstrom, Tommy Hilfiger, Oshkosh, Sears, and Liz Claiborne, among others. The companies have agreed to pay back wages to former garment workers, contract with factories that treat workers better, and allow independent monitors to visit their contractors' Saipan factories. Four U.S. retailers, including the Gap, have not settled.

Alan Marks, vice president of corporate communication for Gap Inc., said that he was "saddened to hear of Chie's health conditions." In response to questions about Gap's refusal to settle in the suit, Marks said, "The allegations are false, and we will continue to defend ourselves."

Abad told us her illness won't keep her from fighting for the rights of garment workers. Doing so, she said, "is the only thing that will change sweatshops." ♦

Global Exchange has set up a fund to help Chie Abad pay for medical expenses. Send checks to Chie Abad, c/o Global Exchange, 2017 Mission St., Room 303, San Francisco, CA 94110.

Still fighting: Former sweatshop worker Chie Abad believes her illness "might be because of the hard work I underwent in the past years."

Charges filed against three cops

By A. Clay Thompson and Moira Potter

The San Francisco Police Commission is pursuing disciplinary charges against veteran police officer Nicholas Borthne. The cop is accused of beating a homeless man and threatening witnesses to the incident, which took place a little over a year ago on Beach Street between Powell and Stockton.

At least one onlooker notified the Office of Citizen Complaints, the city's police watchdog agency, which filed charges against Borthne. Five civilian witnesses came forward to testify against the officer.

According to the charges, Borthne was on patrol at 1:45 p.m., March 18, 1999, when he came upon an apparently homeless man pushing a shopping cart down Beach Street and began shouting at him.

The complaint states that the five bystanders "watched as the accused officer used his baton to repeatedly strike the man. The complainants observed the accused officer then grab the man by his hair and throw him to the ground."

"While the man was on the ground, the accused officer punched the man with his fist ... The accused officer then slammed the man against the side of the car," reads the complaint. The homeless man then wriggled free and ran off.

Borthne is charged with using unnecessary force and intimidating civilians. If the charges are sustained, he could be hit with penalties ranging from a written warning to expulsion from the force.

Borthne's lawyer, Katherine Mahoney, says the homeless man was threatening passersby with a brick. "I feel the charges are very baseless," she told us. "Officer Borthne used only the amount of force that was necessary. I feel very confident that when we go to trial he will be exonerated."

The complaint, which is based on witness testimony, does not mention a brick.

In 1994 Borthne was awarded the Medal of Valor for his actions during a shootout that left fellow cop James Guelff dead.

Police Commissioner Connie Perry is taking evidence in the case. No hearing date has yet been set.

"We intend to advance this case to resolution as promptly and effectively as we can," Office of Citizen Complaints chief Mary Dunlap told us. "We hope to reach a resolution in the next two to three months."

In another pending case, the commission is responding to charges against a pair of plainclothes narcotics investigators alleged to have illegally detained and verbally abused two men in May 1999. Officers Dean Marcic and Matthew Hanley are accused of holding and harassing the men — one black, one white — whom the cops suspected of stealing a car.

The auto in fact belonged to the African American man, who had just pulled up in front of his workplace.

The complaint charges that Marcic "lacked reasonable suspicion for detaining" the men.

When the white man asserted his right to witness his friend's detention, the complaint states, Marcic "backed him against the wall and asked, 'What rights do you have now?'"

Hanley is accused of unlawfully detaining the men and failing to issue them a certificate of release after the 20- to 25-minute ordeal.

Mahoney, who is also representing Marcic and Hanley, told us the case is under review. "From what I know, this case has no business being before the commission," she added. "These officers did nothing wrong there." ♦

Spectrum squeeze

No room on Bay Area dial for low-power radio

By A. Clay Thompson

After the federal government decided to legalize low-power FM radio in January, local microradio advocates Jesse Palmer and Art Persyko quickly tried to find out which Bay Area frequencies could become home to a new station. They commissioned Portland, Ore.-based audio engineer Gray Haertig to check it out.

Haertig had bad news for his clients. "I found there wasn't anything anywhere close to San Francisco," he told us. No frequencies are available in Alameda, San Francisco, San Mateo, Contra Costa, or Santa Clara Counties. The closest spectrum space lies in Santa Cruz to the south, Santa Rosa to the north, and Modesto to the east.

The Federal Communications Commission's legalizing of radio stations between 50 and 100 watts was viewed as a major victory by Bay Area media activists who've long pushed the feds to provide spectrum space for a class of noncommercial, community-level FM stations that could bring locally produced news and views to the airwaves. In practice, however, Haertig's study shows that the victory is meaningless for California's cities.

"We were surprised and disappointed that there could be no stations in major urban areas," Palmer said. "We're happy the FCC tried to do the right thing, but they didn't go far enough, as this engineering study shows. We really need [stations in] Oakland, San Francisco, San Jose. They've basically given us everything we want but the most important thing."

The number of frequencies available is determined by the amount of empty dial space that must be maintained between stations. Under FCC rules, microstations can be established three channels away from an existing station.

Microradio advocates like Palmer would like to see the empty dial space between stations shrunk to make room for more new broadcast outlets.

The National Association of Broadcasters — the lobbying arm of commercial radio and TV — is calling for the exact opposite: for the FCC to expand the required amount of space between the soon-to-be-established microstations and existing FM stations. "Our concern has been solely related to interference," association vice president Dennis Wharton told us. "This FCC has relaxed channel spacing rules that every other FCC for decades has supported. It simply cannot be done without causing interference for radio listeners."

The commission did not return calls regarding the concerns of microradio proponents, but FCC head William Kennard disagrees with the association's position. In a press statement issued in late March, he said the current plan gives "greater protection to existing radio service than a strict reading of the engineering record would have warranted."

The commission begins accepting applications for low-power stations at the end of May.

Meanwhile, low-power radio is facing a legislative attack on Capitol Hill. In the next few weeks, the Senate is expected to vote on a bill banning the new stations. The House has already OK'd a bill cutting the number of microstations by 75 percent and delaying any licensing.

Micropower advocates like Palmer and Persyko are urging Bay Area radio listeners to contact Sens. Dianne Feinstein and Barbara Boxer and express their opposition to the bill. ♦

Teachers threaten to quit Edison School

By Sarah Mueller

Teachers at San Francisco's Edison Charter Academy are disgruntled with their jobs at the privatized school, according to a letter to the school board signed by most of Edison's teachers. Without greater accountability to the public, the letter suggests, the school will lose much of its staff, to the detriment of students.

The May 5 letter identifies "two major issues [that] are threatening the return of the majority of the teaching staff": the school calendar and the length of the teaching day. Edison teachers work 25 days a year more than their counterparts at district-run schools, and those who teach grades two through five work an additional hour each day.

"Without a high rate of teacher retention, and all of the consistencies it brings," the letter states, "the school will cease to flourish or, at worst, suffer a severe regression."

Teachers have been discussing these issues with representatives of the Edison Project, the for-profit New York-based corporation that runs Edison Charter Academy and 51 other schools around the country, since the fall of last year, according to the letter.

"We are very proud of the good work the teachers have done, and we want to completely support them," Kathy Hamel, director of western development for Edison Project, told us. "We understand that the first two years in any program are difficult. We are addressing these issues, and we want to work with the district to solve these problems."

The letter was signed by 27 of the 32 teachers at Edison. Because all teachers at Edison must reinterview to be rehired each year, a copy sent to the company's chief education officer was not signed.

School board member Jill Wynns, who opposed the Edison privatization, said she hadn't known so many staffers at the school were dissatisfied, but she wasn't surprised.

"If you look at all of the Edison schools, they have an extremely high rate of turnover," Wynns told us.

In the letter, the teachers urge board members to take a stronger role in the school's management. "The private component of the partnership [between the Edison Project and the school district] must be held accountable to its public counterparts," the letter states.

"We want the full partnership, and we think that all the players should have a say,"

Edison teacher Kathy Fleming told us.

Wynns says that will be hard to arrange, since the board members waived their authority to oversee the school when they approved its charter.

"The retention of teachers is critical," board president Mary Hernandez told us. "Obviously we need to monitor this closely," Hernandez said she didn't recall hearing about retention problems at other Edison schools before she voted to approve the school's charter.

At its May 9 meeting, the board was expected to consider a resolution, sponsored by Wynns, mandating that the district conduct a scrupulous evaluation of the school. ♦

Planning panel caves on Bryant Square

The San Francisco Planning Commission voted 4-1 on May 4 to approve the massive Bryant Square office development, but the battle for the soul of the northeast Mission neighborhood is not expected to die down any time soon.

Residents, community groups, and activists — who packed the commission hearing room for close to three hours to show their opposition to the five-story, 160,000-square-foot project — vowed to appeal the decision to the Board of Supervisors. Opponents say the project, which will be mostly dot-com office space, will worsen congestion and air pollution in the neighborhood, cast shadows on nearby residences, and further gentrify the heavily Latino, working-class community.

Representatives of the developer, SKS Investment, said the project would provide multimedia job training to neighborhood youth, office space for community-based arts organizations, and a 10,000-square-foot public courtyard. SKS has also pledged $1 million to the city's affordable housing fund.

Most of the commissioners acknowledged that the development might erode the quality of life for neighborhood residents, but they said the potential benefits of the project outweighed gentrification concerns.

One commission member, Dennis Antenore, wasn't so convinced. Of the $1 million contribution for affordable housing, he said, "What does that mean today? You can't even buy half a house in the Upper Haight for that amount."

Shine on: Zena (with Cadillicus) never abandoned her old-school glamour.

In memoriam Zena Jones

By Jean Field

Zena Jones, a longtime film reviewer for the Bay Guardian, died April 27, 2000, after a life rich with glamour, mystery, and adventure.

Zena came to the paper in the early 1970s as a volunteer proofreader and soon began writing film reviews, in a format she dubbed "Microfilms." They were short — generally around 100 words — and punchy, permeated with her dry English wit, puns, and slightly naughty Mae West approach to life.

Bay Guardian editor and publisher Bruce B. Bruggmann recalled that Zena went to literally every screening, from trashy movies to highbrow films, back when no one else would do it, helping to establish respect for the paper's arts coverage. "She kept at it for more than twenty years," Bruggmann said. "She was the heart and soul of the Guardian."

As witty as it was, Zena's prose could never outshine the charm and charisma of its creator. Zena's glamour seemed to reflect a bygone age. Her silverish blond hair was always perfectly coiffed, unless it was hidden under a tall silver wig. She was dressed to the hilt for every occasion. Her sexy heels were never less than two inches tall, and her bright-colored ensembles generally included a tight, short skirt, with a cinched-in waist to show off her amazing legs and hourglass figure.

Zena reveled in the fact that her over-the-top, bawdy appearance and flirtatious double entendres contrasted with her sophisticated and ladylike sensibility. "She told me once, 'It takes a lot of money to look this cheap,'" said Edward Guthmann, film reviewer for the San Francisco Chronicle and longtime friend.

Zena lived on Jones Street for more than 22 years. "Where else would I live, lovey?" she'd say to the obvious remark about her choice of street. Her longtime neighbor, Jim Box, described her as "a shooting star — she'd go out the door and all you would see is a flash of color and glitter."

Mysterious past

Zena didn't share many concrete details about her life — she preferred to cultivate an air of mystery. She was born in England on Aug. 28; we'll omit the year, out of respect for her belief that a lady didn't publicize her age. Growing up in London, she joined the war effort, as did other young women of the era, and boasted that she was the champion fertilizer spreader of South Devon. She married at least two Americans but was vague about the specifics. She had a son with a Mr. Potts, an American serviceman whom she married when she was quite young, and lived in Los Angeles for a time with Mr. Jones. She held a variety of jobs, including nightclub photographer in New Orleans and aerial photographer in Cincinnati. She also worked for Dow Jones on the peninsula and did voice-overs for advertisements. She lived in several countries and traveled and read widely.

But her main passion was film. Stanley Eichelbaum, former Examiner film and theater critic and restaurateur, met Zena in the late 1960s, when she enrolled in his film criticism class at UC Extension. Zena was dedicated to the idea of becoming a film critic, he said, but although she was knowledgeable about the medium, she was nervous about writing. She enrolled in his class semester after semester, even after she was writing regularly for the Bay Guardian, until Eichelbaum insisted that she didn't need to take the class again. They remained close friends.

"I found Zena a wonderfully lusty lady, in a very ladylike way," said Eichelbaum, who now writes about food. "She had a joie de vivre, a zest for life, for fine restaurants, for travel, and for film. She had enormous charm and warmth and a great supportive attitude toward everyone around her."

That attitude was borne out every Monday for more than 20 years, when Zena visited the Bay Guardian on the paper's busiest production day of the week. She arrived in Cadillac, her 1964 pearl gray-and-black Cadillac, and brought huge spreads of deli meats, bread, cookies, and candy to feed the young, hungry, and mostly broke staff. She was a breath of charm and gaiety in a dingy newsroom, and she played her role to the hilt.

She called everyone "lovey," in part because she couldn't remember the names of all of her admirers. "It doesn't matter that you remember their names, lovey, as long as they remember yours," she told David Shaw, a close friend and former Bay Guardian editor.

Glamorous slippers

More than anything else, Zena represented the individuality that helped define San Francisco, her adopted city. When everyone else wore jeans, she wore hot pink cashmere. She was no anachronistic symbol of another era, though — she kept up with the times (sporting a "real people wear fake fur" button long before they were popular, for example) but didn't allow them to change her. She loved a good trashy movie as much as a high-class art film, and she brought to them both a sharp intellect and the experience of a life well lived.

She urged her friends to let their own unique talents shine and showered them with praise. A typical phone call with Zena began with a dozen or so flowery tributes to how "marvelous," "fantastic," and "sensational" you were — and at times, you began to believe it. A dinner out with Zena was a piece of personal theater, where you put on your best clothes and your most charming personality and prepared to make a splashy entrance.

Zena lived for the past several years in the Laurel Heights Convalescent Home, after an illness left her unable to care for herself. She never lost her social graces or glamour, and hairstylists and manicurists visited her several times a month. When those short skirts and heels became impractical, the staff provided her with leopard-print sweatpants and glamorous slippers. "She seemed more like a hostess than a patient here," one staff member said. "Everyone knew who she was." ♦

Zena is survived by her son, a filmmaker in Los Angeles, a niece and nephews in England, and many adoring friends and fans. Zena's friends will gather May 13 at 3 p.m. at the Bay Guardian office, 520 Hampshire St., S.F. Bring photos and stories. Donations in Zena's honor may be made to the Bay Guardian Community Fund, 520 Hampshire St., S.F., CA 94110.

tally ill in San Francisco," Begley wrote.

At the board's May 8 meeting, Sup. Leland Yee, who had previously sounded sympathetic to Katz's budget recommendations, joined Ammiano and Sups. Gavin Newsom and Mark Leno in cosponsoring a resolution asking Katz to delay any staff transfers or service cuts until the board approved the budget. The measure also asks Katz and chief of psychiatry Dr. Robert Okin to each select three independent mental health experts to advise the board on the impact the proposed cuts will have on patients.

Meanwhile, Mayor Brown moved to try to defuse the crisis, inviting the interested parties to meet at his office May 11.

Surprise cuts

The May 3 memo from S.F. General executive administrator Gene O'Connell and human resources manager Rod Auyang announcing the involuntary staff reassignments took the department by surprise.

Katz "is trying to force us to close the beds in advance of the budget being approved," assistant chief of psychiatry Dr. Mark Leary told us. "It's just outrageous that he would try to preempt the legislative process."

According to the memo, staffers will be transferred out of the psychiatric unit starting May 10, to reduce the number of beds in the unit by 21. Because the reassignments will be done based on seniority, with the newest employees moved first, the move will likely affect the department's special focus units, which provide specialized, culturally sensitive care to women, Asian, African American, Latino, gay, lesbian, bisexual, transgender, and HIV-positive patients. Those units have received national acclaim for combining psychiatrists, nurses, and social workers specially trained and qualified to care for those populations. The staff of the Asian-focused unit, for example, speaks a total of 14 languages.

Department managers continue to insist they don't intend to shut down the special units. DPH spokesperson Eileen Shields did not respond to requests for comment, but on May 8 Dr. Melissa Welch, medical director of DPH's Community Health Network, told KPFA radio, "Dr. Katz is on the record as saying that he has not charged the department with closing a unit." She defended the decision to order the transfers now as a prudent administrative move to ensure that the changes go smoothly.

Health workers aren't buying it. Leary described the staff as "outraged, anxious, and scared." Mily Trabing, S.F. General's director of psychiatric social work, added bluntly, "Every single staff member who works here knows this plan is not going to work." ❖

Because "Free Checking" just seemed a bit catchier than "Pay Annoying Fees Checking."

Actually, the real reason we're so committed to truly Free Checking at Washington Mutual has nothing to do with the catchiness of the phrase. It's because we know every penny in your checking account is yours. And you shouldn't have to pay for the right to keep them here.

So, while other banks are content to charge you annoying teller fees, fees to use their ATMs and fees to return your cancelled checks, we're simply not. {Let us make a fan out of you.}

While that may cost us a few dollars, it tends to keep people coming back. And we can't think of anything catchier than the sound of happy customers walking through the door.

Free means free.

1. No fees to return your cancelled checks.
2. No monthly fees.
3. No per check charge.
4. No minimum balance requirement.

ments. "Live-work projects have been exempted from an inclusionary affordable-housing requirement by the interim controls," he said at the meeting.

Alice Barkley, attorney for O'Connor, did not return calls for this story. At the hearing, she said the commission lacked the legal authority to demand affordable units.

Planning commissioner Dennis Antenore disagrees. Just because live-work developments are not explicitly covered by the requirement, he said, does not mean they are exempt. In fact, he said at the hearing, "we had considerable discussion, and there was clearly a majority of [Planning Commission] members who wanted to move toward affordability" requirements for live-work units.

John Elberling, executive vice president of Tenants and Owners Development Corporation, also spoke against the demolition. He said the case would set a dangerous precedent by giving landlords an incentive to allow their buildings to decay.

"If you do not enforce the inclusionary requirement on this project," Elberling told the commissioners, "you're giving a green light for any owner to let their buildings turn into slums." ❖

The ruling on 360 10th St. was continued to Thurs/11, 1:30 p.m., City Hall, Room 400, 1 Carlton B. Goodlett Place, S.F. (415) 558-6422.

Sunshine task force appointments confirmed

By Rachel Brahinsky

The Board of Supervisors confirmed the appointments of Vince Courtney and Ted Kowalczyk to the Sunshine Ordinance Task Force May 1. If Mayor Willie Brown signs off on the two appointees by May 12, he will clear the way for the full group to meet later this month.

The task force, which is charged with overseeing compliance with the city's Sunshine Ordinance, strengthened last fall by Proposition G, has not convened since December of last year. Some observers have charged the supervisors with delaying the reappointment process (see "Supes Stall Sunshine Appointments," 4/5/00).

One critic says the board has lost two key members. Richard Knee is a member of the steering committee of the Society of Professional Journalists' northern California chapter and a member of San Franciscans for Sunshine, the group that fought for the passage of Prop. G. Knee applied for a seat on the task force this year but was not appointed.

"It is highly unfortunate that the committee and the board did not reappoint Ruach Graffis and David Watkins," Knee told us. "In the roughly two years that I've attended the task force's meetings, both have had excellent attendance records, both have had a high level of activity on the task force, and both have been on what I consider to be the right sides of the issues."

"At the same time, I am not surprised. Particularly from their conduct surrounding last year's [Prop. G], it is apparent that most of the supervisors have little if any interest in fostering open government."

Sup. Mark Leno, chair of the board's Rules Committee, told us he had supported Graffis and had great respect for Watkins, but that forming a task force takes compromise between committee members. "I didn't get all of my first choices," he said. "I believe that we have a good task force, and I wouldn't want to prejudge it." The other members of the committee are Sups. Mabel Teng and Barbara Kaufman.

Bob Planthold, chair and five-year member of the task force, is optimistic. He would not comment on specific members but told us he looks forward to meeting with the new group and getting to work. "It will be difficult for the task force to start up because we've been out of service for five months," he said. "I hope that the skills that the new version of the task force brings will help us really work toward our goal of educating the public and its agencies about open government." ♦

The next task force meeting is scheduled for Tues/23, 4 p.m., City Hall, 1 Dr. Carlton B. Goodlett Place, Room 408, S.F.

The publishers' six big lies

A federal trial shows how S.F.'s daily newspapers have misled the public for decades. By Tali Woodward and Tim Redmond

The truth hurts

From the cover

In legal terms, the trial is an antitrust case brought by real estate investor Clint Reilly, who says that as a reader and a potential advertiser he would be harmed by the sale of the Chron to Hearst Corporation and what he calls a sham deal to sell the Examiner to the Fang family. In political and journalistic terms, it's become perhaps the most important media trial in modern San Francisco history.

After all the pious denunciations of Examiner editor and publisher Tim White's "horse-trading" with Mayor Willie Brown, and all the solemn promises from Examiner and Chronicle editors that their news and editorial coverage isn't for sale, Six Big Lies stand out:

Lie no. 1: Hearst's editorial decisions are not influenced by corporate business interests.

Lie no. 2: White's attempt to trade editorial support for the mayor's blessing of the Chron sale was unknown to Hearst higher-ups and a violation of Hearst policy.

Lie no. 3: The Examiner is so unprofitable that it has to be shut down.

Lie no. 4: The JOA has been good for San Francisco.

Lie no. 5: Hearst believes that the Fang family can make the Examiner competitive with the Chronicle.

Lie no. 6: The sale to the Fang family was simply a business deal, with no politics involved.

Lie no. 1: Hearst's business interests don't influence its editorial coverage

Just a few hours into the trial, White admitted, in no uncertain terms, that he'd used the paper's editorial pages as a bargaining chip. White said that at an Aug. 30 lunch with Brown, he suggested that the Ex would give Brown more positive coverage if he'd get behind Hearst's plan to take over the Chronicle.

"You were doing a little horse-trading of your own, weren't you?" asked Reilly's lead attorney, Joseph M. Alioto.

"I was," White said calmly.

The crucial fact — largely overlooked in the daily coverage of the trial — was that White answered the question simply and directly, with no attempt to obfuscate. He didn't seem to think he was saying anything particularly surprising.

That's consistent with his statements in a previous deposition and in his e-mail messages to his supervisors in New York. And although White later insisted, in a statement distributed by Hearst's public relations operation, that he was "tired and confused" on the stand, he didn't look a bit tired or confused to us.

White's admission that he was willing to manipulate the paper's positions for Hearst's monetary gain has caused an outcry all over the country. But Ben Bagdikian, former dean of UC Berkeley's journalism school, told us that he wasn't terribly surprised.

"That kind of understanding happens very often, I think," he said. "It's just not often that it becomes public."

Although reporters and editors at the two dailies act as if they were shocked at Tim White's testimony, horse-trading with politicians is not new to Hearst (see Opinion, page 11). In his book The Media Monopoly, Bagdikian describes an incident that fits in perfectly with the theme of this trial.

The story goes back to 1969, when the nation's big publishers — including Hearst Corporation — were trying to push through one of the greatest acts of corporate welfare in American history. It was called the Newspaper Preservation Act, and it granted the publishers a special exemption from antitrust law: the right to combine the business operations of two daily newspapers in the same town, forming a monopoly called a "joint operating agreement."

The Examiner and the Chronicle have been published under a JOA since 1965. At the time the bill passed Congress, the San Francisco deal was still illegal; Hearst needed the law to retroactively legalize it.

But then-president Richard Nixon was dubious. The law went against his free-market politics, and he was balking at signing it.

Then, in July 1969, Nixon received a "Dear Dick" letter from Richard E. Berlin, then Hearst's chief executive.

"Those of us who strongly supported the present administration in the last election are the ones most seriously concerned and endangered by failure to adopt the Newspaper Preservation Act," Berlin wrote. "The fact remains that there was almost unanimous support of the Administration by the newspapers who are proponents of the Newspaper Preservation Act. It therefore seems to me that those newspapers should, at the very least, receive a most friendly consideration."

Nixon reversed his position and that of his own Justice Department on the NPA — and in the 1972 election received the endorsement of every Hearst paper in the country.

Lie no. 2: Hearst has a policy against this sort of thing

The day after White's testimony, Hearst issued a press release saying the company had "reaffirmed its policy that the content of news and editorial pages may not be negotiated or compromised in any way."

But if such a policy really exists, nobody from Hearst can seem to produce it.

When we asked company spokesperson Debra Shriver if she could show us a copy of the company's ethics policy, she said each Hearst publication has independent editorial policies and recommended we contact Examiner executive editor Phil Bronstein.

Does that mean, we asked her, that if Bronstein and White wanted to allow the sort of bargaining White described, that would be just fine with Hearst? No, she said, "we don't allow deal making."

But she was able to produce no written material showing that White, or any other Hearst executive, has ever been informed of any policy that would prevent Hearst officials from offering the sort of deal that White has said was discussed at the lunch with Brown.

Bronstein told us the Examiner had an ethics policy, but that it covered reporters and editors, not publishers. "It certainly doesn't cover situations like this," he said. He promised to fax us a copy, but it hadn't arrived by press time.

The bottom line: It appears, based on all available evidence, that White was doing exactly what he had been sent out here to do, exactly what he was paid to do — buy the Chron, shut down the Ex, and create a monopoly — and if he offered to trade positive coverage in the pages of the paper for the political clout it took to make that deal, that was just fine with the people at Hearst headquarters back in New York.

Shriver defended the timing of White's suspension, insisting his testimony was a surprise. "This became an ethics issue the moment we learned about it Monday. We would've taken the same action had we learned about it back then," she told us.

But company executives must have known about the deal White offered Brown for months. "They're making him the fall guy for an agreement that headquarters liked," Bagdikian told us.

On the same day of his lunch with the mayor, White had sent Hearst Newspapers president George Irish an e-mail, which Irish then forwarded to four other execs. The second line read, "I asked Willie how I was going to justify to my superiors in New York wanting to support him and cooperate with him when he was seeming to go out of his way to make our lives difficult." (The e-mail, which was signed, oddly, "hugs and kisses," also says that Brown told White that Attorney General Janet Reno had assured the mayor that "there would be no hearings [on the fate of the Ex]: local, public, or otherwise.")

Hearst executives have claimed that this account did not imply horse-trading. James M. Asher, Hearst senior vice president, said on the stand that he took it as a "chatty" remark when he read the e-mail.

But two Hearst attorneys were present when White was questioned under oath by Department of Justice officials last December — and the intent of his conversation with the mayor was made clear at that time.

One of the investigators asked White, "Were you trying to convey to Mayor Brown that his support for Hearst's proposed acquisition of the Chronicle would result in more favorable treatment in the Examiner?"

White responded, "Yeah."

That response came after a discussion of how the Examiner's news department had covered Brown, and White discussed a number of critical news stories. He never mentioned the editorial page. So in context, it's pretty clear that his remark suggested that Brown would get not only favorable treatment in editorials but also favorable treatment in the news columns. (On the stand May 1, White said the offer only applied to the editorial page.)

Local attorney Gary Halling, who is heading up Hearst's defense team, told reporters that he didn't tell corporate executives what White had disclosed because he didn't think it was relevant to the antitrust case. Jonathan Thackeray, the company's chief legal counsel, claims to have been out of the room at the time White made that remark and says he didn't review the transcript.

If that's true, it's a remarkable statement from the chief lawyer for a major corporation. Thackeray is essentially claiming that he failed to notice and inform his client about what Hearst now claims is a major breach of company policy.

A more likely explanation: Thackeray didn't consider the remark noteworthy, because (like White) he had never been told that Hearst had any policy against trading editorial coverage for political favors. He assumed it was just business as usual.

To the Examiner's credit, the paper has covered the trial in reasonable depth (certainly better than the other dailies). On May 4 the Ex even ran an attention-catching box with some of the most damning parts of White's DOJ deposition.

But neither daily has pursued two obvious angles of the story: Did the Examiner's coverage of Brown change after the meeting (see "Backing Brown")? And how in the world did Phil Bronstein, who, according to the e-mail, was present, sit through that meeting without objecting to the deal?

Bronstein, of course, has publicly insisted that no deal was discussed in his presence. He told us the same thing. But he acknowledged to us that he heard White tell Brown that it would be hard to explain to Hearst executives how the paper was supporting the mayor if the mayor continued to, as Bronstein said, "beat us up" on the purchase of the Chron.

Bronstein said there was no talk of horse-trading and that he never suspected that White was actually considering offering editorial support to the mayor in exchange for political support on the Chron deal.

That's hard to believe — Bronstein has been around San Francisco politics a long time and is not an idiot.

If Bronstein participated in the discussion, it's shameful. It's equally shameful that he never told anyone on the news staff about what was clearly a big story.

Meanwhile, Examiner editorial pages editor James A. Finefrock wrote a long and gushy editorial in the May 7 paper claiming that "Tim White has never asked me to go easy on Brown or anyone else on our editorial page."

But somehow the Ex — which, in White's own admission, had run several stories highly critical of Brown — wound up endorsing Brown for reelection with no reservations at all, which startled even Examiner news staffers at the time.

The whole issue is certain to come up again when Irish and Hearst president Frank Bennack are called to the stand next week. On May 5 Hearst's attorneys argued that Alioto only wanted to call Irish, who wasn't on the original witness list, because of the controversy — which they still say is tangential to the suit. But Judge Vaughn Walker reiterated his belief, stated earlier in the week, that the issue may very well be related.

Lie no. 3: The Examiner is losing money

For years Hearst has characterized the Examiner as a money loser, as a thorn in the side of its owner and its partner in the joint operating agreement, Chronicle Publishing Company.

When Jill Greenthal, the investment banker hired by Chronicle Publishing Company last year to find buyers for its media properties, testified last week, she said that Chronicle board members felt that Hearst had gotten a "free ride" for much of the JOA's term. Hearst, she said, had refused to put money and resources into the Examiner but had continued to collect half the profits the partnership pulled in.

Anyone who's ever seen the decrepit computers in the Examiner's surprisingly shabby newsroom would agree that Hearst hasn't appeared interested in investing in the enterprise. And it's true that much of the money collected by the San Francisco Newspaper Agency — the business arm of the JOA — has probably come from the Chronicle. After all, the morning paper has four times the circulation of the Ex.

But several people — including White, SFNA president Steve Falk, and James P. Rutherford, the executive vice president of Veronis Suhler and Associates, the banking firm hired to sell the Examiner — have admitted on the stand or in depositions that it's impossible to tell what the Examiner's costs and profits have been.

That's because almost all of the advertising contracts sold by the SFNA include space in both papers. And since the

Backing Brown

The San Francisco Examiner and the San Francisco Chronicle both have devoted considerable space to the Ex trial and to the fallout from Tim White's admission of horse-trading, and both have printed damning information about Hearst Corporation on the front page all week long.

At the Examiner the staff has been quick to say that the deal White offered Mayor Willie Brown over lunch last August never influenced its coverage of his campaign or his administration. And Chronicle staffers — who, if they saw themselves as true competitors with the Ex, might have dug through the Examiner's coverage to see for themselves if the lunchtime meeting had had any effect — have generally followed the Examiner's lead.

But observers of the campaign tell us that the concept of an Ex publisher making a deal to give Brown editorial support isn't so far-fetched. In fact, they say that they were shocked when they read the enthusiastic editorial endorsing Brown in the Oct. 26 Examiner (about two months after Brown's lunch with White).

Political consultant Jim Stearns, who ran Clint Reilly's mayoral campaign, told us he was stunned by the tone of the endorsement. "The Examiner really drove the FBI story, and the Chron would always play catch-up. But what blew me away was the glowing, glowing editorial [in the Examiner]. All of a sudden it really seemed like there was no connection between the news and editorial sections," he said.

The editorial followed numerous Ex stories critical of the Brown administration. While it admitted that Brown was imperfect and noted that in the past the editorial page had often given him hell, the tone of the piece was, as Stearns said, glowing: "More than any specific accomplishment, it is Brown's terrific ability to govern, and yes, to play politics — that's most impressive. Here is a guy with brains, guts, and moxie.... As skilled as Brown was in back-room politics when he won the mayor's office four years ago, he's learned plenty on the job about the nuts-and-bolts of city government."

Mayoral candidate and former mayor Frank Jordan pointed out that the first time he ran against Willie Brown, he received the Examiner's endorsement himself. "They said I earned the endorsement the hard way. They called Willie Brown a silver-tongued orator who knows how to wheel and deal. Before, they didn't like him for the same reason they like him now."

And, he said, he believed that once the endorsement was published, the paper's news coverage suffered. "It's my perception that after Willie Brown was given the editorial support of the Examiner, the investigative news coverage on the front pages diminished," Jordan said. "It definitely seemed like something was going on."

We called James Finefrock, the Examiner's editorial page editor, to ask him if he found the change in tone as striking as we did. "I think what you're engaged in is not very useful," he said. "People independently came to that judgment, to endorse Brown. I don't think [White] cut a deal."

SFNA deals with all production costs, it's difficult to divvy them up.

Only Asher has maintained that it's possible to establish the Examiner's profit margin, though he admitted that he lacked the "requisite expertise" to do so.

And there's no doubt about one fact: under the JOA — into which the publishers voluntarily entered because they thought it was a way to make more money — the Examiner was quite successful. Records disclosed in trial May 1 indicate that the newspaper agency brought in about $80 million in profits in 1998. That money is split evenly between the Ex and the Chron before editorial costs are paid. In 1998 that left Hearst a profit of $23 million — and the company estimated that those profits would go up until the JOA expired in 2005.

Lie no. 4: The JOA has been good for San Francisco

Since 1965 Examiner and Chronicle reporters, editors, and publishers have repeatedly and consistently argued that the JOA has saved newspaper competition in the city — that it's been good for the readers and advertisers of San Francisco.

But in the past week Alioto has laid out what the JOA has really done for San Francisco.

By allowing the two papers to operate in concert for several decades, he demonstrated, the JOA has made it nearly impossible for another company to enter the market. It also has virtually assured that only one paper would survive the arrangement — because it has limited the Chron's success while making the paper less appealing to other possible bidders.

Under questioning from Walker, Asher said that "however confident" Hearst was that its plan to take over the Chronicle was legal, the company agreed to essentially give away the Examiner and subsidize the Fang family because company officials didn't want to lose "the opportunity to buy the Chronicle." That's because another company might have shown interest in the Chron when the JOA expired.

As several executives have testified, Hearst also used a scare tactic to get the Chronicle board to sell — Hearst officials told Chronicle management that they wanted to go head-to-head in the morning slot once the current agreement expired. The Chronicle took the threats seriously because of Hearst's national presence as a media conglomerate and its deep pockets.

The amount of money that Hearst is willing to pay to take over the Chron and unload the Ex hints at how much is riding on this deal. Hearst is willing to pay a total of $726 million.

As Greenthal — the investment banker who managed the Chron sale offering — has testified, that's far more than other interested parties were willing to pay for the Chron. The only reasonable explanation for Hearst's willingness to pay so much more is that it expects the deal to give it control of the market.

Much of Greenthal's testimony related to a thick report drafted by her firm before the paper was offered for sale. Titled "Project Golden," it detailed several scenarios for the city's newspaper market, including a "newspaper war" with Hearst if the company decided to go head-to-head with the Chronicle after the 2005 expiration of the joint operating agreement.

During cross-examination, Alioto launched into a series of questions designed to show that Greenthal views competition negatively because it typically lowers profits. Eventually he pushed her to agree that in a "war" scenario, advertisers and consumers benefit.

But he continued to hammer home his point, asking if competition benefited consumers because of choice. She reluctantly agreed, saying, "If you say so." He boomed, "Is that a bad thing?" and Greenthal shot back, "On what level?"

Meanwhile, the Chron has been praising the consumer benefits of competition. On May 5 the Chron ran a story that began this way: "It's a good time to be a news junkie. An old-fashioned newspaper war is breaking out in the Bay Area with several major dailies announcing plans to cut newsstand prices to a quarter."

When Alioto asked Asher about the Chron's price change May 4, Asher said that it "shows there's some competition." Alioto muttered, "Or a trial."

Lie no. 5: Hearst thinks the Fangs will be successful competitors

Right now the only thing standing in the way of an eventual monopoly for Hearst — besides this antitrust suit — is the Fang family, which has agreed to run the Examiner for three years with $66 million in Hearst subsidies. Reilly's lawsuit alleges that this deal is a sham — he says that the deal is designed to let the paper fail — and that the Fangs' plans for the Ex wouldn't provide much competition anyway.

This gets to the heart of one of the major issues in the antitrust case: the definition of the market in which these papers compete. And the publishers' definition depends on what questions they are being asked.

When Alioto asked Asher how the Fangs might be able to keep the paper alive (considering that Hearst, with much deeper pockets, has insisted the Ex was doomed to failure), Asher defended the plan, saying that the Fangs "don't intend to put out a metropolitan daily newspaper in direct competition with the Chronicle."

It's true that the Fangs have said that they intend to target only three counties with their Examiner — as opposed to the current 11 counties in which the afternoon paper circulates. And they plan to focus primarily on San Francisco — to fill a different niche in the market.

But when Hearst and the Fangs were talking to the DOJ, they pitched the paper as a true competitor to the Chron, which Hearst defined in a document filed with the DOJ as a "metropolitan daily."

Alioto said that Asher's testimony was the "opposite of what's in their brief."

Alioto also forced Asher to confirm some of the stranger aspects of the Fang deal.

According to the March 16 agreement, the Fangs can pocket any portion of the subsidy they do not spend. There is also a cap ($3.5 million a year) on what they can spend on capital improvements. Both items in the agreement seem to be an incentive for the family not to put much money into the Ex.

Asher emphasized that the Fangs get to keep all the paper's revenues, but it's hard to see how they could build a strong paper with a limit on capital improvements and not a lot of outside cash.

And a collection of newspaper industry veterans assembled by Alioto and his partner in trying the case, Minneapolis lawyer Dan Shulman, have all said that a publisher would need a minimum of $250 million in subsidies over five years to get the Examiner going as a true competitor to the Chron.

Another thing that raises doubts about the Fang deal is the fact that Reilly offered to take over the Examiner for a lower subsidy than the Fangs first proposed. Reilly did want control of some of the physical assets not included in the Fang deal, but he was never contacted to negotiate further.

And other bidders who had early on expressed interest in the Examiner were not informed that Hearst was willing to give the paper away and subsidize the new owner. Neither, of course, was the public.

Lie no. 6: The deal to give the 'Ex' to the Fangs was a business deal, pure and simple Hearst's motivation for working with the Fangs may be purely political.

It's no secret that the Fang family values its political connections — and no surprise that family members were willing to use those connections to help them gain control of the Examiner. But until the antitrust trial began, no one knew that those connections were an explicit part of the Fangs' deal to buy the Ex.

A Dec. 14 memo written by Asher after talks with Fang attorney David Balbanian details the family's initial proposal to take over the Examiner.

The Fangs asked for a subsidy of $35 million a year for six years, a settlement of their long-running suit against the Ex over the contract to print the city's legal notices, and a guarantee that Hearst wouldn't distribute a free paper. In exchange, the memo says, "the Fangs would use their extensive political connections to assist us in completing our purchase of the Chronicle."

(Hearst never agreed to refrain from distributing a free paper.)

On the stand May 4, Asher admitted that the offer of political help was a consideration, though "not a very significant one," in Hearst's decision to subsidize the Fangs with up to $66 million over three years. On May 5 Asher also said that Hearst was responding to "encouragement" from several investigative agencies to sell the Examiner when Hearst entered the agreement.

And some point out that the subsidy will last three years — until the end of Brown's term in office.

One of the most enduring images from the trial was the sight of the lawyers for the three newspapers — the Chron, the Ex, and the Independent — all sitting together around a table. You have to wonder about any situation that puts Hearst Corporation, Chronicle Publishing, and the Fang family on the same team.

The motives of the person who brought this antitrust suit — real estate developer and former mayoral candidate Clint Reilly — aren't so clear. But he's certainly not doing it for money — rumors have him spending at least a million dollars on the trial.

And with all the newspaper lawyers scratching each others' backs in an effort to make more and more money, nobody but Reilly and his lawyers were in the courtroom to represent the public. ♦

HANGIN' 'EM HIGH IN THE CITY

Political corruption, vigilantes, and ultraviolence in 1850s San Francisco. By John Marr

San Francisco holds a unique position in the annals of American do-it-yourself justice. Although not the deadliest (the Montana Vigilantes of 1884 hold the record with 35 executions), not only did San Francisco's two Committees of Vigilance (1851 and 1856) popularize the term vigilante, but the 1856 committee was also the largest in U.S. history.

Vigilante justice, or as more genteel chroniclers prefer, the "popular tribunal," has a long and colorful, if less than respectable, history in the United States. From the "Regulators" of colonial South Carolina to the "Bald Knobbers" of Gilded Age Missouri, there has been no shortage of allegedly public-spirited citizens indulging in the peculiarly American irony of upholding the law by flouting its most basic precepts.

Unfortunately, sorting out the truth about vigilante movements is a little like untangling the situation in the Middle East; one person's vigilante is another person's terrorist. The widely varying accounts of San Francisco's vigilance movements, especially the 1856 committee, are enough to make anyone start wondering whether car accidents are really accidental.

It all began with a simple robbery in 1851. California had just been granted statehood, and the wild boom of the gold rush had subsided. San Francisco, the new state's largest city, was evolving from a frontier boomtown into a major metropolis. The bulk of the population of 30,000 was clustered in the downtown area. Portsmouth Square ("the Plaza") was the center of town; South of Market was punctuated by sand dunes, and the Mission was an isolated outpost, four miles from the town proper.

Late on the evening of Feb. 19, a pair of men clubbed the owner of a dry goods store on Montgomery Street and made off with $1,600. Even though the owner lived, people, or at least the newspapers, were apoplectic; the Alta California called it "one of the most bare-faced and audacious robberies to which the annals of our country give a history."

Police arrested two suspects almost immediately. But this did not calm the populace. A courtroom mob at the preliminary hearing had to be driven back at bayonet point. A series of mass meetings followed, culminating in the formation of a committee to try the pair. Ironically, this extralegal court ended in a hung jury. The suspects were nevertheless duly convicted three weeks later in an official court of law. To compound the irony, one of the prisoners was a victim of mistaken identity. The real robber, James Stuart, wasn't caught until weeks later.

Then, to make matters worse, on May 3 a fire broke out in a paint shop on Portsmouth Square and swept through the city, leveling almost three-quarters of the town. The fire was widely believed to be the work of Australian ex-cons who lived men under Brannan's leadership met on the night of June 9 to adopt a constitution. One hundred men, mainly merchants and other well-heeled types, were sworn in the following evening.

The committee tasted blood almost immediately. Less than an hour after the inaugural meeting, two members apprehended an Australian named John Simpton with a stolen cash box. The committee hastily reconvened. After one member announced, "Gentlemen, as I understand it, we are here membership would eventually total some 700 members, including Joshua Norton (the future Emperor Norton of legend) and James King of William (more on him later). Meanwhile, the opposing Law and Order Party rallied around David Broderick, head of the Democratic machine and former state senator.

Later that month the vigilantes established headquarters, complete with jail cells, on Battery between California and Pine. They started regular street patrols. Apprehended suspects were either turned over to the police or tried by the committee. When another major fire leveled a dozen blocks on June 22, the committee was there, flogging one looter and offering a $5,000 reward for the arsonists. (Other looters were less fortunate; the police shot two, and non-vigilante mobs strung up two others.)

The committee's activities peaked with the arrest of the aforementioned James Stuart. On July 11 several vigilantes marched their prize catch down Market Street and hanged him on the wharf before an appreciative audience of 3,000. The only attempted official interference came from the coroner, who was told, "By God, you don't get through till that fellow's a fit subject for your administration."

As summer wore on, crime dropped and the vigilantes turned more and more of their victims over to the police. The beginning of the end came when Gov. John McDougal engineered a spectacular rescue of two prisoners from committee headquarters; he stood lookout as the sheriff and a deputy grabbed the prisoners (the mayor was at the reins of the getaway carriage!) early on Aug. 20. The rescue threw the committee into an uproar. Although it managed to get its prisoners back, it had to sneak them out of the jail and hang them hastily from the windows of its second-floor headquarters. It was not the action of a movement enjoying broad popular support.

In September the committee voted to suspend active operations. Its last significant action was to nominate a nonpartisan slate of candidates for office. All were elected. And thus San Francisco became a well-governed city, free of crime and corruption.

At least until 1856. History's verdict on the 1856 committee is far more mixed. To some the 1856 vigilantes were public-spirited citizens seeking to clean up a corrupt government and in "Sydney Town," at the base of Telegraph Hill — a section untouched by fire. More fires of suspicious origin, accompanied by looting, followed. Crime began to rise and the jails overflowed.

Into this unstable climate stepped Samuel Brannan, a crooked Mormon bishop turned real estate speculator with plans for a "Committee of Vigilance." A group of about 40 to hang a man," it got down to business. A trial was held. Simpton made it easy. He refused to testify in his defense, and his sole witness denied ever knowing him. The committee hanged him in a chaotic scene on Portsmouth Square a few hours later.

The following days saw mass meetings, both for and against the committee. The merchant classes and the newspapers supported the vigilantes;

features politics and culture

a crime-plagued city; to others they were a vicious Know-Nothing nativist mob intent on cleansing San Francisco of Irish Catholics.

The ball began rolling Nov. 17, 1855, when gambler Charles Cora shot and killed U.S. Deputy Marshal William Richardson outside a saloon. Many believed this was an egregious flouting of the law by an amoral gambler; many others saw it as an act of self-defense against a drunk, notoriously ill-tempered marshal out to avenge a personal insult. Not only did the newspapers prefer the former explanation but they also expressed little faith that the legal system would render justice in the case.

Leading the charge against the legal system was newspaper publisher James King of William (the "of William" bit, referring to his father, William King, was to distinguish him from the other James Kings of the world) and his San Francisco Bulletin. He added calls for mob action targeted at Cora to his usual editorials abusing all Democrats, attacking his journalistic foes, and daring anyone to take a shot at him. He even requested potential assailants to confine attacks to his walk home. "Others will not be injured and in case we fall our house is but a few hundred yards beyond ... and the cemetery not much further." Yup, they practiced a ballsier brand of journalism in those days.

King's flung gauntlet was picked up by James Casey, publisher of the pro-Democrat weekly Herald, when King published a story about Casey's term in Sing Sing prison. On the afternoon of May 14, 1856, Casey waylaid King at the corner of Montgomery and Washington and shot him once in the shoulder. He later explained his restraint: "Seeing he did not fire back and believing him to be a dunghill, I did not shoot again."

That's when the shit hit the fan. Within three hours mass meetings sprang up and a new Committee of Vigilance was formed, under the stewardship of William Coleman, a veteran of the 1851 committee. Although many 1851 members refused to reactivate, the new committee would quickly outstrip its predecessor in sheer size, eventually growing to more than 6,000 members, complete with cavalry and artillery regiments. Although it preferred to call its 41 Sacramento St. headquarters Fort Vigilance, the eight-foot-high sandbag breastworks surrounding the building quickly earned it the popular nickname Fort Gunnybags.

On May 16, Gov. Neely Johnson visited Fort Gunnybags and hammered out an agreement with the vigilantes for Casey to be tried by a neutral judge, with the committee overseeing the jury selection. This didn't stop a major force of vigilantes from marching to the jail two days later, pointing their cannons at the door, and demanding the turnover of Cora and Casey. The jailers, facing what were apparently the only cannons in the city, had no choice.

The two men were tried at Fort Gunnybags. Both proceedings were bedeviled by details that always muddle up amateur jurisprudence. The vigilante jury hung on the question of Cora's guilt, while Casey's murder trial was hamstrung by the fact that King wasn't quite dead yet. Luckily, King came through May 20, done in as much by bad doctoring as by his injury. A hasty change to their rules about jury convictions fixed Cora, and voilà! They had two convicted killers to hang from the windows of Fort Gunnybags May 22 as James King of William's funeral procession wound up Sacramento Street.

Throughout the summer the committee ran, depending on your perspective, either an uplifting crusade or a reign of terror. Its primary target was Broderick and his Democratic machine, whom the committee accused of corruption, ballot-box stuffing, and wholesale looting of the city treasury. And what the hell — it probably wasn't too far from the truth.

Many of its targets were veteran Boston ward heelers and Tammany Hall hacks.

Politics was a contact sport in those days. On Election Day both parties got out the muscle along with the vote. Undoubtedly, many of the vigilantes' targets were guilty as charged. But were the vigilantes interested in eliminating ballot-box stuffing in general or just Irish Catholic Democrat stuffing in particular?

Excitement peaked that summer when California Supreme Court Chief Justice David Terry stabbed a vigilante as he was trying to exercise one of his committee's "warrants." The vigilantes promptly arrested Terry, putting themselves in a quandary. On the one hand, they could scarcely ignore a murderous assault on one of their own. But stringing up the highest jurist in the state was not to be taken lightly. Luckily, the injured vigilante lived, and "attempted murder" was no crime under the committee constitution. Terry was quietly released Aug. 7. This move may have been unpopular with the general membership, but it was for the best. Terry would kill the vigilantes' arch nemesis, Daniel Broderick, in a duel three years later.

As the Terry imbroglio bubbled — even back in those days there was no shortage of antigovernment wackos who could think of no sight quite so thrilling as a Supreme Court justice dangling from a lamppost — the committee's work continued. A steady stream of "criminals," primarily Irish Catholic Democrats, were deported from the state. The committee staged its second (and last) set of executions July 30. Things were clearly getting desperate. One man was convicted for complicity in an obscure 1854 killing — not only had he been previously cleared in a more legitimate tribunal but the actual killer had long since been hanged legitimately. The other was a vigilante himself, who had shot a real estate broker in a hotel lobby confrontation. The pair were hanged on a special set of gallows on Davis Street before an excited crowd of thousands.

The committee disbanded less than three weeks later, announcing that its mission had been accomplished. Its final score: four men hanged, all for murder; 26 men banished, mainly Irish Catholics for corruption-related offenses. The committee bowed from the scene after a grand parade near South Park and a gala in Fort Gunnybags, where, according to accounts, "the little girl played with the hangman's noose and the maiden she danced with the hangman." The committees' legacy was their own political machine, which, according to some historians, governed San Francisco cleanly for many years afterward.

Yes, San Francisco had been saved, if not from crime and corruption, at least from Democratic machine politics. And of course, these days we're much too civilized for those sorts of 19th-century shenanigans. ♦

Marilyn Wann: "I would love it if everyone used the f-word. Fat!"

Fat power

In the streets, between the sheets. By Nancy Evelyn Gold

A couple of weeks ago I received an e-mail with the subject "History needs YOU!!!" It came from none other than Marilyn Wann, publisher of the zine Fat!SO and author of the book of the same name. Her e-mail announced that the San Francisco Board of Supervisors could become the fourth legislative body in the United States to outlaw discrimination based on height and weight. Only the cities of Santa Cruz, Calif., and Washington, D.C., and the state of Michigan currently have such laws.

Wann's call went out to the fat, the short, and the tall of San Francisco to come to a hearing on May 3 before the board's Finance and Labor Committee. The committee would vote on whether San Francisco's antidiscrimination code should be amended to include discrimination in housing, education, health care, and employment based on height and weight.

Before your political correctness alarms go off and you deluge the Bay Guardian with hate mail, I should point out that fat activists have reclaimed the word fat much in the same way the gay community has reclaimed queer. As Wann would later say during the hearing, "I would love it if everyone used the f-word. Fat!"

The new law was not a harebrained idea pulled out of thin — nay, fat — air. The catalyst for this revolution was the icon of all things thin: the health-club chain 24 Hour Fitness. Some may remember the SoMa billboard with a drawing of an alien proclaiming, "When they come ... they'll eat the fat ones first." Wann organized a protest of the billboard on Feb. 16, 1999. The protest put a strong light on the issue of unapologetic fat discrimination and the industry that profits off of it. By June 10 Wann and other fat-positive folks were at a hearing of San Francisco's Human Rights Commission that ended in the commission's unanimous recommendation that San Francisco's antidiscrimination laws be amended.

On May 3 of this year, almost a year after that hearing, the differently sized (short, tall, or fat) of San Francisco had their day to try to change our corner of the world.

Gathered in the hallway outside the meeting room were some of the most vocal of the Bay Area fat community and some folks that just thought it was time for action. Before the hearing, I had a chance to talk to Sondra Solovay, J.D., author of Tipping the Scales of Justice, a sourcebook for fighting weight-based discrimination. Solovay pointed out that the costs to business for meeting the requirements of the new law would be "negligible." Basically, the law would mean businesses would have to purchase some larger or armless chairs to accommodate their large patrons. (It would later be noted by a speaker during the hearing that many businesses, such as the new AMC 1000 Van Ness, are already providing seating that accommodates larger folks.)

Solovay went on to point out that the cost to society of weight discrimination is high: Under-employing or not employing the fat burdens our social programs. During the hearing

Laura Fraiser, author of Losing It: America's Obsession with Weight and the Industry That Feeds on It, said, "People don't get fat because they're poor; they get poor because they're fat."

Discrimination against the fat can be overt. Solovay cited instances in which fat people were told, "You don't have front-office appearance" or "I'll hire you if you lose thirty pounds." Weight discrimination is currently socially and, without legislation, legally acceptable. Other forms of discrimination, such as sexism or racism, are not only illegal but are now not socially acceptable. Solovay also pointed out that "weight discrimination goes hand in hand with discrimination based on race, sex, age, and sexual orientation," adding that 25 percent of white Americans are fat, while 36 percent of African American folks are.

As the hearing approached, the halls filled with people of all sizes, including Ricardo Gil, a dwarf from the East Bay. Before Gil became a magnet for the increasing number of TV reporters, we had a chance to talk. Speaking of his wife's experiences looking for work, he said, "She felt she shouldn't look for work because she would not get jobs." He talked of her disappointment at being turned down for job after job. "People think that dwarfs are funny and generally work in entertainment." Gil is retired from a federal government job, which, he pointed out, was easier to get owing to the government's own strict adherence to antidiscrimination laws such as the Americans with Disabilities Act. Although covered by the ADA, dwarfs are still often told that they can't do jobs because of reach issues and are denied positions where they would be seen by the public.

Neither the fat nor the small have outward appearances that match what most consider the norm. Both are also looked upon as oddities and fodder for jokes. This was evident as every TV camera turned to photograph the largest of the crowd making their way to their seats — some chairs with arms, others without. Would a thin person sitting in a comfortable chair make good TV?

Board president Tom Ammiano kicked the hearing off by providing a hypothetical example of a potential renter with great references, a dot-com salary, a trust fund, and an excellent credit rating being denied housing because the landlord wanted someone neat and, because of the person's weight, "they don't look neat." He then provided a similar example of an overqualified job hunter. Ammiano's light and comedic delivery wonderfully disarmed the room while driving home the incredibly important point that the fat citizens of San Francisco are being openly discriminated against every day.

Larry Brinkman of the Human Rights Commission noted before the committee that "adding these categories acts as a deterrent. It's preventative." Brinkman also asserted that city contractors would not be able to discriminate anywhere in their companies, anywhere in the United States. That meant that the law created in San Francisco would have national impact.

Discrimination in medical care became a recurring theme. Pat Lyons told a story of a friend who was told she was "too fat to get a pap smear." She said that this woman had not had one in 10 years. Margarita Rossi told of her personal experience trying to get help for a gynecologic problem. Her nurse practitioner at Kaiser focused instead on her weight — "Haven't you ever wanted to get in shape?" — and did not examine her. The story evoked gasps from the crowd. If it hadn't been for Rossi's strong will and ability to pay to see another doctor, she would never have found out she had a serious infection that needed treatment.

Debora Iyall, lead singer of the band Romeo Void, stepped up to the podium and told of a boss who once told her, "You shouldn't leave this job — you're not going to get another one 'cause you're fat."

Elena Escalera spoke of the impact fat discrimination has on children. Fat students stand out, especially when they can't fit into school uniforms. This discrimination sabotages the child's education potential. The rates of fat students making it into college are very low.

Solovay played a recording of an ad run by the weight-loss surgery clinic Pacific Bariatric. The ad features mock phone calls in which people are turned down for housing and jobs because of their weight. The gist of the ad is that you have the power to stop this discrimination (provided you're willing to get surgery and have the money to do so). "People shouldn't have to go under the knife to find an apartment," Solovay said.

The public sees fat people as lazy, as people who have no self-control, people who only need a little willpower to overcome their weight. The reality is that for most, weight is a genetic issue that simply can't be overcome. These are the same attitudes and stereotypes that are labeled racist when applied to African Americans. And yet these attitudes are drilled into the fat of America every day — in the media, in the workplace, in school, in the doctor's office, and with every yell of "Hey, fatso" in the street. They become ingrained in the psyches of fat people and affect every part of their lives, including the most intimate ones.

Hanne Blank was in town to promote her new book, Big Big Love: A Sourcebook on Sex for People of Size (Greenery Press). Blank wasn't able to make it to the hearing, but I had a chance to talk to her about how internalized fat phobia affects the sexual lives of fat people. "Everybody assumes that no one is attracted to fat people, but that's statistically and circumstantially wrong," Blank said. She thinks that some people are "Bisexual," people attracted to people of any size provided that they meet their other criteria."

While researching her book, Blank found that people who grow up fat normally don't enjoy sex for a couple of years after they become sexually active, possibly because they can't get over the idea that someone could be interested in them. Fat people tend to postpone sex or anything for which they have to take off clothes, since there is so much fear about showing their bodies. Even folks who have overcome internalized fat phobia still have little spasms of self-consciousness.

Blank also found that many doctors are surprised when fat women ask for birth control, as if the women couldn't possibly need it. Some doctors have used birth control as blackmail to get their patients to lose weight. A friend of Blank's went to her student health service with abnormal bleeding. When she complained that the speculum hurt, the doctor responded, "This can't hurt unless you're a virgin, and maybe you are, because guys don't go for girls like you."

Blank's book is a soup-to-nuts guide to sex for fat people of both genders and all orientations. She pointed out that men have assumed it's a women's book because they look at weight as a women's issue — but men often have the same concerns with fat that women do.

Wann, Blank, Solovay, and many, many others are now refusing to be the victims and are fighting with increasing force for fat civil rights. ♦

Fuck the FDA

On May 3, 2000, the Food and Drug Administration approved what news outlets are calling a "device" that is intended to help women suffering from impotence. Translation: there is now a government-approved piece of technology that supposedly will allow women to have orgasms more often. It costs roughly $400 and requires a doctor's prescription.

I'm so pissed off right now that I'm imagining the introduction to an X-Files episode instead of writing my column. Menacing music embeds a single image that swims up out of the muzzy darkness. It's a drab door among thousands of others, buried in a drab government agency. Stenciled lettering on it reads, Department of Female Orgasm Technology. Mulder has discovered that after years of secret, nefarious testing on oppressed housewives and coercively inbred little girls, the government has come up with a highly sophisticated machine to solve the female orgasm problem.

The clit pump. Yep, just like those stupid, useless penis pumps that you see advertised in the back of the Spectator and Playboy. Except smaller, and with a softer suction cup. The idea is that you pump your clit full of blood with the "device," and then sexual arousal ensues.

Government savages! With all the technological knowledge they could have harnessed in Silicon Valley, all the historical knowledge of thousands of doctors at their disposal, all the sexperts available to them in San Francisco alone, they come up with this? Even an armchair techno-historian could have told them that the vibrator was one of the very first electrical devices — used prolifically in the late 19th century — for a damn good reason.

Jessie Moss-Burton, marketing manager at Good Vibrations, a sex-toy store, told me that her store had stopped selling clit pumps a while ago because "there are so many other, better products for aiding female orgasm." Yeah. Like vibrators. But after the FDA announcement, which Moss-Burton called "comical," the store will of course start selling the devices again within the week.

Kids, let this be a small object lesson for you in how so-called scientific and technological progress works. First, the government gets wind of some sort of "problem" involving women and sexual functioning. Those addled bureaucrats have seen Bob Dole on TV, so it clicks: this must be the female version of impotence, a thing they can all understand. And some ill-educated dork back in the 1940s or some other crazy time period had already gotten FDA approval to use penis pumps on men who experienced impotence.

If it works on men, it must work on women. Right? Well, sure, if you're a government bureaucrat. The whole thing presents like an engineering problem, an issue of mere hydraulics. If penis = clitoris, then penis pump = clit pump. And that kind of symmetry is comforting. It makes logical sense, just like the idea of Earth being at the center of the universe. So, since the clit pump can in fact technically cause clitoral erection and is also physically quite safe, the FDA approves it.

The thing is, FDA approval means so much more than it would seem on the surface. Remember, this is the only government-approved aid for female orgasm (although the word "orgasm" isn't used; instead we speak of "curing female sexual dysfunction"). In effect, since there are no other such recommended devices, FDA approval of the clit pump comes to have the status of government recommendation.

Since most women don't live in places where comparison shopping for sex toys is an option, the clit pump is now what they think of when they say to themselves, "I need to get myself some orgasm technology." After all, if it's government approved, it must be good. It must work. And by extension, other sexual aids are probably bad; stupid things made for the unenlightened.

Do you see where I'm going with this? When a powerful institution — like, say, the government, or a giant software corporation — "approves" of a particular router or a particular Internet service, its approval is so widely reported and discussed that other possible options never come to light. Maybe that option is a vibrator (only 10 bucks at your local sex-toy store!), or a faster router (there is life after Cisco).

And let me just add that I've been conducting my own personal benchmarks on female orgasm technology for the past 15 years. One hundred percent of tests indicate that the clit pump performs with far less accuracy, reliability, and speed than any average vibrator applied to the clitoral region.

In other words, fuck the FDA. It's the right thing to do. ❖

Women's self-defense classes

As women, most of us go about our daily lives expecting the best from people but not all prepared to deal with the worst. From assertiveness training to down and dirty street fighting, this guide provides some Bay Area resources to keep you on your feet and help you defend yourself. Office addresses are listed; call for class locations and times.

San Francisco

Carley Gracie Jiu-Jitsu Academy teaches Brazilian jujitsu, a style of self-defense that integrates Japanese jujitsu with practical-minded street fighting. The school emphasizes ground fighting for rape prevention, street fighting, and controlling an assailant. The lead instructor is Carley Gracie, an eighth-degree red and black belt and son of Carlos Gracie, original creator of Brazilian jujitsu. Class size is limited to 12 students, and classes are ongoing. The cost is $170 a month, with discounts for full-time students. 30 Seventh St., S.F. (415) 788-0454, www.gracie.com.

Crime Prevention Solutions teaches streetwise self-defense with a focus on understanding the power dynamics in an assault and training students to gain control of a bad situation and get out. Students learn verbal assertiveness, psychological responses, and physical techniques through role-plays. CPS also has a date rape prevention program for junior and senior high school boys and girls. Instructor Tamera White has a background in rape prevention education and has trained women and teens since 1985. Course fees are on a sliding scale. 100 First St., Suite 115, S.F. (415) 648-9300, www.candidtamera.com.

The Defending Ourselves School of Self Defense offers comprehensive training in safety awareness, verbal assertiveness, and physical techniques to respond to violence. The curriculum is drawn from professional police and military combatives adapted for civilian use in street fighting. The instructors are experienced counselors and have trained more than 7,000 women. Course sizes are limited to 12 people. The basic course costs $300 and runs for 12 weeks with 36-plus hours of instruction. Women's Building of San Francisco, 3543 18th St., S.F. (415) 979-8778, www.selfdefenseschool.com.

San Francisco Women Against Rape runs free self-defense classes for a number of in-need groups of women. All the classes hit on the basics of emotional, verbal, and physical self-defense. Group-specific classes take place at intervals throughout the year and provide outreach in different languages (including Spanish and Mandarin) to the physically and developmentally disabled, drug users, homeless people, and sex workers. Clients are also referred to in-house counselors when necessary. Class size averages 20 students; the longer classes last four sessions (10 to 12 hours). 1841 Market, Third Floor, S.F. (415) 861-2024, ext. 304. Crisis line: (415) 647-7273. www.sfwar.org

The Women's Safety Project is a nonprofit that teaches physical, verbal, and psychological defense skills to women and girls. Classes are limited to 16 students. Call for details on classes open to public viewing. The Level 1 course, for basic defense against a single, unarmed assailant, costs $150 for 8 weeks (approximately 24 hours of instruction). John Sims Center, 1519 Mission, S.F. (415) 395-9895, www.safetyproject.org.

Bay Area

Bay Area Model Mugging offers teens and women training in scrappy street fighting and sexual assault prevention, and works with individuals who may have posttraumatic stress syndrome from previous assaults. The teen courses emphasize boundary setting, response to peer pressure, and fending off date rape. Classes are available in San Francisco, the East Bay, and Redwood City, are offered on weekends, and are limited to 16 students. BMM provides early bird and buddy discounts and has a scholarship support program for low-income women and at-risk teens. Women's classes cost $495 for 25 hours. Teen classes cost $160 for nine hours of training. 629 Blair Island Rd., Suite 104, Redwood City. (650) 366-3631 or 800-77-FIGHT, www.bamm.org.

Laurel Jijitsu teaches jujitsu as a martial art and applies it to self-defense. Girls' classes (for ages 6 to 11) are available for groups and stress tactics of awareness, avoidance, and ways to enlist the help of others. Two-hour classes for mothers and daughters are also available. Classes are usually limited to 15 students. The women's self-defense class is a six-week class for $60 (12 hours instruction). The girls' self-defense class ranges from two to eight hours of instruction and costs $20 to $40. Regular jujitsu costs $45 a month for women and $25 a month for girls (approximately 12 to 32 hours a month). 4148 MacArthur, Oakl. (510) 530-5043, www.ajff.org/dojos/laurel.

Pro-Tect Self Defense offers short-term self-defense training for community, church, and low-income groups. Instructor David Hallford goes over the basics: the use of nonviolent defense tactics (such as psychological and verbal defusing responses) and street-fighting moves. He emphasizes awareness and response to invasions of space. The classes involve role-playing scenarios and full-contact padded-assailant fighting. Hallford has black belts in Japanese karate and Chinese kempo. The curriculum covers seven to nine hours of training (one and a half hours a class) for a sliding-scale fee. 2030 Franklin, Suite 222, Oakl. (510) 893-0877. (Alison Hawkes)

If only he'd change

Q: I love my boyfriend, even though he's acting secretly lately, but even after we've spent a lot of time together he still can't openly and directly communicate with me. It's fucking annoying! We've discussed it, and he hasn't improved. This makes us grow apart more and more each day. Another thing, my family and friends would kill me if they knew I was dealing with him after all he's put me through. Also, the sex ain't that great, and I'm tired of faking it. What shall I do?

A: Let's see. You're faking sexual satisfaction, and you say he won't communicate openly with you? He's secretive, uncommunicative, he's put you through a lot of unpleasantness, your family and friends disapprove of him, you're sneaking around to see him, the sex is bad, and you love him. What is wrong with this picture? Time to sit down and have a heart-to-heart conversation with yourself before you approach him. What would have to change to make this relationship work for you? Are they likely or possible changes? How many of them are changes you can or would make? Once you know the answers to those questions, then it's time to talk to him openly and directly. If you can't speak to him in that way, if he can't hear you, if the two of you can't come up with some ways to improve things for both of you, then what you've got is a highly imperfect relationship that you must decide to continue or end.

Q: After a few years of therapy I thought that my head was sort of doing OK. Just lately a good friend (whom I've always been attracted to) has a girlfriend, and we're all good friends. Recently my good friend and I made out, and I believe that we could end up having sex. Nobody knows we messed around, so keeping quiet isn't the issue. I guess I just want to know how terrible a person I am.

A: How terrible are you? (This sounds like an old late-night TV routine.) Why is it terrible to make out with a friend, or even have sex with him? Is it that he already has a main squeeze? If you feel you're betraying your friendship with his girlfriend, you can certainly speak with her, but it's his job to do so first or you would be outing him to clear your own conscience. Ask your friend what he wants to do about this, tell him what you want to do about it, and hope that each of you behaves honorably in your own eyes and in each other's.

Q: I am 23, and recently my first girlfriend broke up with me. The reason was I couldn't satisfy her sexually. I have a small penis, less than three and a half inches when erect, and my balls are small too. I feel like there's something wrong with my hormones. I'd never had a relationship, because of my penis size, and now I don't have courage to go for another after being disappointed in my first relationship. I have lost all hope. I'm tired of living with a small penis. I want to have a normal penis of six inches, and I'm willing to spend for it. Should I consult a urologist or an endocrinologist to get my hormones checked, or should I see a plastic surgeon? Could you recommend me a good doctor? Please don't say that this is a psychological problem and I'm normal, because I know I'm not.

A: No, you are right. Three and a half inches when erect is small. It's not the end of the world, however, and you are perfectly capable of satisfying most women with what you've got once you learn how to be a good lover. By all means consult a urologist first. Ask him or her about a hormone assay or an endocrinologist referral. The way to find a good doctor is to phone around — teaching hospitals, suggestions of other medical personnel, professional journals. Once you find out what's what physically, spend some time and money finding out how to make the most of what you have. Two of the most exciting lovers I ever had owned smaller than usual penises. They were exciting not in spite of their physical endowment, but probably due to the efforts they made because of it.

Q: I know about gay men and lesbians, but are there really straight women who like to give oral sex to men and straight men who actually enjoy giving oral sex to women?

A: Really and actually, yes there are. What's more, there are lesbians and gay men who don't enjoy giving or getting oral sex. Isn't life amazing? ♦

I dream of Turkey

By Joel Schalit

I looked at my watch. It was two o'clock in the morning. I couldn't tell whether it was a dream or not. But I could remember telling her that I wasn't interested in having sex.

Yet, there she was, her beautiful body exhausted, covered in sweat. It was then that I realized what had happened. I wasn't dreaming. I'd been raped while I was sleeping.

As I extricated myself from Fatima's postorgasmic embrace, I looked down and saw that at least she'd had the courtesy to put a rubber on. I grabbed my T-shirt and used it to pry the condom off.

"What an idiot," I whispered to myself. "I should have never agreed to sleep here." But Fatima exhorted me to at least crash on her couch. It was only our second date, and I'd insisted on playing it chaste.

Fatima had cooked us a traditional Turkish dinner of tripe soup and regaled me with tales of being locked in a closet as a child, while being forced to read the collected works of Marx and Engels by her older sister, a Communist Party member. I couldn't believe my fortune. Of all the things to have happen my first semester in graduate school, 2,000 miles away from home. And to think, the woman who raped me was writing her dissertation on the war in Bosnia.

My head was spinning. I had to get the hell out of there. I slowly slipped my pants on and laced my boots. I closed the door and made my way toward my truck. As I drove down Bloor Street, I took note of all the shuttered storefronts lining the sidewalk: Italian cafés, Jamaican roti parlors, Arab restaurants, Russian kitsch vendors, Portuguese bakeries, and anglophone doughnut shops.

As comforting as this inclusive display of immigrant capitalism was to me, a perennially nomadic Israeli American on his sixth country in 25 years, this was still no Silk Road. I had this sensation that within all of this ethnic pluralism there was still no place for me. Screw Canada, I thought. Everyone continues to get taken advantage of here. Not just metaphorically. Literally.

As I turned left onto Ossington Street, my lips started to tremble. I fumbled through a bag full of cassettes that I'd brought out from Berkeley and stuck the first thing I could find in the tape deck.

All of a sudden New Bomb Turks singer Eric Davidson began to scream, "We bang our heads on the ground, what a crazy sound!"

I got totally unnerved by the coincidence. Panicking, I hit the eject button so hard I almost broke my finger. Nothing's going to provide any catharsis tonight, I concluded. As I opened the door to my house, the silence terrified me. I felt horribly alone. I crawled into bed, wrapped the sheets tightly around myself, and tried to stop myself from shivering.

I had to attend a lecture on fascism at nine the next morning. But now I was scared of going. Fatima would be there. I lay in bed thinking about what had just happened. "Israelis and Turks are brothers," I recalled her saying over dinner. "We are neither Middle Easterners, nor are we Europeans. That's what unites us both. This is why we have to stick together."

I wondered if Fatima really understood how such a feeling of Eurasian collegiality played itself out in the real world. Wasn't what just transpired an example of what she was talking about? Didn't the Turks occupy Palestine for almost 500 years? All of a sudden I became overcome by nausea. I got up and vomited. Finally, after expelling Fatima's tripe, I fell asleep.

I awoke at 11 a.m. Looking up at the clock, it was clear I'd missed the lecture. I was relieved. How could I have faced her? I walked into my office and noticed the blinking of the answering machine. There were four messages, three from Fatima. The first one asked if I had gotten home OK. She explained that she hadn't heard me leave and wanted to know why I had. She sounded a bit concerned. In her second message, she talked about how she wanted to go to Rosh Hashanah services together at a local temple. In the third one, Fatima told me that she knew I was home and was on her way over.

I looked at my watch. She'd be arriving any minute. I started to shake again. I took a deep breath and swore I'd tell her off. The last message turned out to be from my father, who, to make matters even more awkward, had called from a hotel in Istanbul to wish me a happy New Year.

"Yoel," he said. "Your brother told me you were going out on a date with a Turkish woman. I hope it went really well. You know, Turks are a really noble people. When King Ferdinand kicked us out of Spain, the sultan took us in. The Ottomans were much better at ruling Palestine than the British ever were."

Five years later I found myself flying over the Anatolian peninsula on a family business trip. My father pointed out the Bosphorus to me, explaining that this was where Europe ended and the Middle East formally began. I flashed back to that terrible night in Toronto and got a little freaked out. Seeing the expression on my face, my father touched my arm. "Look at it this way, child," he said. "Instead of watching them cross the waterway to colonize us, this time it's we who are soliciting them." ❖

Sunset boulevard

By Paul Reidinger

Picture (if you can) a warm spring evening. The westering sun casts a soft peach light. The air is blue and still, disturbed only slightly by the crowd milling around the handsome facade of Cafe for All Seasons. The restaurant doesn't take reservations, which could be an issue if it were raining or foggy or cold. But it isn't. It's mild and lovely: milling weather. For once, milling isn't a bother. The scene is, as they used to say in the 1970s, mellow.

Restaurant and crowd share a certain retro peninsular mellowness. The original Cafe was a favorite in San Mateo for years, and its city sibling would not look out of place in the heart of Menlo Park. It wears a face of weathered brick and white French doors with shiny brass fixtures; the partly enclosed entryway is set with pots of creeping ivy and vaguely belle époque-style park benches, to ease the wait while tables are readied. From the outside, the restaurant has something of the postwar California look — casual, comfortable, but not sloppy — you might find in Sunset Magazines of the 1960s and 1970s.

The mood of the street enhances the sense of déjà vu. Despite the huge changes that have swept across the city in the past few years, the Sunset neighborhood of West Portal remains a coherent urban village, and its eponymous central boulevard is still a functional Main Street lined with not just restaurants but banks, coffee shops, a produce stand, and even (that rarity) a movie theater. It's a reassuringly polyglot setting for a reassuringly polyglot restaurant where everyone is welcome, from athletic, sunburned khaki-and-gingham couples in late middle age to grandparents with their teenage grandchildren to the bear pair in tight, faded Levis who, eyes aflutter with appraisal, were seated next to us one evening.

The menu at Cafe for All Seasons is not meant to, and will not, rock anybody's world. It's California comfort food, simply conceived and, for the most part, expertly prepared. The restaurant lives up to its name by making discreet nods to seasonality — baby artichoke hearts tossed with capellini ($11.95), along with mushrooms, Asiago, herbs, and chicken stock — and to such local specialties as petrale sole ($13.95), grilled and served with a classic lemony caper butter and a pile of crisp, fresh frites that would do Hayes Street Grill proud.

But that most American of combinations, meat and potatoes, is hardly a second-class citizen at Cafe. We ordered a beef tenderloin steak ($17.95) rare, and that's how it arrived, under a melting cap of herbed butter and beside a pile of fries. A cheeseburger ($9.95), on the other hand, took a too-leisurely turn on the grill and ended up well done instead of medium. But a thick slice of smoky, juicy Oregon pepper bacon ($1.95) on top did help limit the damage.

If there is a group that might face a bit of a struggle at Cafe for All Seasons, it would be vegetarians. The capellini, otherwise chockablock with vegetables, suffered from the taint of chicken stock. More suitable was a cream of mushroom soup ($3.95), smartly perfumed with tarragon and made with mushroom stock, while a potato-leek soup ($3.95) — chunky with bits of spud and carrot — tasted of vegetable rather than chicken broth. There's also a substantial crispy polenta, filling even in its $6.95 appetizer incarnation, napped with a sunny, summery tomato-basil ragout.

And, to make sure that people leave with the feeling they've gotten their money's worth, there's the dessert menu, a hit parade of rich, satisfying familiars (all $5.95). An angel food cake, dense and feather-light at the same time, like one of those miracle high-tech materials they make fighter planes from, swam in raspberry coulis under a cloud of whipped cream. A gravely rich chocolate brownie was cut like a slice of pie and served with a scoop of strawberry ice cream. For sheer decadence, though, it would be hard to beat the chocolate bruno espresso torte, a fudgy chocolate ganache mounted on a white chocolate-graham cracker crust, with chocolate sauce dribbled around the edges and a scattering of chocolate-covered espresso beans for a bittersweet accent — and that slight eyes-wide-open effect operagoers so often seem to be in search of.

Cafe for All Seasons isn't convenient to them, alas. It's one of those quintessential neighborhood spots that simultaneously shapes and is shaped by its environs and its patrons. ♦

I'm OK, you're OK?

The signature story of our times is the story without a hero, or heroine. Clinton-Lewinsky is the archetype: everybody looks, and is, bad, from the mendacious chief executive to the sex-twisted independent counsel to various congressional blowhards on all sides. The same principle is at work, slightly less sensationally, in our restaurant culture. Take a hungry, snippy customer and some overworked, flip staff, put them together, and you get a lurid, and not very edifying, glow of human fallibility.

Our unidentified customer, X, accompanied by spouse, drops in at a well-known vegetarian restaurant on a recent evening. It is cold and windy, the restaurant's windows are open, and the candle on X's table goes out. An ominous portent. Worse is that the server takes the Xs' orders without writing them down. I must say that, in my own experience, this happens far too often; is it showing off or laziness? Either way, it's like not fastening your seat belt: you'll probably get away with it, but if you don't, the consequences are likely to be very unpleasant, and it costs you so little to take the preventive step.

Naturally, the Xs' order goes astray. The kitchen never sees it, and an hour goes by with nothing arriving at their table except two slices of "greasy focaccia." After some consultations, it is determined that the order will have to be placed again. The restaurant offers profuse apologies, complimentary desserts, and some soup to be served immediately, but the Xs are too aggrieved (and out of their minds with hunger) to be mollified. They storm out — for burritos, most likely, then home to fire off some furious e-mail.

So far, I am with them. Letting an hour pass without checking on a table's order is negligence on the part of a restaurant's floor staff. An offer of soup and comped desserts is better than nothing, but the server should have immediately brought whatever food (and drink, alcohol being one of the great mollifiers) he or she could and made clear the whole meal would be comped.

But even if the wait staff screwed up, they hardly deserve to be called, in X's fragrant words, "chick," "drink lady," and "drinks-bitch." That's the language of a customer waiting to get self-righteously pissed off.

X's excoriation concludes on an apocalyptic note: "Needless to say, there will be no more [visits to this restaurant] for me or anybody I know. Good night!"

But I doubt the restaurant's staff is shedding any tears at the loss of a customer so laden with dark baggage.

Stick it

Made it out to the Sticklessness last Friday for my first Giants game of the new era (Expos 9, S.F. 3), thanks to the good graciousness of Buddy Boy Brick-House Burke, an all-around great guy who's also a bit of a vegetarian. So I take back everything I ever said about vegetarians, except for some of the things, inasmuch as some of them still apply to some vegetarians, such as "Vegetarians don't eat meat," and "Boy, they sure're dum!"

Come to think of it, Buddy Boy eats meat. I saw him. He ate a Polish sausage. But he used to be a vegetarian, I swear, until the great nation of Chile set him straight. So let's hear it for Chile! ...

Which reminds me: Did you know Crawdad de la Cooter was vegetarian when I met her? (Almost exactly four years and five days ago.) Not that I consider myself a great nation, by any stretch. Nor did I put any pressure on her, either — honest, ask anyone — she just witnessed up close what eating meat did for me, vis-à-vis bliss and enlightenment, and after 15 years on the wrong wagon, she jumped ship onto the right one. I remember it like it was four years and four days ago: We were camping. Stars, crickets. I was cooking chickens over an open fire. Then I was eating chickens, minding my own business, and she must've liked the looks of the look on my face, or the grease on my chin, 'cause she threw her tofu pups to the coyotes and started eating the chickens with me. After 15 years of chickenlessness, eating chickens made Crawdad have visions and just generally turned her life around. Now she's the happiest crustacean on the face of the earth, plus or minus having to put up with my shenanigans for, well, the rest of her livelong days, unless she kills me first. Excuse me ... ("Honey! Honey! Come smell this one!")

In any case, meat has momentum. Now, if every one of us could convince just one of them to eat just one pork chop this week, not only would there be no wars, but the world would be a safer and happier place for everyone — except maybe pigs. And they have it pretty bad as it is.

But why am I waxing dogmatico-conversionary when I could easily be talking sports? The Giants didn't look so good last Friday, although they've sure shaped up some since. As for their new digs ... Pac Bell Park looks too good for its own good, in my opinion. It's too nice, too squeaky, too perfect. Everyone seemed distracted by it, even the players. Maybe it just needs to be broken in a little, like a new glove. In the meantime, the game seems kind of incidental. I don't think anyone out of 40,000 people was actually paying attention to the game. I know I wasn't, but I had a good excuse. The lovely ladyperson in the seat in front of mine kept leaning forward to look over the railing, and I could see down her jeans. She was wearing a thong.

It's not polite to stare, I know, so I'd look away every once in a while. Or I tried to, anyway, and in this manner I witnessed some pitches. Balls. Strikes. Ground-outs. Runs. You know: baseball.

Speaking of hot dogs, seeing as how I accidentally wrote up the Coliseum a couple weeks ago, I'd be remiss in my duties as an equal-time, straight-shooting sportsfood journalist if I didn't now say a few fair words about the fare at the Sticklessness, foodwise: it sucked.

And I say this as one of the lucky fucks — thanks to the good graciousness of B.B.B.H.B. — who got their grubs brought to them by a club-level waitress-personish usherette. No kidding. There are menus sticking out of the cup holders! You check off what you want, they go get it for you; so, unlike everyone else, poor suckers, you don't have to suffer Pac Bell's purgatorial lines, trading two-and-a-half innings' worth of ball — or in my case, ass — for one lousy beer.

Speaking of which: Budweiser. Six bucks. That's nuts.

The hot dog ($3), oddly enough, had a grill mark on it, and probably would've been good if the bun weren't falling-apart stale. The cheeseburger ($6), an alleged half-pounder, tasted like something out of a vending machine, or a grade school-days "hot lunch" — which, you'd figure as much, I know, but I kind of remember the burgers out at Candlestick being not all that half-bad. And I know I know I know that the garlic fries ($4.50) have taken a definite dive. They were soggy and bland, compared with the good old days.

But what am I complaining about? I got in for free. And the view! If you can go, go. Enjoy the game. Watch the game. Just sneak in your beverages, is my advice, and get your grub around the corner at Happy Donuts. ❖

Pac Bell Park. Down by the water.

Shock of the new

Winter kept us warm, covering
Earth in forgetful snow, feeding
A little life with dried tubers.

T.S. Eliot
"The Wasteland"

After months of mellow comforting in the kitchen, slow roasting and braising to tease out the long-held sweetness of gnarly roots and tubers, spring arrives with a shock. It's the tremor of a chill breeze clattering through new green leaves, lifting the hair on your arms, racing between warm sun one day and scudding wind and clouds the next. So it goes in the garden and the market, as green shoots unfurl and bittersweet is the flavor of the hour.

Much is made of the new sweetness of baby fruits and vegetables: the sugary finger-long carrots, tiny English peas that pop like candy, crunchy sugar snap peas, skinny asparagus. Like the first warm sunshine, they taste the way freshly cut grass smells. But sharp and sour are what stir me out of my snug baked-potato den. From the earthy bitterness of dandelion and the pungent bite of green garlic and spring onions to the puckering astringency of sorrel, spring greens are meant to purge and purify. Literally, in many cases: before hothouse tomatoes and Guatemalan mangoes were available year-round, these vitamin-rich leafy greens arrived just in time to scour out metabolisms gone sluggish with starch. Roots were steeped for spring tonics; the leaves went in salads of all kinds. Not that a little grease didn't go far into making these dishes palatable; one of the most traditional dandelion salads dresses the greens with vinegar and hot bacon fat, with the bacon crumbled over the top. The heat "civilizes" the greens, wilting them down just enough to make them seem like food, not weeds. I've done the same thing with warm olive oil and balsamic vinegar, and it's delicious. Chopped and sautéed, dandelion greens can be used much like broccoli rabe; mix with sautéed garlic and a dab of anchovy paste and stir into orecchiette. Add fresh ground black pepper and a generous fistful of grated Romano or Parmesan cheese.

Lemony sorrel is called sourgrass for a good reason: the tender green leaves (which look a little like young flat-leaf spinach) are almost too tart to eat raw. Cut thinly into a chiffonade, however, they make a spring-vegetable ragout sparkle. I've scattered sorrel over a bowl of asparagus, favas, and fresh peas, pureed it with chicken stock and a glass of white wine to make a quick and elegant soup, mixed it into a frittata. Be warned, though: there is no way to cook sorrel without that lovely bright-green color turning a dull, yucky khaki. The flavor remains; only the prettiness fades.

Every year, I get excited by the fleeting appearance of fava beans, and every year, after a few bagfuls, I wonder if they're really worth the trouble. Favas have got to be one of the most labor-intensive vegetables; they're double-bagged, first in thick, foamy green pods and then in sealed white wrappers, both of which need to be laboriously removed before getting down to the sweet, nutty green legume itself. The big pod is always shucked off (although in Italy, very young and tender pods are often cut up and cooked along with the beans); whether or not to slit the thin white pods sealed around each bean is a matter of contention. The pods are bitter and can be tough; sliding them off is an endless pain, but the reward is unmitigated fava bliss. Smooth and nutty, mashed favas make a delectable crostini topping (add a spritz of lemon juice and a few curls of dry jack or salty sheep's-milk Romano cheese). Whole, they're wonderful tossed into any spring-veg sauté, especially a sprinkle of minced chives and a few dollops of crème fraîche or fromage blanc (try the ones made by Point Reyes's Cowgirl Creamery).

Like tumultuous high-water rivers after a spring thaw, April's harvest has its dangers, too: Rhubarb leaves and roots are poisonous; picked with bare hands, stinging nettles prick and leave a rash; the wrong wild mushroom can be fatal. But I can't help lifting out bunches of nettles (with tongs) when I pass the Star Route Farms stand at the Embarcadero farmers market. Cooked, the nettles taste like an earthier spinach, without that slightly metallic tang. I like them for their weirdness, for the strangeness of turning a toxic, intrusive weed into an edible plant. Rhubarb stalks are irresistibly pink; raw, they're juicy and very, very sour. I can eat lemons straight, but rhubarb has to be cooked, steamed with sugar in a double boiler into a slippery, melodious fruitiness perfectly balanced between tart and sweet. Paired with the season's first strawberries in pies, compotes, and jam, they match sweet with sour, baby pink and rosy red.

Looking over an unidentified pile of Asian greens at the farmers market a couple of weeks ago, I asked the woman next to me what she used them for. "Very good if you are sad," she said, busily cramming bunches into a pink plastic bag. Spring is like that: with a blast and bite, it wakes you up. ❖

Critic's choice

Ponzu opened early in 2000 but is likely to be remembered as one of the year's best new restaurants. Its menu ranges across south Asia with stylish agility — tangy Vietnamese carpaccio, Mongolian lamb loin, cilantro-charged monster noodles — at strikingly reasonable prices. The décor manages to be warm, bright, and modern without going over the top. (P.R., 2/00) 401 Taylor (at O'Farrell), SF. 775-7979. Asian, B/D, $$, MC/V.

Recently reviewed

Elka's amounts to more than a renaming of Elka Gilmore's well-regarded Oodles. The decor has been given a focused Asian elegance, and Gilmore's always distinctive cooking — its core is Asian-influenced seafood, with French touches — has been elevated to the highest level. There's probably no chef in the city with a more recognizable signature. (P.R., 4/00) 900 Bush (at Taylor), SF. 928-1888. Fusion seafood, D, $$$, AE/DC/MC/V.

Stars subtly recombines old elements with new. The long bar is still there, as is a big chunk of the power elite, but the mood is more stylishly democratic than before. So is the food: from elegant salads to artfully perfumed grilled fish to that old standby the big burger, the menu achieves vivid effects with nimbleness and restraint. (P.R., 4/00) 55 Golden Gate (at Van Ness) SF. 861-STARs. California, L/D, $$, AE/DC/MC/V.
Zodiac Club numbers quite a few local chefs among its patrons, and that ought to tell you something about the quality of the eastern Mediterranean-influenced food. Lots of lamb, imaginatively handled, in a way-cool atmosphere of ultraviolet light. Another plus: not much price inflation. (P.R., 3/00) 718 14th St. (at Church), SF. 626-7827. California, D, $$, MC/V.

On the cheap: burritos

Pancho Villa The best word for this 16th Street taqueria is big, from the large space to the jumbo-size burritos to the grand dinner plates of grilled shrimp. The only small thing is the price. (Staff) 3071 16th St. (at Valencia), SF. 864-8840. Mexican, BR/L/D, €.

Taqueria Can-Cun serves up one of the best veggie burritos in town — delicious, juicy, and huge. (Staff) 2288 Mission (at 19th St.), SF. 252-9560; 1003 Market (at Sixth St.), SF. 864-6773. Mexican, L/D, €.

Taqueria Ramiro and Sons typically has customers lined up to the door for (mostly take-out) burritos and tacos and quesadillas. The menu nods to contemporary tastes with black beans and spinach or tomato tortilla options. (D.R., 12/99) 2321 Alameda (at Park), Alameda. (510) 523-5071. Mexican, L/D, €, no credit cards.

Downtown, Embarcadero

Akiko's Restaurant and Sushi Bar is a glimpse of heaven and hell for fish eaters. The raw stuff coming from the bar in the front is splendid. But cooked items from the adjoining kitchen are dubious, though the udon are quietly addictive. (P.R., 12/98) 431 Bush (at Kearny), SF. 397-3218. Japanese, L/D, S, AE/DISC/MC/V.

Anjou is the other restaurant on Campton Place — a lovely little warren of brick and brass serving an unpretentious, and sometimes inventive, French bistro menu. (P.R., 11/98) 44 Campton Place (at Stockton), SF. 392-5373. French, L/D, $$, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

B44 brings Daniel Olivella's Catalan cooking to al fresco-friendly Belden Place. The salt cod-studded menu is stronger in first than main dishes. Frenchy desserts. (P.R., 3/00) 44 Belden Place (near Pine), SF. 986-6287. Catalan, L/D, $$, AE/MC/V.

Bix radiates an unmistakable aura of American power and luxury, Jazz Age style. The food is simply splendid, from such traditional dishes as chicken hash to California-cuisine items such as crispy fillet of King salmon on a bed of heirloom cherry tomatoes and lemon crème fraîche. (P.R., 8/99) 56 Gold (at Sansome), SF. 433-6300. American, L/D, $$$, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

Boulevard This creation of hot chef Nancy Oakes has a casually elegant art nouveau decor by designer Pat Kuleto. The food, too, is hot, including on one night a terrific grilled ahi tuna with a gingery salsa and shoestring potatoes. (Staff) 1 Mission (at Stewart), SF. 543-6084. American, L/D, $$$, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

Café Claude This prototypical French café was voted "Best Place to Have a Clandestine Lunch" (Readers' Poll, 1997). All the Gallic standards are in place, from bubbling crocks of onion soup to salade niçoise and croques both monsieur and madame. (S.R., 9/97) 7 Claude Lane (at Bush, between Kearny and Grant), SF. 392-3505. French, L/D, $, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

Chaya Brasserie brings a taste of L.A.'s preen-and-be-seen culture to the waterfront. The Japanese-influenced French food is mostly French, and very expensive, while a handsome sushi bar tucked into a far corner offers great stuff at good value. (P.R., 4/00) 132 the Embarcadero (at Mission), SF. 777-8688. Fusion, D, $$$, AE/DC/MC/V.

Elisabeth Daniel combines, like a Swiss watch, elegance, precision, and beauty, and the result is one of the best restaurants in the city. The food is haute but limber French, the interior design gracefully muted, the service of the highest order. Extremely pricey. (P.R., 3/00) 550 Washington (at Montgomery), SF. 397-6129. French, L/D, $$$, AE/MC/V.

Fifth Floor returns George Morrone to the city's restaurant scene in high style — literally. The restaurant, on the fifth floor of the Palomar Hotel, feels plushly art deco. The food hovers somewhere between hearty and lavish, ranging from roasted baby chicken with bay and fingerling potatoes to poached Maine lobster with white corn and vermouth essence. (P.R., 10/99) 12 Fourth St. (at Market), SF. 348-1555. California, D, $$$, AE/MC/V.

First Crush goes the average wine bar one better: it's also got an excellent full-service restaurant in the basement — a stylish grotto done up in hues of grape and sun. The food marches from the kitchen like a well-trained brass band; the flavors are big and direct, to match all those California wines. (P.R., 4/99) 101 Cyril Magnin (at Ellis), SF. 982-7874. California, D, $$, AE/DISC/MC/V.

Fleur de Lys There's a definite midnight-at-the-oasis feel to this sophisticated and very formal restaurant. For a sublime experience, order one of the multicourse prix fixe meals, available in both omnivorous and vegetarian styles. (Staff) 777 Sutter (at Taylor), SF. 673-7779. French, D, $$$, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.
Grand Cafe joins a spectacular setting and a French-California menu of understated elegance. The place could use a better name, but the food is every bit as good as at its more glamorous competition. It's the place to go for a quiet first-rate experience. (P.R., 4/99) 501 Geary (at Taylor), SF. 292-0101. California, B/BR/L/D, $$$, AE/MC/DS/DC/V.

Kokkari is an upscale but authentic taverna — beamed ceilings, blazing fireplace, and that famously gesticulative Greek hospitality. Chef Jean Alberti's food alternates smoothly between classic dishes and California-Hellenic turns, such as grilled tuna with oregano pesto. (P.R., 5/99) 200 Jackson (at Front), SF. 981-0983. Greek, L/D, $$$, AE/DC/MC/V.

Kyo-Ya may not be the best Japanese restaurant in the city, but it's certainly one of them. Elegantly padded surroundings, sublime sushi, and a wide selection of cooked dishes attract an international mercantile class. Lovely all the same. Expensive too. (P.R., 11/99) 2 New Montgomery (at Market), SF. 512-1111. Japanese, L/D, $$$, AE/MC/V.

MacArthur Park still occupies a gorgeous brick cavern in the Barbary Coast, but the restaurant these days is more a neighborhood spot than a destination, and the emphasis seems to be on takeout. The slabs of baby back ribs are paradoxes of first-rate meat, anemic sauce, and overcooking. But the place is comfortable, and comfortably nostalgic. (P.R., 7/99) 607 Front (at Jackson), SF. 781-5560. Barbecue, L/D, $$, AE/MC/V.

MoMo's San Francisco Grill The new American food at MoMo's is surprisingly excellent (if it's been a while since you've had macaroni and cheese, have it here, with cubes of Black Forest ham), and the interior decoration is opulent, with prairie-style furniture, wood trim, dark-green carpeting, and dimpled leather upholstery on the banquettes. (P.R., 11/98) 760 Second St. (at King), SF. 227-8660. American, BR/L/D, $$, AE/MC/V.

Pastis Gerald Hirigoyen's restaurant near Levi Strauss Plaza has the goody charm of a modern art museum but, as at Fringale, his other spot, the menu gives light-handed refinement to the lusty dishes of la France profonde. Hirigoyen, who's from Bayonne, in the French Basque country, also favors the occasional Basque touch, such as stuffed piquillo peppers. (P.R., 4/99) 1015 Battery (at Green), SF. 391-2555. French, L/D, $$, AE/MC/V.

Postrio Wolfgang Puck's venerable outpost in the city still sparkles. Despite the drama of the setting, the food receives loving attention. Like an opera singer, the kitchen hits notes low and high with equal aplomb. Arty desserts. (P.R., 3/99) 545 Post (at Mason), SF. 776-7825. California, B/BR/L/D, $$$, AE/DC/MC/V.

Red Herring brings yet another high-end seafood house to the reviving Embarcadero. The menu features plenty of playful brass — a whole snapper given the tandoori treatment — but there are subtle elements as well, such as a carpaccio of day-boat scallops topped with ahi-tartare-stuffed squid-ink pasta. Unbeatable bay and bridge views. (P.R., 8/99) 155 Stuart (at Howard), S.F. 495-6500. Seafood, L/D, $$$, AE/MC/V.

Tadich Grill is the city's oldest restaurant (150 years and counting), and it still packs 'em in, specializing in seafood and most anything grilled. (Staff) 240 California (at Battery), S.F. 391-1849. Grill, L/D, $$, AE/MC/V.

Town's End enjoys a reputation for a fabulous weekend brunch (getting in can be a trick), but the restaurant serves a polished California menu at dinner, too, when getting a table is a lot easier. The best items are seasonal, of course, such as a late-summer salad of heirloom tomatoes, and the kitchen handles fish with real flair. (P.R., 11/98) 2 Townsend (at Embarcadero), S.F. 512-0749. California, B/BR/L/D, $$, AE/DC/MC/V.

Tu Lan has few luxuries except the food, which is a luxury to the wealthiest palate. Raw foods converge in salads and stir-fries that'll leave you wondering why your own cooking doesn't look as easy and taste as good. (Staff) 8 Sixth St. (at Market), S.F. 626-0927. Vietnamese, L/D, $.

Waterfront The Bay Bridge views from the upstairs dining room are serene. Don't be intimidated by the overelaborate menu: everything is magnificent. (P.R., 12/98) Pier 7 (Embarcadero at Broadway), S.F. 391-2696. California, BR/L/D, $$$, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

North Beach, Chinatown

Black Cat won't be remembered as Reed Hearon's best restaurant, but it does offer many satisfying dishes at reasonable prices. Seafood linguine and Singapore noodles represent the best of the kitchen's low-key effectiveness, and Hearon's signature iron-skillet-roasted mussels are reliably fine. (P.R., 9/99) 501 Broadway (at Kearny), S.F. 981-2233. Eclectic, L/D, $$, AE/DC/MC/V.

Da Flora advertises Venetian specialties, but you won't find much in the way of seafood or risotto here. The pastas are tours de force of balance and composition, while notes from Central Europe (veal in paprika cream sauce) and points east (whiffs of nutmeg) creep into other fine dishes. (P.R., 4/99) 701 Columbus (at Filbert), S.F. 981-4664. Italian, D, $$, MC/V.

Dalla Torre Tucked away on the northeast slope of Telegraph Hill, this is one of the most inaccessible restaurants in the city. The multilevel dining room — a cross between an Italian country inn and a Frank Lloyd Wright house — offers memorable bay views, but the pricey food is erratic. (P.R., 4/99) 1349 Montgomery (at Union), S.F. 296-1111. Italian, D, $$$, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

House of Nanking never fails to garner raves from restaurant reviewers and Bay Guardian readers alike. Chinatown ambience, great food, good prices. (Best Of's, 1994) 919 Kearny (at Columbus), S.F. 421-1429. Chinese, L/D, $.

Michelangelo Cafe There's always a line outside this quintessential North Beach restaurant, but it's well worth the sidewalk time for Michelangelo's excellent Italian, served in a bustling, family-style atmosphere. The seafood dishes are recommended; approach the postprandial Gummy Bears at your own risk. (Staff) 597 Columbus (at Union), S.F. 986-4058. Italian, D, $.

Moose's is famous for the Mooseburger — an estimable patty of ground beef with fine fries — but the rest of chef Bryan Whitmer's menu is comfortably sophisticated, with touches from all around the Mediterranean. The crowd is moneyed but not showy and definitely not nouveau. (P.R., 10/99) 1652 Stockton (at Union), S.F. 989-7800. American, BR/L/D, $$, AE/DC/MC/V.

Tavolino At popular Tavolino, the emphasis is on cicchetti, starter-sized portions of raw, grilled, or sautéed seafood, a few meats, and a wide variety of vegetables. Perhaps due to the share-and-share-alike emphasis of the menu, the restaurant is geared towards larger parties; couples can often be shunted off to a strip of banquet seating. (S.R., 7/98) 401 Columbus (at Vallejo), S.F. 392-1472. Italian, L/D, $, AE/MC/V.

SoMa

Asias Priscilla, Queen of the Desert meets Asian-influenced tapas at this amusingly surreal lounge. The inexpensive fusion food comes and goes (best bets: beef burger, spicy minced chicken), but the drag-queen burlesque spectacle draws a varied audience that's a show in itself. (P.R., 9/98) 201 Ninth St. (at Howard), S.F. 255-2742. Fusion, D, $, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

Azie Chef Jody Denton's menu is spit-and-polish, from a dazzling plate of nine bites (including a fabulous crab pot de crème) to such miraculous sauces as the tangerine-curry number that accompanies a battered whole Thai snapper. (P.R., 1/00) 826 Folsom (at Fourth St.), S.F. 538-0918. Fusion, D, $$$, AE/DC/MC/V.

Bizou Chef-owner Loretta Keller's Provençal-influenced menu is big on flavor, from a pissaladière like flat bread topped with caramelized onions, cheese, and olives to grilled duck breast with slices of roasted peach. This restaurant is sure of itself; there is no overreaching. (P.R., 9/99) 598 Fourth St. (at Brannan), S.F. 543-2222. California, L/D, $$$, AE/MC/V.

Le Charm is the perfect spot to settle into a padded banquet and order wine and lamb chops and lovely little crème caramels. (S.R., 2/98) 315 Fifth St. (at Folsom), S.F. 546-6128. French, L/D, $$, MC/V.

Chat House Bright murals mark this spot for coffee, late-night eats, or a casual lunch. Stop in for a bite before a show at the Coco Club, downstairs. (Staff) 139 Eighth St. (at Minna), S.F. 255-8783. California, B/L, $.

Che offers "nuevo Latino" cuisine — traditional Latin American dishes passed through the filter of modern California. Tropical and maritime influences are prominent, but there's plenty of heavier stuff, too, including a confitlike duck leg and scatterings of linguica, the garlicky Portuguese sausage. (P.R., 12/99) 320 Third St. (at Folsom), S.F. 546-3131. Nuevo Latino, BR/L/D, $$, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

Enzo's is worth finding, not just for the credible tiramisu (enhanced with raspberries) but also for the rest of the predictably zesty menu and the eminently fair prices. (P.R., 9/98) 510 Brannan (at Fourth St.), S.F. 974-3696. Italian, L/D, $, AE/MC/V.

Hawthorne Lane If you want to feel virtuously cultured and coddled at the same time, take a spin through the galleries at SF-MOMA, then duck in for a late lunch at Hawthorne Lane, with its English-storybook decor. (S.R., 2/98) 22 Hawthorne Lane (between Second and Third Sts., at Howard), S.F. 777-9779. California, L/D, $$$, MC/V.

LuLu defines the modern California restaurant. Many dishes acquire a heart-swelling smokiness from the oven — a plate of portobello mushrooms, say, with soft polenta and mascarpone butter. (P.R., 7/99) 816 Folsom (at Fourth St.), S.F. 495-5775. Mediterranean, L/D, $$$, AE/MC/V.

Maya is like a good French restaurant serving elegant food that tastes Mexican. There are unforgettable tastes here: corn kernels steeped in vanilla, lovely grilled pork tenderloin served with a pipian sauce of pumpkinseed and tamarind. (P.R., 5/99) 303 Second St. (at Folsom), S.F. 543-6709. Mexican, L/D, $$$, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

Twenty Tank The fresh-brewed beer is the star here, but you can fill in the corners with piled-high plates of nachos, a bowl of chili, or a tasty sandwich. (Staff) 316 11th St. (at Harrison), S.F. 255-9455. American, L/D, $.

Nob Hill, Russian Hill

Antica Trattoria Standouts on the small, seasonal menu include fennel salad with blood oranges, pappardelle with asparagus, and grilled lamb with caponata. Fluffy, sweet, and undemanding, the coppa Antica, tiramisu, and warm ricotta pudding are the angora sweaters of the dessert world. (S.R., 4/97) 2400 Polk (at Union), S.F. 928-5797. Italian, D, $$, DC/AE/MC/V.

Bistro Lan serves a homey medley of Asian-influenced dishes in a handsome neighborhood setting aglow with plenty of burnished wood. The menu is a little heavy on deep-fried items, but prices are moderate, and the mood is relaxed. (P.R., 2/00) 2299 Van Ness (at Vallejo), SF. 345-1368. Fusion, D, S, MC/V.

Bistro Zaré, Hoss Zaré's latest venture, features a menu of herb-flecked sunshine that amounts to a tour of the eastern Mediterranean, from the signature arancini — saffron risotto balls stuffed with Gorgonzola — to a Greek salad dressed with a creamy garlic vinaigrette to salmon cakes delicately scented with curry. (P.R., 6/99) 1507 Polk (at California), S.F. 775-4304. Mediterranean, D, $$, AE/MC/V.

Crustacean is famous for its roast Dungeness crab, but the truly addictive item on the menu here is the plate of demure-looking garlic noodles. The rest of the "Euro/Asian" menu is refreshingly Asian in emphasis. (P.R., 2/99) 1475 Polk (at California), S.F. 776-2722. Fusion, L/D, $$, AE/MC/V.

Yabbies Coastal Kitchen There's lots to shuck and swallow at the raw bar, but don't miss tropical seafood cocktails (like the crab with mango and lemongrass) piled glamorously into martini glasses. Splendid porcini-seared sea bass, grilled sailfish, and scallops with truffled mushroom salad. Save room for the hot fudge sundae. (S.R., 3/97) 2237 Polk (at Green), S.F. 474-4088. California, D, $$, MC/V.

Zarzuella's rich selection of truly delicious tapas and full meals make it a neighborhood favorite. (Staff) 2000 Hyde (at Union), S.F. 346-0800. Tapas, D, $$, DISC/MC/V.

Civic Center, Tenderloin

Ananda Fuara serves a distinctly Indian-influenced vegetarian menu in the sort of calm surroundings that are increasingly the exception to the rule. Service is friendly and swift, prices low, and you can get dal with practically everything. (P.R., 2/00) 1298 Market (at Ninth St.), SF. 621-1994. Vegetarian, L/D, €, cash only.

Canto do Brasil The draw here is lusty yeoman cooking, Brazilian style, at beguilingly low prices. The tropically cerulean interior design, with fat comfy chairs, ceiling fans, and lots of plants enhances the illusion of sitting at a beach café. (P.R., 10/98) 41 Franklin (at Oak), S.F. 626-8727. Brazilian, L/D, S, MC/V.

Cordon Bleu has huge portions, tiny prices, and a hoppin' location right next to the Lumiere Theatre. The special here is five-spice roasted chicken, half a bird for $5.15 with country cabbage salad and a big mountain of meat sauce-smothered rice. (D.L., 4/97) 1574 California (at Polk), S.F. 673-5637. Vietnamese, L/D, €.

The Groaning Board

Indigo Indigo serves up good California cuisine in a pleasantly stylish setting. A great presymphony choice. (S.R., 8/97) 687 McAllister (at Gough), S.F. 673-9353. California, D, $$, AE/MC/V.

Jardinière combines an aggressively elegant Pat Kuleto design with the calm confidence of Traci des Jardins's cooking. The best dishes — foie gras with pear gastrique and brioche, a dessert of mascarpone-stuffed crepes and sliced plums sautéed in muscat — are unforgettable. (P.R., 11/98) 300 Grove (at Franklin), S.F. 861-5555. California, D, $$$, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

Max's Opera Cafe Huge food is the theme here, from softball-size matzo balls to towering desserts. And though it's fun to eat these Alice-in-Wonderland portions, don't expect anything highfalutin or subtle here, as Max's is your basic Jewish deli. (Staff) 601 Van Ness (at Golden Gate), S.F. 771-7300. American, L/D, S, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

Millennium Finally, a restaurant where you can toast your vegan friends in style. Phyllo purses stuffed with wild mushrooms and tofu ricotta and silky chocolate midnight cake are just a few of the organic, low-fat, and animal-free treats that will please both veggies and omnivores alike. (Staff) 246 McAllister (at Larkin), S.F. 487-9800. Vegetarian, D, $$, DC/MC/V.

Pagolac For $10.95 a person you and two or more of your favorite beef eaters can dive into Pagolac's specialty: seven-flavor beef. Besides grill-your-own, there's also a hot pot and five other beef dishes. Less carnivorous types can try the cold spring rolls, shrimp on sugarcane, or lemongrass tofu. (S.R., 1/97) 655 Larkin (at Ellis), S.F. 776-3234. Vietnamese, L/D, €.

paul K offers an eastern Mediterranean menu as good as any in town, at notably uninflated prices. The mountain flat bread alone (along with two kinds of hummus) is worth a visit, but the menu accelerates smoothly all the way to dessert, where a cardamom fritter casts new light on our old friend the doughnut. (P.R., 4/00) 199 Gough (at Oak), SF. 552-7132. Mediterranean, D, $$, AE/DC/MC/V.

Tavern on the Tenderloin gives students at the California Culinary Academy a chance to serve real, paying customers, and for the most part they're up to the challenge. The lunch deal ($10.95 for three courses) is a good one, and the kitchen handles the more difficult cases, such as fish, with considerable skill and some art. Service can be erratic. (P.R., 7/99) 635 Polk (at Turk), S.F. California, L/D, S, AE/MC/V.

Hayes Valley

Arlequin offers light Provençal and Mediterranean food for takeout, but the best place to take your stuff is to the sunny, tranquil garden in the rear. There's a nice version of croque monsieur, irresistible fried chickpeas, and, for oenophiles, an adjoining wine shop. Amphora. (P.R., 3/00) 384B Hayes (at Gough), S.F. 863-0926. Mediterranean, B/L/D, €, MC/V.

Bistro Clovis Long a beacon for those seeking a gently Parisian experience, this Market Street restaurant feels homey and welcoming. Standout dishes include a delicate trout galette, classic French onion soup, and a plump, silky haunch of rabbit. (S.R., 1/98) 1596 Market (at Page), S.F. 864-0231. French, L/D, $$, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

Carta Restaurant and Bar The U.N. of restaurants — a different ethnic or regional menu every month — recently added the adjoining storefront space and is now twice as lovable. The three-course lunch deal is one of the best ones going. (P.R., 4/99) 1760 Market (at Octavia), S.F. 863-3516. World, L/D, $$, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

Hayes Street Grill still offers a workable formula: the best fish, prepared with conservative expertise and offered with a choice of sauce and excellent pommes frites. An old, reliable friend. (P.R., 4/99) 320 Hayes (at Franklin), S.F. 863-5545. Seafood, L/D, $$, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

Piaf's Songs of the Little Sparrow make up much of the background music, and there's a general aura of Continental pampering to accompany special-occasion dishes like rack of lamb. With its ambitious menu, lush decor, and extremely attentive service, Piaf's is perfect for a birthday dinner or big date. (S.R., 10/97) 1686 Market (at Gough), S.F. 864-3700. French, BR/D, $$, AE/DISC/M/V.

Suppenküche If unrepentant carnivorousism is your intent, you're in the right place. Beef and pork are the mainstays here, with brief forays into chicken, venison, and fish. For breakfast, light eaters can pick happily at muesli, Quark, and fruit, while those who prefer the whole hog can wallow in cold cuts, cheese, and boiled eggs. (S.R., 10/97) 601 Hayes (at Laguna), S.F. 252-9289. German, BR/D, S, AE/MC/V.

Terra Brasilis Bistro The Brazilian menu ranges from such traditional items as feijoada (the black-bean stew) to tuna loin, skewered on a sugar cane, then grilled. The restaurant's city-slick design is a warm, welcoming assemblage of exposed brick, honey-colored wood, and plate glass. (P.R., 1/00) 602 Hayes (at Laguna), SF. 241-1900. Brazilian, BR/D, $$, AE/CB/DISC/MC/TM/V.

Zuni Cafe The old standbys are reliable, though the famous burger could do with a bit less focaccia, and the oddly greasy Caesar salad is far from the best in town. The best dishes are Italian in their simplicity and pureness. (P.R., 7/99) 1658 Market (at Franklin), S.F. 552-2522. California, B/L/D, $$$, AE/MC/V.

Castro, Noe Valley

Amberjack Sushi is like a miniature version of Blowfish or Tokyo Go Go. The more complex dishes, such as a tuna-sashimi tartare with lemon olive oil, are better than the simple, traditional stuff, which can be overchilled. Fine service, moderate prices. (P.R., 1/00) 1497 Church (at 27th St.), SF. 920-1797. Japanese, L/D, S, AE/MC/V.

Blue dishes up home cooking as good as any mom's, in a downtown New York environment — of mirrors, gray blue walls, and spotlights — that would blow most moms away. First-rate meat loaf, mushroom soup, and sautéed calamari compete, for the most part successfully, with the gay glamorama on both sides of the big plate-glass windows along Market Street. (P.R., 7/99) 2337 Market (at Castro), S.F. 863-2583. American, BR/L/D, S, MC/V.

Cafe Cuvée Café by day, nice restaurant by night, and though the ambitious (and well-executed) California cuisine menu seems at odds with the bare-bones decor, the down-to-earth style of Cafe Cuvée has a steady neighborhood following. (S.R., 8/97) 2073 Market (at 14th St.), S.F. 621-7488. California, B/L/D, $$, AE/MC/V.

Chow With a comfortable, tavernish feel, Chow serves up an easy Californian blend of American and Italian favorites, with a few Asian elements thrown into the mix. There's a daily sandwich special, salads, numerous pastas, pizzas, grilled chicken done two ways, and of course, a burger, listed here as a "royale with cheese." (S.R., 7/97) 215 Church (at Market), S.F. 552-2469. California, L/D, €, MC/V.

Firefly One of the best of S.F.'s neighborhood restaurants, Firefly promises an innovative (Medi/Asian), perfectly prepared meal. The menu rotates each week and could include bayou gumbo, shrimp and scallop dumplings, or vegetarian cassoulet. Whatever entices you, be sure to save room for dessert. (Staff) 4288 24th St. (at Douglass), S.F. 821-7652. American, D, $, AE/MC/V. Firewood Cafe Firewood serves up food that's trendy but tasty, hip without being weird, familiar but still a must-have. Delicious thin, chewy-crust pizzas, four kinds of tortellini, rotisserie-roasted chicken, and big bowls of salad. (S.R., 2/97) 4248 18th St. (at Diamond), S.F. 252-0999. Italian, L/D, $, MC/V.

Incontro serves up Italian classics in a converted Castro Victorian with levels and staircases and tables all over the place. Nifty small touches breathe new life into standard dishes: a splash of brandy with the eggplant and prosciutto in the veal saltimbocca, an uncluttered combination of shrimp and crab in the seafood ravioli. (P.R., 10/99) 4230 18th St. (at Diamond), S.F. 437-6722. Italian, D, $, MC/V.

Johnfrank Chef Richard Crocker used to work at Boulevard, and it shows: his menu is a set of celebratory variations on a simple theme of meat and potatoes. The adjoining parking lot is a welcome touch. (P.R., 12/99) 2100 Market (at Church), S.F. 503-0333. American, D, $$, AE/MC/V.

Nirvana True to its name, pan-Asian noodle house Nirvana offers a peaceful respite from busy Castro streets. Although noodles make up the bulk of the menu, there's also a list of entrées that range from stir-fried jicama to grilled lemongrass chicken. (S.R., 6/98) 544 Castro (at 18th St.), S.F. 861-2226. Pan-Asian, L/D, $, MC/V.

Savor has transformed the old Courtyard Cafe into a fantasy of a Mediterranean country inn. Pesto, sun-dried tomatoes, grilled eggplant, feta cheese, olives, garlic, roasted peppers, spinach, mushrooms, et al. occur in various permutations throughout the menu's crepes, omelettes, frittatas, sandwiches, and salads. (S.R., 10/96) 3913 24th St. (at Noe), S.F. 282-0344. Mediterranean, B/L/D, $, MC/V.

Tin-Pan Asian Bistro This slick pan-Asian eatery boasts stylishly inviting decor, an intriguing but accessible list of finger-food appetizers, and numerous noodle dishes. Some of the plates are worth going back for — gingery pot stickers, tender green lip mussels — but several dishes miss the mark. (S.R., 10/97) 2251 Market (at Noe), S.F. 565-0733. Pan-Asian, L/D, $, MC/V.

Tita's Hale Aina There is no poi, but there is Spam, which can be ordered either as a side dish or folded into an omelette. Other traditional dishes include a tasty lomi lomi scramble chock-full of scallions, tomatoes, and salmon, and refreshing cold green tea soba noodles. (S.R., 12/97) 3870 17th St. (at Noe), S.F. 626-2477. Hawaiian, B/L/D, $, 2223 Suave, contemporary, but down-home American cooking (including the best garlic mashed potatoes and onion rings in the city), with warm and professional service in a spare, flattering setting. (S.R., 11/95) 2223 Market (at Noe), S.F. 431-0692. American, BR/D, $$, AE/MC/V.

Haight, Cole Valley, Western Addition

Alamo Square With its appealing but unfussy decor, welcoming service, and gentle prices, Alamo Square is an archetype for the "good little place around the corner." Five different kinds of fish are offered next to three cooking techniques and five sauces. (S.R., 4/98) 803 Fillmore (at Grove), S.F. 440-2828. Seafood, D, $, MC/V.

Ali Baba's Cave Veggie shish kebabs are grilled fresh to order, the hummus and baba ghanoush are subtly seasoned and delicious. (Staff) 531 Haight (at Fillmore), S.F. 255-7820; 799 Valencia (at 19th St.), S.F. 863-3054. Middle Eastern, L/D, $, MC/V.

Asqew Grill reinvents the world of fine fast food on a budget with skewers, served in under 10 minutes for under 10 bucks. The interior design is a little drab, but with the Haight Street scene parading by the windows, you'll never notice. (P.R., 6/99) 1607 Haight (at Clayton), S.F. 701-9301. California, L/D, $, MC/V.

Brother-in-Laws Bar-B-Cue always wins the "Best Barbecue" prize in our annual Best of Bay edition: the ribs, chickens, links, and brisket are smoky and succulent; the aroma sucks you in like a tractor beam. (Staff) 705 Divisadero (at Grove), S.F. 931-7427. Barbecue, L/D, $.

Ganges spices its savory vegetarian Indian fare with a very liberal hand. The menu changes often to take advantage of seasonal vegetables and the creativity of the chef. (Staff) 775 Frederick (at Willard), S.F. 661-7290. Indian, D, $, MC/V.

Grandeño's Kamekoyo Sushi Bar Always packed, Grandeño serves up excellent sushi along with a full Japanese menu. The specialty rolls are excellent; if you're straying from the raw fish, good choices include yam noodle salad and chicken yakitori. (Staff) 943 Cole (near Carl), S.F. 759-5693. Japanese, L/D, $$, AE/MC/V.

Kate's Kitchen is a clean and cozy storefront breakfast-and-lunch spot that dishes up the best scallion-cheese biscuits out west. The lines on the weekends are just as long as they are down the street at Spaghetti Western. (Staff) 471 Haight (at Fillmore), S.F. 626-3984. American, B/L, $.

Magnolia Pub and Brewery A mellow atmosphere and beers that taste distinctly handcrafted make great accompaniments to burgers, chicken wings, ale-steamed mussels, pizzas, along with some unexpected Cali fusion like grilled soy-sesame eggplant with green onion rice fritters. (S.R., 12/97) 1398 Haight (at Masonic), S.F. 864-PINT. Brew pub, BR/L/D, $, AE/MC/V.

Massawa Everything at this homey Eritrean restaurant — even the vegetarian stuff — was great. The tsebhi-derho (dark-meat chicken) was still on the bone and smothered in a tomato-based sort of barbecue sauce. My favorite was kelwa — tender pieces of beef sautéed in "spiced clarified butter." (D.L., 12/97) 1538 Haight (at Ashbury), S.F. 621-4129. Eritrean, L/D, $, AE/DC/MC/V.

Mission, Bernal Heights, Potrero Hill

Al's Cafe Good Food Al's is the best dang diner in town. Everything here is great, from the homefries and eggs to the chili and burgers, and even the toast in between. (D.L., 3/98) 3286 1/2 Mission (at 29th St.), S.F. 641-8445. American, B/L, $.

Baobab Bar and Grill A Senegalese hole-in-the-wall, Baobab serves great-tasting West African specialties like couscous, fried plantains, and savory rice dishes for a reasonable price. (D.L., 11/97) 3388 19th St. (at Mission), S.F. 643-3558. African, BR/D, $.

Bitterroot resembles an Old West saloon (minus the swinging doors at the front), but the food is American classic — meat loaf, fried chicken, roasted pork loin, burgers — at very low prices. (P.R., 1/99) 3122 16th St. (at Valencia), S.F. 626-5523. American, B/L/D, $, MC/V.

Blowfish glows red and inviting on an otherwise industrial and residential stretch of Bryant Street. Sushi — in pristine fingers of nigiri or in a half-dozen inventive hand rolls — is a marvel. (S.R., 2/97) 2170 Bryant (at 20th St.), S.F. 285-3848. Sushi, L/D, $, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

Burger Joint makes hamburgers like you remember from your childhood, with lettuce, onion, tomato, and mayonnaise. (Staff) 807 Valencia (at 19th St.), S.F. 824-3494. American, L/D, $.

Cafe Ethiopia It's basically a coffeehouse, serving all the same coffees and teas and Toranis as anyone else. It's just that they also have great, cheap Ethiopian food too. (D.L., 6/97) 878 Valencia (at 20th St.), S.F. 285-2728. Ethiopian, B/L/D, $.

Cafe Rico brings a touch of European grace — high draperies, Picardie glasses on the marble-topped tables — to a gritty stretch of 14th Street. All the food is prepared in ovens of one sort or another, and the menu has a lurching charm, from the plate of nachos to rack of lamb with tomato-mint chutney. (P.R., 5/99) 233A 14th St. (at Natoma), S.F. 522-5353. Eclectic, B/L/D, $, AE/DC/MC/V.

Delfina If you like your restaurants loud, you'll love Delfina. Luckily the Tuscan-influenced food is every bit the equal of the roar. Fish dishes flirt with spectacular, as does the deceptively unassuming buttermilk panna cotta. (P.R., 1/99) 3621 18th St. (at Guerrero), S.F. 552-4055. California, D, $$, MC/V.

Foreign Cinema really does show foreign films, and the effect, in a semi-outdoorsy patio under transparent pavilions, is powerfully romantic. The straightforward California cuisine is better than you'd expect. There's plenty of meat for carnivores; vegetarian dishes are a little thin. (P.R., 2/00) 2534 Mission (at 21st St.), SF 648-7600. California, D, $$, AE/MC/V.

42° still serves up a panoply of Mediterranean dishes as various and imaginative as you'll find in the city. The free parking lot (behind the Esprit center) is the automotive equivalent of winning the lottery. The restaurant offers live jazz, so beware the noise. (P.R., 12/99) 235 16th St. (at Illinois), S.F. 777-5559. Mediterranean, D, $$$, AE/MC/V.

Garibaldi Cafe Great service without the attitude and a wonderfully eclectic menu that often includes spicy pastas, grilled halibut, tandoori lamb, smoked chicken quesadillas, and filet mignon with peppercorns. (Staff) 1600 17th St. (at Wisconsin), S.F. 552-3325. California/Mediterranean, L/D, $$, AE/DC/MC/V.

Gordon's House of Fine Eats The menu divides into five flights, one of which, "local showcase," holds the most interest, including a fine fromage tart. The homemade s'more may not be the best in town, but it's among the biggest. (P.R., 6/99) 500 Florida (at Mariposa), S.F. 861-8900. California, L/D, $$$, DC/MC/V.

Herbivore: The Earthly Grill is adorned in the immaculate-architect style: angular blond-wood surfaces and precise cubbyholes abound. Lasagna with tofu ricotta gave hardly a clue that it was cheeseless, and the pesto-toast appetizer was amazingly rich. (E.S., 3/97) 983 Valencia (at 21st St.), S.F. 826-5657. Vegetarian, L/D, $, MC/V.

Joe's Cable Car is the place where "Joe grinds his own fresh meat daily," and it shows. Fill up with a thick milkshake on the side, but skip the disappointing fries. (Staff) 4320 Mission (at Silver), S.F. 334-6699. American, L/D, $, MC/V.

Just for You My favorite Potrero Hill hole-in-the-hill, Just for You serves up generally excellent, meaty meals with a spicy, Louisiana tint to them. The best way to break your fast here is with the crab cakes. (D.L., 5/98) 1453 18th St., S.F. 647-3033. American, B/L, $.

The Liberties reinvents the Irish pub for millennial, digital times. The interior design evokes a 19th-century steamship; the food — mostly tasty, honest renditions of meat and potatoes — has an unmistakable masculine cast. Best bets: baby back ribs, fish and chips. (P.R., 4/00) 998 Guerrero (at 22nd St.), SF Irish, BR/L/D, $, AE/DC/DS/MC/V.

Liberty Cafe specializes in simple, perfect food: a Caesar salad that outshines all others; the best chicken pot pie in the city; and down-home desserts even a bake sale in Iowa couldn't beat. (S.R., 5/98) 410 Cortland (at Bennington), S.F. 695-8777. American, BR/L/D, $-$$, AE/MC/V.

Mariachi's serves up its fare in a cheery pastel-painted space, and its chalkboard menu features ingredients like sautéed mushrooms, pineapple, and pesto. (E.S., 1/98) 508 Valencia (at 16th St.), S.F. 621-4358. Mexican, L/D, $.

Mi Lindo Perú dishes up mom-style cooking, Peruvian style, in illimitable portions. The shrimp chowder is astounding. Lots of tapas, too. (P.R., 3/00) 3226 Mission (at Valencia), SF 642-4897. Peruvian, L/D, $, MC/V.

Mission Villa is the oldest Mexican restaurant in San Francisco. It's 90 years old, but it has a menu with interesting new dishes to complement the standard traditional fare. (D.L., 11/96) 2391 Mission (at 20th St.), S.F. 826-0454. Mexican, L/D, $, MC/V.

Moki's Sushi and Pacific Grill serves imaginative specialty makis along with items from a pan-Asian grill in a small, bustling neighborhood spot. The kitchen's timing can sometimes be erratic, but the fresh, flavorful food is worth the wait. (Staff) 830 Cortland (at Gates), S.F. 970-9336. Japanese, D, $$, AE/DC/MC/V.

Ne O The all-white decor is a bit odd, if soothing, but it does provide a clean backdrop for the kitchen's clarion flavors. Virtually every dish delivers the goods, from gnocchi dressed with rabbit Bolognese sauce to braised pork shank nestled in mashed potatoes with a simple pan-deglazed jus. (P.R., 12/99) 1007 Guerrero (at 22nd St.), S.F. 643-3119. American, D, $$, MC/V.

New Central Restaurant is the kind of place you'd find Richie and the Fonz hanging out if they were Latino. The kitchen serves Mexican comfort food, while ambience flows from the jukebox near the door. (P.R., 3/00) 399 South Van Ness (at 14th St.), SF 255-8247 or 621-9608. Mexican, B/L, $, cash only.

North Star is younger sibling to Firefly and has the same sort of seamless menu. The food ranges from excellent hummus with grilled curried flat bread to a cheeseburger with fries, and the setting is flush with a quiet yellow beauty, like morning sunshine. (P.R., 3/99) 288 Connecticut (at 18th St.), S.F. 551-9840. California, BR/L/D, $$, MC/V.

Pintxos is simply one of the best restaurants on the Valencia row. Its sunny Spanish-Basque menu — replete with eggplant, goat cheese, peppers, and zucchini — makes an ideal match with our golden state, while the interior design, rustic and postmodern at the same time, is strikingly Euro. (P.R., 11/99) 557 Valencia (at 17th St.), S.F. 565-0207. Basque, D, $$, AE/MC/V.

Potrero Brewing Co. offers nicely upscaled pub food to accompany its smooth, fresh microbrews. The sprawling outdoor terrace — a bow to the neighborhood's relatively sunny, warm weather — rivals that of MoMo's. (P.R., 6/99) 535 Florida (at Mariposa), S.F. 552-1967. American, L/D, $$, AE/MC/V.

Rasoi The food here is milder than the fiery south Indian curries, and it's very vegetarian-friendly. Slowly revolving ceiling fans give a pleasant illusion of heat even when it's freezing outside. (P.R., 4/99) 1037 Valencia (at 22nd St.), S.F. 695-0599. Indian, D, $, AE/MC/V.

Roosevelt Tamale Parlor has been around for more than 75 years. It's an institution. It's a great, great place, with great, great food, including thick and amazing tamales and cheese enchiladas. If the chicken soup is on the menu, order it. (D.L., 3/95) 2817 24th St. (at York), S.F. 550-9213. Mexican, L/D, $.

Scenic India Assuage your Indian food cravings with spicy chicken or lamb from the tandoori oven at this reasonably priced spot. (Staff) 532 Valencia (at 16th St.), S.F. 621-7226. Indian, D, $, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

Slanted Door Even on restaurant-riddled Valencia, this chic, spare spot is a head-turner. The menu changes weekly, but the approach is Vietnamese food prepared to suit California tastes. (S.R., 12/95) 584 Valencia (at 17th St.), S.F. 861-8032. Vietnamese, L/D, $.

Slow Club keeps things simple and direct, and that's always a stylish way to do it. Lots of seasonality (pasta with asparagus and fava beans) and classic preparations (an unbelievably tangy lemon-meringue pie), in a cool, edgy postindustrial space. (P.R., 4/00) 2501 Mariposa (at Hampshire), S.F. 241-9390. California, BR/L/D, $$, MC/V.

St. Francis Fountain Like the decor, the ice cream at 24th Street's venerable St. Francis Fountain harks back to the days before Cherry Garcia and frozen yogurt on a stick. Bring a friend and ask for two straws. (S.R., 2/95) 2801 24th St. (at York), S.F. 826-4200. American, L/D, $, AE/MC/V.

Sunflower strikes all the right notes of today's Mission: good, inexpensive Vietnamese food in a modish California ambience, with friendly, casual service. Tasty classics, such as barbecued lemongrass beef, are all here, and the lunch specials are a bonanza for the famished. (P.R., 11/98) 506 Valencia (at 16th St.), S.F. 626-5023. Vietnamese, L/D, $, AE/MC/V.

3Ring fills the space that used to be Val 21, and the food, now given south-of-France twists, is every bit as good. One killer dessert: the cheesecake, mounted on a chocolate crust and swabbed with a blueberry compote. (P.R., 11/99) 995 Valencia (at 21st St.), S.F. 821-3210. Provençal, D, $$, AE/MC/V.

Ti Couz The menu of entrées here consists exclusively of crepes — from light snacks to full meals, from sweet to savory — served up in a bright, boisterous café environment. (Staff) 3108 16th St. (at Valencia), S.F. 252-7373. Crepes, BR/L/D, $, MC/V.

Tokyo Go Go The simplest dishes are the best. Given the location and the thick crowds of people dressed in black, the noise level is surprisingly moderate. You can actually have a conversation here if you want to. (P.R., 3/99) 3174 16th St. (near Guerrero), S.F. 864-2288. Japanese, D, $$, MC/V.

Universal Cafe As neighborhood secrets go, Universal Cafe is a less well-kept one than most. Its cool industrial style harbors a California menu with such heartwarming dishes as cassoulet, fettuccine with grilled salmon and spinach, and crisp-crusted house pizzas. (S.R., 1/98) 2814 19th St. (at Florida), S.F. 821-4608. California, B/L/D, $$, AE/MC/V.

La Villa Poppi feels like a Tuscan country inn. Each dish gets a little kiss of affectionate attention: fresh marjoram, say, in the risotto beneath poached halibut, or the sage butter in which the day's gnocchi takes its final turn. The restaurant doesn't take reservations. (P.R., 11/99) 3234 22nd St. (at Guerrero), S.F. 642-5044. Italian, D, $$, MC/V.

Waltzwerk bills itself as an "East German" restaurant, but don't be frightened: the food is fresh, clever, tasty, and surprisingly light. First-rate Wiener schnitzel and chicken fricassee; surprisingly tasty salads: carrot and celery root; marinated tomato, cucumber and cauliflower. The décor has a definite Cabaret edge. (P.R., 11/99) 381 S. Van Ness (at 15th), S.F. 551-7181. German, D, $, MC/V.

Watergate is beautifully appointed, in but-tery paint and wallpaper and dark wood, and the food matches up, from stylish foie gras with verjuice and grapes to an earthy choucroute lightened up with slices of lean pork tenderloin. (P.R., 2/99) 1152 Valencia (at 22nd St.), S.F. 648-6000. California, D, $$, AE/MC/V.

Marina, Pacific Heights

Aram's In this pretty brick courtyard space, start with the mixed mezze platter, then move on to artichoke risotto, grilled rack of lamb, or a wild mushroom-phylllo strudel. (S.R., 5/98) 3665 Sacramento (at Spruce), S.F. 474-8061. Middle Eastern, BR/D, $$, AE/MC/V.

Bistro Aix is more California than Carcassonne. Thin-crust pizzas, good salads, tender grilled lamb, crackling-skinned roast chicken, pillowy garlic mashed potatoes, and fabulous ratatouille make the terror of parking in this neighborhood at dinnertime almost worth it. (S.R., 5/98) 3340 Steiner (at Chestnut), S.F. 202-0100. California, D, $$, AE/DC/MC/V.

Curbside Too, younger sibling to the Curbside Cafe, looks like a roadside greasy spoon. But come dinnertime the Mexican brunch influences melt into a sublime French saucy-fest. (P.R., 12/98) 2769 Lombard (at Lyon), S.F. 921-4442. French, D, $$, AE/MC/V.

Dragon Well looks like an annex of the cavernous Pottery Barn down the street, but its traditional Chinese menu is radiant with fresh ingredients and careful preparation. Prices are modest, the service swift and professional. (P.R., 9/99) 2142 Chestnut (at Pierce), S.F. 474-6888. Chinese, L/D, $, MC/V.

Elite Cafe A welcoming place. The menu has plenty of familiar Creole and Cajun favorites (blackened catfish, gumbo, jambalaya) along with more typical California fare (baby greens in balsamic vinaigrette, grilled salmon). (S.R., 2/98) 2049 Fillmore (at California), S.F. 346-8668. Cajun, BR/D, $$, MC/V.

Elia's serves breakfast, lunch, and supper, but brunch is the real destination at this friendly corner eatery. Start the day right with superlative chicken hash, great house-made breads, brandied French toast, and springy buttermilk pancakes. (S.R., 9/97) 500 Presidio (at California), S.F. 441-5669. American, B/BR/L/D, $, AE/MC/V.

Greens is a vegetarian's fantasy of San Francisco. All the elements that made it famous are still intact: pristine produce, an emphasis on luxury rather than health, that gorgeous view. (M.W., 8/99; Restaurant Poll winner, 1995) Fort Mason Center, Bldg A, Marina at Laguna, S.F. 771-6222. Vegetarian, L/D, $$, DISC/MC/V.

Plump Jack Café If you had to take your parents to dinner in the Marina, this would be the place. A plush postmodern interior design, stylishly earthy food, and of course the famous wine list with its drastic discounts make PlumpJack a small but authentic jewel. (P.R., 4/99) 3127 Fillmore (at Filbert), S.F. 563-4755. California, L/D, $$, AE/MC/V.

Rose's Cafe has a flexible, all-day menu that starts with breakfast sandwiches, moves into bruschettas, salads, and pizzas, and finishes the day with grilled dinner specials like salmon, chicken, and flat-iron steak. And, of course, owner Reed Hearon's famous iron-skillet-roasted mussels. (S.R., 5/97) 2298 Union (at Steiner), S.F. 775-2200. California, B/L/D, $, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

Rosti Getting half a chicken along with roasted potatoes and an assortment of vegetables for $7.95 in the Marina is cause for celebration in itself. Lots of antipasti, remarkably delicate homemade pastas, and good grills. (S.R., 2/97) 2060 Chestnut (at Steiner), S.F. 929-9300. Italian, L/D, $, AE/DISC/V.

Saji Japanese Cuisine It would be a crime not to eat the amazingly good raw fish here. Sit at the sushi bar and ask the resident sushi makers what's particularly good that day. As for the hot dishes, seafood yosenabe, served in a clay pot, is a virtual Discovery Channel of finned and scaly beasts, all tasty and fresh. (S.R., 1/98) 3232 Scott (at Lombard), S.F. 931-0563. Japanese, D, $, AE/DC/MC/V.

Sushi Groove is easily as cool as its name. Behind wasabi-green velvet curtains, salads can be inconsistent but the sushi is impeccable, especially the silky salmon and special white tuna nigiri. (S.R., 5/97) 1916 Hyde (at Union), S.F. 440-1905. Japanese, D, $, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

Trapdoor If it's tapas American-style that you seek, then Trapdoor's the place. The eclectic American food is cheap and for the most part very satisfying: a lovely chicken and dumpling stew, linguine with mussels and wild mushrooms, an excellent cheeseburger. (P.R., 1/99) 3251 Scott (at Chestnut), S.F. 776-1928. American, D, $, AE/MC/V.

Via Vai The highly regarded Pane e Vino has opened a casual little sister named Via Vai, specializing in wood oven-fired pizzas and reasonably priced pastas. While the extensive menu may have few surprises, it's also solidly satisfying. (S.R., 4/98) 1715 Union (at Gough), S.F. 441-2111. Italian, L/D, $, AE/MC/V.

ZAO Noodle Bar manages the seemingly impossible: the food's good, cheap, fresh; the service is friendly; there's an inexpensive parking lot half a block away. (P.R., 8/99) 2406 California (at Fillmore), S.F. 345-8088. Asian, L/D, $, MC/V.

Zinzino is an elegant addition to the restaurant-heavy Marina, with a snappy decor reminiscent of an Italian sidewalk café. The menu offers blistering-crusted pizzas, roasted meat and fish, and a silky wild mushroom lasagna. (S.R., 8/97) 2355 Chestnut (at Divisadero), S.F. 346-6623. Italian, D, $$, AE/MC/V.

Sunset

Avenue 9 has turned a narrow, low-ceilinged box into a warm, lively, and inviting spot. Meat and potatoes hit the spot here, from crusty and deliciously seared range-raised lamb to juicy flat-iron steak. (S.R., 12/96) 1243 Ninth Ave. (at Irving), S.F. 664-6999. California, BR/L/D, $$, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

Blue Tortilla If you like fish tacos and are having trouble finding them, this could be the place. The cantina surroundings have a lively L.A. gloss; service is attentive and friendly. (P.R., 1/99) 641 Irving (at Eighth Ave.), S.F. 566-5515. Mexican, BR/L/D, $, AE/DC/MC/V.

Bocca Rotis The Italian food in this lovely West Portal space can be memorable, especially the desserts, which are reliably fine. If in doubt, stick to pasta over roast chicken. (P.R., 10/98) 1 West Portal (at Ulloa), S.F. 665-9900. Italian, BR/L/D, $$, MC/V.

Einstein's Cafe is a colorfully quirky spot run by Youth Industry, the nonprofit group that creates businesses to give "on-the-job training to inner-city youth." It makes amazing homemade bread, gigantic real-stuff salads, and soups of the days. (D.L., 9/97) 1336 Ninth Ave. (between Judah and Irving), S.F. 665-4840. American, L/D, $.

Hotel is a marvel of great Japanese fare combined with efficient, accommodating service. Four types of noodles are the foundation around which swirl lively broths, each topped with compelling ingredients, such as delicate tempura, fresh seafood, tofu, or sliced beef. (Staff) 1290 Ninth Ave. (at Irving), 753-6045. Japanese, L/D, $, AE/DC/MC/V.

House on Ninth An intimate, low-ceilinged entrance area opens into a spacious, dramatically proportioned room lit with skylights. Small plates work the Asian-fusion theme best here, like grilled scallops with mango salad and green bean tempura. (S.R., 5/97) 1269 Ninth Ave. (at Irving), S.F. 682-3898. Fusion, L/D, $$, AE/MC/V.

Joubert's cooks up a mostly vegan, all-vegetarian menu that's an intriguing mix of South African, Indian, and Asian influences, and certainly worth a trip out to the beach. (S.R., 8/96) 4115 Judah (at 46th Ave.), S.F. 753-5448. Vegetarian, D, $$, AE/MC/V.

Mamee Thai A friendly, low-key neighborhood restaurant that just happens to serve some of the best Thai food in town. The kitchen turns out such unusual dishes as a fresh corn-cakes appetizer and curried fish mousse wrapped in banana leaves. (Staff) 2225 Irving (at 23rd Ave.), S.F. 665-9500. Thai, L/D, $, AE/MC/V.

Organica This may be the only restaurant of its kind in the Bay Area—an upscale "live food" restaurant, where none of the healthy vegan cuisine is cooked. (Staff) 1224 Ninth Ave. (at Lincoln), S.F. 665-6519. Vegetarian, L/D, $, AE/MC/V.

Park Chow Eclectic home cooking with style, at habit-forming prices. Chow could probably thrive on its basic dishes, like the burger royale with cheese ($6.95), but if you're willing to spend an extra five bucks or so, the kitchen can really flash you some thigh. (P.R., 10/98) 1240 Ninth Ave. (at Lincoln), S.F. 665-9912. California, BR/L/D, $, MC/V.

Paul's Italian Restaurant is a taste of old S.F., with a clientele that looks as if it helped elect Joe Alioto mayor. But the decor is handsome, the food sprightly. A touch of curry whispers through the creamy sauce of chicken Marco Polo, while chef-owner Paul Far's velvety pesto sauce is a story in itself. (P.R., 6/99) 2642 Ocean (at 19th Ave.), S.F. 564-8200. Italian, L/D, $, MC/V.

P.J.'s Oyster Bed Of all the U.S. regional cultures, southern Louisiana's may be the most beloved, and at P.J.'s you can taste why. (Staff) 737 Irving (at Ninth Ave.), S.F. 566-7775. Seafood, L/D, $$, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

Pomelo serves up entrées that are as fashionably enormous as the room is fashionably teeny. (E.S., 4/98) 92 Judah (at Fifth Ave.), S.F. 731-6175. Eclectic, L/D, $.

Prevot's serves a dud-free French-Italian menu with lots of traditional favorites—spaghetti Bolognese, sole meunière—along with a few vegetarian offerings, such as pumpkin ravioli. Desserts emphasize boozy sauces. (P.R., 12/98) 400 Dewey (at Woodside), S.F. 661-9210. Continental, D, $$, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

Ricochet Entrées like Chilean sea bass, Mission seafood stew, and roast duck breast are lovely to look at, delightful to know, and remarkably easy to pay for, especially if you skip or share a starter. (S.R., 5/98) 215 West Portal (at Vicente), S.F. 566-5700. California, BR/L/D, $$, MC/V.

Yum Yum Fish is basically a fish store: three or four little tables with fish-print tablecloths under glass, fish-chart art along the wall, and fish-price signs all over the place. (D.L., 10/98) 2181 Irving (at 23rd Ave.), S.F. 566-6433. Sushi, L/D, $.

Richmond

Al-Masri suggests, in food and ambience, the many influences that have swept across the Nile delta: feta cheese and olives from Greece, or a quasi-Indian stew of peas and tomatoes, served with basmati rice. It's all pretty wonderful, and reasonably priced. (P.R., 2/00) 4031 Balboa (at 41st Ave.), SF. 876-2300. Egyptian, D, $, AE/DS/MC/V.

Cafe Riggio will slake anyone's cravings for classic Italian comfort food. Prices are moderate, service informal but attentive, the setting attractive in a well kept-up 1970s style. Two fine dishes: veal scallops, Milanese style, and the criminally rich brownie. (P.R., 2/00) 4112 Geary (at Fifth Ave.), SF. 221-2114. Italian, D, $, MC/V.

Chapeau! serves some of the best food in the city—at shockingly reasonable prices. The French cooking reflects as much style and imagination as any California menu, and the service achieves an almost Masa-like precision. (P.R., 10/98) 1408 Clement (at 15th Ave.), S.F. 750-9787. French, D, $$, AE/DC/MC/V.

Clement St. Bar and Grill The high-backed booths spell romance at this always crowded spot. Grilled fish dishes snap with flavor, and there are always a couple of delicious-sounding vegetarian options. (Staff) 708 Clement (at Eighth Ave.), S.F. 386-2200. American, L/D, $-$$, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

Clémentine offers comfortable sophistication at a fair price. The pain perdu — brioche French toast dusted with powdered sugar and accompanied by apple compote and hazelnut ice cream — is one of those desserts that can repay the labor of trying to find parking in the inner Richmond. (P.R., 3/99) 126 Clement (at Second Ave.), S.F. 387-0408. French, BR/D, $$, MC/V.

Kitaro This Japanese restaurant, unlike many others, has a lot of options for vegetarians. A bento box of crispy vegetarian tempura and a big platter of veggie sushi (including avocado, eggplant, pumpkin, and asparagus) will set you right up. (E.S., 12/97) 5850 Geary (at 22nd Ave.), S.F. 386-2777. Japanese, L/D, €, MC/V.

Mal's Restaurant On the basis of the hot-and-sour shrimp soup with pineapple alone, Mal's deserves a line out the door. (D.L., 3/97) 316 Clement (at Fourth Ave.), S.F. 221-3046. Vietnamese, L/D, €, AE/DC/MC/V.

Mandalay Restaurant features reasonably priced Burmese food like fish chowder, mango chicken, and ginger salad. (D.L., 4/99) 4348 California (at Sixth Ave.), S.F. 386-3896. Burmese, L/D, €, MC/V.

Natori fulfills the dreams of those who crave sushi but can never get enough. Here it's all you can eat; you'll get enough. It's good, too, though not fancy. Plenty of other Asian dishes are on offer, from kimchee to pork-fried rice. (P.R., 4/00) 327 Balboa (at Fourth Ave.), S.F. 387-2565. Japanese, L/D, $, AE/MC/V.

Okina Sushi is resolutely discreet and old-fashioned, from the bamboo screens on the windows to the simple wood bar at the back. Don't expect rolls with cute names; the star here is the fish, minimally adorned and pristine. (P.R., 9/98) 776 Arguello (at Cabrillo), S.F. 387-8882. Japanese, D, €.

Pacific Cafe serves simple, reliable seafood in an atmosphere redolent of 1974, when it opened. Lots of dark wood and faintly psychedelic glass in the windows; free wine while you wait. (P.R., 10/98) 7000 Geary (at 34th Ave.), S.F. 387-7091. Seafood, D, $$, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

Singapore Malaysian Restaurant eschews decor for cheap, tasty plates of Straits Chinese cooking, where you'll find flavors ranging from Indian to Dutch colonial to Thai. Seafood predominates in curries, soups, grills, and plenty of rice and noodle dishes. (S.R., 4/97) 836 Clement (at Seventh Ave.), S.F. 750-9518. Malaysian, L/D, €, MC/V.

Straits Cafe has a slightly campy faux-tropical decor, but its Singaporean menu is a kaleidoscope of mingled satisfactions. A touch of Indian curry here, Thai coconut milk and kaffir lime there; masterful deployment of unusual ingredients all the way to a dessert of rice pudding in palm sugar syrup. (P.R., 8/99) 3300 Geary (at Parker), S.F. 668-1783. Singaporean, L/D, $, AE/DC/MC/V.

Tawan's Thai Food It's tiny, it's cute, the prices are reasonable, and the food is tasty. Tom yum is right up there in the gold-star soup pantheon, and the silver noodle salad, skewered tofu in red curry, and eggplant with onions, chilies, and basil are all worth walking the length of Geary barefoot for. (S.R., 8/97) 4403 Geary (at Eighth Ave.), S.F. 751-5175. Thai, L/D, $, AE/DC/MC/V.

Bayview, Hunters Point, and south

Cable Car Coffee Shop Atmospherically speaking, you're looking at your basic downtown South San Fran. old-style joint, one that serves a great Pacific Scramble for $4.95 and the most perfect hash browns to be tasted. (D.L., 3/98) 423 1/2 Grand, S.F. (650) 952-9535. American, B/BR/L, €. Cliff's Bar-B-Q and Seafood Some things Cliff's got going for him: excellent mustard greens, just drenched in flavorfulness; and barbecued you-name-it. Brisket. Rib tips. Hot links. Pork ribs. Beef ribs. Baby backs. And then there're fried chickens and, by way of health food, fried fishes. (D.L., 2/98) 2177 Bayshore (at Blanken), S.F. 330-0736. Barbecue, L/D, €, AE/DC/MC/V.

Gravy's Gravy calls himself the "Gumbo Specialist," and he might be right. It goes for $5 or $8, depending on how much you want — a lot, or a whole honkin'-duty lot — and it includes shell-and-all crab chunks, bone-and-all chicken parts, and sausage and stuff. (D.L., 10/97) 2511 Geneva (at Pueblo), Daly City, 337-9122. Soul food, L/D, €.

JoAnn's Cafe and Pantry has gotten some word-of-mouth recommendations as a dive, but it serves upscale breakfasts with decidedly nondive sides like low-fat chicken basil sausage, bagels, and homemade muffins and scones. (D.L., 12/97) 1131 El Camino Real, S.S.F. (650) 872-2810. American, B/L, $. Kamal's In addition to all the classic Middle Eastern stuff, Kamal's also makes American breakfasts, American sandwiches, burgers, and piroshki. (D.L., 4/98) 2246 Jerrold, S.F. 695-9481. Middle Eastern, B/L/D, €.

Outback Cafe is located way down in with all them warehouses at the end of Revere Street. I found the fare delectable. I got a double cheeseburger and a cup of soup. Don't let what I got fool you, though. This is gourmet stuff. (D.L., 7/94; Restaurant Poll winner, 1995) 1099C Revere (at Griffith), S.F. 822-8119. Café, B/L, €.

Peking Wok is a great Chinese dive in Bayview, right smack on the way to Candlestick. Not counting the 18 special combos for $3.25-$4.50, there are 109 items on the Peking Wok menu. At least 101 of them are under five bucks. (D.L., 1/99) 4920 Third St. (at Palou), S.F. 822-1818. Chinese, L/D, €.

Soo Fong features good inexpensive Chinese food. For the heat-seeking diner, its fiery Szechuan specialties will hit the spot. Nice chow fun and other noodle dishes, too. (Staff) Bayview Plaza, 3801 Third St. (at Evans), S.F. 285-2828. Chinese, L/D, €. Yogurt Expressions The real stars here are the homemade pastries. The more health-conscious can choose from several smoothies and protein drinks. Pizza, sandwiches, and breakfast round out the menu. (Staff) Bayview Plaza, 3801 Third St. (at Evans), S.F. 642-9260. Café, B/L/D, €.

Young's Cafe A restaurant full of cheap, big, decent Chinese food, Young's serves up 15 rice dishes, most of them $2.95, and 64 other standard Chinese things. Only four of those are more than five bucks. (D.L., 12/97) 732 22nd St. (at Third St.) S.F. 285-6046. Chinese, L/D, €.

Berkeley, Emeryville, and north

Ajanta offers a variety of deftly seasoned regional dishes from the Asian subcontinent. The harmonious ambience is rounded off by attentive service, and everything benefits from unique flavors and elegant presentation. (D.R., 11/98) 1888 Solano, Berk. (510) 526-4373. Indian, L/D, $, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

A La Carte features Nathan and Katherine Cheng's notion of home-cooked meals, ranging from such Creole-inspired fare as chicken and andouille sausage gumbo to macaroni and cheese. Great side dishes and desserts, reasonable prices, and personalized service. (D.R., 1/99) 1453 Dwight (at Sacramento), Berk. (510) 548-2322. Creole, D, $. MC/V. Bathroom not wheelchair accessible.

Anna's is the rare place where the fare serves the higher purpose of fostering community. Almost half the menu is dedicated to colorful and tasty salads, and any minor pitfalls are transcended by virtue of owner-singer Anna de Leon's homemade soups and the eclectic selection of desserts. (D.R., 3/98) 1801 University (at Grant), Berk. (510) 849-2662. Café, L/D, €, AE/DC/MC/V.

Breads of India and Gourmet Curries The menu changes every day, so nothing is refrigerated overnight, and the curries benefit from obvious loving care. The daily offerings include one lamb, one chicken, and two vegetarian curries, as well as one tandoori specialty. (D.R., 10/97) 2448 Sacramento (at Dwight), Berk. (510) 848-7684. Indian, L/D, €, MC/V.

Bobby's Backdoor Cajun BBQ has some of the best and cheapest barbecue in the Bay Area. And as good as the BBQ is, the best thing about Bobby's is the atmosphere: live Cajun music and blues, dancing, and a Ping-Pong table. (D.L., 1/99) 12891 San Pablo, Richmond. (510) 232-9299. Barbecue, L/D, €.

Café de la Paz Specialties include African-Brazilian "xim xim" curries, Venezuelan corn pancakes, garnachas de pollo, arepas, fried plantain, jalapeño cornbread, Ecuadorian stuffed potato cakes, grilled prawns, delicious black beans, and heavenly blackened seacakes served with orange-onion yogurt. (D.R., 10/98) 1600 Shattuck (at Cedar), Berk. (510) 843-0662. Latin American, BR/L/D, $, AE/MC/V.

Café Orleans Not every dish is a bargain, but the red beans and rice with spicy andouille sausage, the seafood and sausage gumbo, and the fiery jambalaya are real deal enough. (D.R., 8/98) 2520 Durant (near Telegraph), Berk. (510) 548-2727. Cajun, L/D, $, AE/DISC/MC/V.

Café La Peña nurtures the spirit as much as it pleases the palate. Such hearty main dishes as Chilean lamb stew and paella reflect the kitchen's generosity more than its creativity with spices. (D.R., 6/98) 3105 Shattuck (near Prince), Berk. (510) 849-4846. Latin American, D, $, DC/MC/V.

Café Tululah makes a strong bid for the weekend brunch trade with special scrambles, eggs Benedict, and an unusual corned beef hash. Excellent sandwiches, inventive salads, and simple pasta dishes highlight the lunch menu. (D.R., 4/99) 2512 San Pablo (near Dwight), Berk. (510) 548-4697. Café/California, BR/L, €.

César You'll be tempted to nibble for hours from Chez Panisse-related César's Spanish-inspired tapas — unless you can't get past the addictive sage-and-rosemary-flecked fried potatoes. (D.R., 8/98) 1515 Shattuck (near Vine), Berk. (510) 883-0222. Spanish, D, $, DISC/MC/V.

Cha-Ya Everything chef-proprietor Atsushi Katsumata makes, from the potstickers and nigiri sushi to the steaming bowls of udon, hews to strict vegan standards. Don't miss the amazing things Katsumata does with tofu, whether deep-fried or topped with miso sauce in the dengaku. (D.R., 3/00) 1686 Shattuck (at Virginia), Berk. (510) 981-1213. Japanese vegetarian, D, $, MC/V.

Chez Panisse is a marvel of the freshest ingredients paired with impeccable preparation: downstairs in the subdued restaurant, a four-course prix-fixe dinner is offered; upstairs, in the boisterous café, a more casual menu is served à la carte. (Staff) 1517 Shattuck (at Cedar), Berk. Café, (510) 548-5049, L/D, $$; restaurant, (510) 548-5525, $$$; California, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

Christopher's Café on Solano Stylishly executed fusion cuisine, often combining Asian, Southwestern, and Mediterranean ingredients in a single dish. Almost every unusual combination works, with generous helpings smoothly delivered in beautiful presentations. (D.R., 4/99) 1501A Solano (at Curtis), Albany. (510) 525-1668. Fusion, L/D, $$, AE/MC/V.

Christopher's Nothing Fancy Café Chicken, beef, veggie, and prawn fajitas are the sizzling specialties. Big, thick quesadillas on chipotle tortillas, a peerless chile relleno, and exceptional fresh tomato and tomatillo salsas stand out on a menu of burritos, enchiladas, tacos, and tortilla soup. (D.R., 4/98) 1019 San Pablo (at Marin), Albany. (510) 526-1185. Mexican, L/D, $, AE/MC/V.

Clay Pot Seafood House specialties include steaming clay pots full of fascinating broths and such ingredients as meat balls, Chinese sausage, and whole fish. But just about anything on the menu with "garlic," "Shanghai," or "braised" in the name is sure to float your boat. (D.R., 2/99) 809 San Pablo (near Solano), Albany. (510) 559-8976. Chinese, L/D, $, DISC/MC/V.

Holy Land transforms falafel, hummus, tahini, tabbouleh, and other Middle Eastern standards into gourmet-quality yet home-style delights. There's also gracefully seasoned matzo ball soup, delicate schnitzel, spicy schwarma, and perfect wide-cut french fries. (D.R., 10/98) 2965 College (at Ashby), Berk. (510) 665-1672. Middle Eastern/Kosher, L/D, $, AE/DC/MC/V.

jambalaya, red beans and rice, sausage or oyster po-boys, (greaseless!) fried catfish, and homemade pralines. (D.R., 2/99) 3278 Adeline (at Alcatraz), Berk. (510) 594-9302. Cajun/Creole, L/D, €-$, MC/V.

Lalime's is a long-standing institution in East Bay haute cuisine culture, but there's nothing institutional about the attentive service or the creative and gorgeous dishes. Fixed-price dinners are available weeknights along with an à la carte menu that changes monthly. (D.R., 4/00) 1329 Gilman (at Peralta), Berk. (510) 527-9838. French/Mediterranean, D, $$, AE/DC/MC/V.

Locanda Olmo Fine versions of risotto, gnocchi, and soft polenta pie, terrific thin-crust pizzas, and good traditional desserts have made Locanda Olmo a reliable anchor in the burgeoning Elmwood neighborhood. (D.R., 5/97) 2985 College (near Ashby), Berk. (510) 848-5544. Italian, D, $, MC/V.

Mazzini is a sophisticated, reasonably priced winning combination — stylish, airy decor; smart, snappy service; and dinner dishes ranging from individual pizzas, rustic pasta, and sublime risotto to special wood oven-cooked fish, lamb, pork, and beef specialties. (D.R., 12/98) 2826 Telegraph (near Oregon), Berk. (510) 848-5599. Italian, L/D, $-$$, MC/V.

Minokichi Such dishes as zosui (rice porridge), hamachi nizakana (yellowtail and tofu with teriyaki sauce), and crisp, juicy hamachi kama shioyaki (salted and broiled yellowtail neck) set Minokichi far apart from your standard udon and tempura houses. (D.R., 1/00) 1403 Solano (at Carmel), Albany. (510) 559-9988. Japanese, $, AE/MC/V.

La Note Unique egg dishes and pancakes, big luncheon salads, fancy baguette sandwiches, and hearty weekend dinners. We found it nearly impossible to find fault with either the ratatouille with spicy merguez lamb sausage or the bow-tie noodles topped with grilled chicken breast strips. (D.R., 2/98) 2337 Shattuck (at Durant), Berk. (510) 843-1535. Country French, B/BR/L/D, $$, AE/MC/V. Rest rooms not wheelchair accessible.

Odyssea Caffe and Bistro Don't miss the legendary polenta fries, which come piping hot, dusted with Parmesan, and stacked like Lincoln Logs around a bowl of tomato-herb dipping sauce. (D.R., 7/97) 1849 Shattuck (at Hearst), Berk. (510) 849-1319. Mediterranean, B/BR/L/D, $, MC/V.

Rivoli is a near perfect balance of the neighborhood eatery and the eclectic California cuisine destination restaurant. Save room for superb grilled meats and fish, pasta, and risotto. (D.R., 1/99) 1539 Solano (between Neilson and Peralta), Berk. (510) 526-2542. California, D, $, AE/DISC/MC/V.

Sam's Log Cabin Daily special egg scrambles, great griddle cakes and corn cakes, and exceptional scones and muffins top the morning fare, which also includes gourmet sausage and bacon, hot and cold cereals, and organic coffee. (D.R., 8/99) 945 San Pablo Ave. (at Buchanan), Berk. (510) 558-0494. American, B/L, €, no credit cards.

Santa Fe Bar and Grill Entrées include grilled stuffed chicken with butternut squash risotto and seared sea bass, and any meal that starts with a great Caesar salad is headed in the right direction, even if you know the tolls are going to be steep. (D.R., 3/98) 1310 University (between Acton and Bonar), Berk. (510) 841-4740. California/Mediterranean, BR/L/D, $$, AE/DISC/MC/V.

Voulez-Vous distinguishes itself with its airy Parisian-café setting and a diverse array of beautifully presented crepes and tarts. If those won't fill you up, you can start with one of the bountiful salads and finish up with one of the superb desserts. (D.R., 2/99) 2930 College (near Ashby), Berk. (510) 548-4708. French, L/D, €-$, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

Your Place If all they offered here was pad kra-prow — stir-fried chicken with basil and chili — Your Place would still be our place forever. Venture away from typical Thai menu items toward neau yang num, laab gai, blackboard specials, and at lunch, the "boat noodles" soups. (D.R., 4/98) 1267-71 University (at Bonar), Berk. (510) 548-9781. Thai, L/D, $, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V. Not wheelchair accessible.

Zachary's Chicago Pizza The stuffed pizza is simply out of this world — try the Zachary's special sometime. The fact that both Zachary's outlets are always busy speaks for itself. (Staff) 1853 Solano (at Fresno), Berk. (510) 525-5950; 5801 College (at Oak Grove), Berk. (510) 655-6385. Pizza, L/D, $, AE/MC/V.

Oakland and Alameda

Alta Mar is a Veracruz-style seafood spot. Camerones al mojo de ajo are butterflied and humming with garlic, while pescado frito lived up to the hype. (D.R., 3/97) 1060 E. 12th St. (at 11th Ave.), Oakl. (510) 893-5122. Mexican, L/D, $, AE/DC/MC/V.

Arizmendi is a worker-owned bakery where bread rolls out in seemingly infinite varieties — potato, Asiago, sesame-sunflower. The pièce de résistance is the daily thin-crust, tomato sauce-free, vegetarian pizza. (D.R., 1/99) 3265 Lakeshore (at Mandana), Oakl. (510) 268-8849. Bakery, B/L/D, €. Not wheelchair accessible.

Asena Restaurant Good dishes at Asena, a charming Med/Cal cuisine spot, include individual pizzas, and grilled marinated lamb sirloin in a burgundy-rosemary demi-glace. (D.R., 2/98) 2508 Santa Clara (at Park), Alameda. (510) 521-4100. California/Mediterranean, L/D, $$, AE/MC/V.

Autumn Moon Cafe Enter this happy, happening spot near Lake Merritt and you'll feel like you've been welcomed into a big, friendly dinner party. The menu includes baked polenta and grilled lamb chops, and for breakfast, taco scramble and blintzes. (S.R., 11/97) 3909 Grand (at Sunny Slope), Oakl. (510) 595-3200. California, B/BR/L/D, $, MC/V.

Le Cheval Shrimp rolls and peanut sauce, the fried Dungeness crab, the marinated "orange flavor" beef, the buttery lemon-grass prawns — it's all fabulous. (Staff) 1007 Clay (at 10th St.), Oakl. (510) 763-8495. Vietnamese, L/D, €, MC/V.

Garibaldi's on College focuses on Mediterranean-style seafood, from tantalizing appetizers (baked oysters, scallop ceviche) to perfectly done entrées (grilled swordfish, spaghetti with scallops and prawns). (D.R., 9/97) 5356 College (near Manilla), Oakl. (510) 595-4000. Mediterranean, L/D, $$, AE/MC/V.

Gerardo's Mexican Restaurant offers all the expected taquería fare plus breakfast and dinner platters — huevos rancheros, fajitas, camarones a la plancha, pescado dorado. But a main reason to visit this humble storefront is to pick up a dozen of Maria's wonderfully down-home chicken or pork tamales. (D.R., 3/99) 3811 MacArthur (near 35th Ave.), Oakl. (510) 531-5255. Mexican, B/L/D, €-$.

Giglio combines a lively yet intimate café atmosphere with moderately priced thin-crust pizzas and wines, hearty pastas, and soups. (D.R., 9/98) 5427 College (at Kales), Oakl. (510) 594-0798. Italian, L/D, $, AE/MC/V. Not wheelchair accessible.

Kandahar Chef-owner Daud Zaheer invests his Afghan lamb, chicken, and vegetarian dishes with big-time love and attention and presents them beautifully at bargain prices. (D.R., 11/99) 2118 Mount Diablo Blvd. (at Pacheco), Concord. (925) 676-2243. Afghan, L/D, $, AE/MC/V.

Mama's Royal Cafe Breakfast is the draw here — even just-coffee-for-me types might succumb when confronted with waffles, French toast, pancakes, tofu scramble, huevos rancheros, and 20 different omelettes. (S.R., 5/98) 4012 Broadway (at 40th St.), Oakl. (510) 547-7600. American, B/L, €.

La Mexicana has a 40-year tradition of stuffing its customers with delicious, simply prepared staples (enchiladas, tacos, tamales, chile rellenos, menudo) and specials (carnitas, chicken mole), all served in generous portions at moderate prices. (D.R., 1/97) 3930 E. 14th St., Oakl. (510) 533-8818. Mexican, L/D, €, MC/V.

Nava inspires positive feelings as soon as you sit down. The menu offers several savory entrées (like crispy skin salmon, filet mignon, cilantro linguine) and numerous tempting starters, all prepared with a light and expert touch. (D.R., 11/97) 5478 College (between Taft and Lawton), Oakl. (510) 655-4770. California, D, $, AE/MC/V.

Ninna You'll find steaks, duck breast, and pork loin on the same menu as chicken in yellow curry, as well as such intriguing and successful fusions as penne pasta "pad Thai" style and veal "lthaila." (D.R., 2/00) 4066 Piedmont (between 40th and 41st Sts.), Oakl. (510) 601-6441. Thai fusion, L/D, $-$$, MC/V.

Oakland Grill remains a cornerstone of Oakland's produce district, offering breakfasts, lunches, and dinners that fall somewhere between hearty blue-collar staples (steaks, pork chops, burgers) and middlebrow gourmet fare (blackened fish, pasta primavera, crepes). (D.R., 6/98) 301 Franklin (at Third St.), Oakl. (510) 835-1176. American, B/BR/L/D, $-$$, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

Organic Café and Macrobiotic Grocery This down-home animal flesh-free zone proves that lentils, pinto beans, garbanzos, and greens have plenty of flavor, as well as nutrition, when they're prepared with loving care by the Organic Café's rotating crew of cooks. (D.R., 11/98) 1050 40th St. (at Adeline), Oakl. (510) 653-6510. Rest room not wheelchair accessible. Vegetarian, BR/L/D, $, AE/DISC/MC/V.

Original Kasper's Hot Dogs Occupying the same tiny triangle building since 1947, Harry Yaglijian's humble and supremely hospitable little stand has one item on the menu — the best hot dog in town. (D.R., 5/98) 4521 Telegraph (at Shattuck), Oakl. (510) 655-3215. American, L/D, €.

Il Porcellino When faced with a menu like Il Porcellino's, which taunts the hungry diner with pumpkin and ricotta manicotti, swordfish and shrimp ravioli, polenta with meatballs, and leg of lamb filled with ricotta and mint, any concern for health benefits should take a backseat to hedonism. (D.R., 6/97) 6111 LaSalle (at Moraga), Oakl. (510) 339-2149. Italian, L/D, $, AE/DC/DISC/MC/V.

Restaurante Doña Tomás offers upscale versions of enchiladas (wild mushroom, zucchini, and goat cheese) and carnitas (Niman Ranch pork), as well as tantalizing chicken-lime-cilantro soup and bountiful pozole. (D.R., 10/99) 5004 Telegraph (near 51st St.), Oakl. (510) 450-0522. Mexican, BR/D, $, AE/MC/V.

Rockridge Café offers at least three good reasons not to eat hamburgers: bountiful breakfasts, a savory meat loaf special, and hearty, unpretentious Acadian cassoulet. But the archetypal hand-crafted burgers, wide-cut fries, and creamy, straw-clogging milkshakes remain the cornerstones of the menu. (D.R., 12/98) 5492 College (at Forest), Oakl. (510) 653-1567. American, B/L/D, $, MC/V.

Sergio's Trattoria Servings are large and presented with no pretense; standards include plates of spaghetti alla Siciliana, carrettiera, puttanesca, or con polpettina (meatballs). (D.R., 1/98) 5299 College (at Bryant), Oakl. (510) 655-2869. Italian, D, $$, MC/V.

Sophie's offers a limited, occasionally changing menu of nouvelle French-inspired dishes, from pork tenderloin and duck à l'orange to ginger-soy sea bass and Swiss chard ravioli. A good wine list and exceptional starters (seafood beignets) and desserts (classic chocolate mousse, almond bread pudding) round off a completely satisfying experience. (D.R., 3/00) 4228 Park Blvd. (at Wellington), Oakl. (510) 482-5303. French, D, $$, MC/V.

Tijuana serves big round bowls and plates teeming with shrimp, crab, octopus, and fish — in cocktails, salads, and soups. The place is usually packed and loud, but friendly servers, good salsa, and Mexican beer at $2.50 a pop more than compensate for the noise. (D.R., 3/98) 1308 International Blvd. (at 13th Ave.), Oakl. (510) 532-5575. Mexican, L/D, $, MC/V. Not wheelchair accessible.

Veronica's Regulars fill up the 23 seats for the daily specials of corned beef and cabbage or the spicy Friday barbecue, as well as huge portions of "grammas" meat loaf, "Louisiana style" catfish, "Moon Shiner's" mustard glazed baked ham, and the few concessions to nouvelle tastes, like the chipotle chicken salad and portabello mushroom sandwiches. (D.R., 2/00) 1601 San Pablo (at 16th St.), Oakl. (510) 834-7161. American, L/D, €, DC/V/MC. ♦ are traceable back to the second century A.D. It tells stories through movement as hula and sign language do, but uses elaborate footwork, telling facial expressions, and a regimented physical definitude and fluidity.

In performance, after the goddess has been called, singer Randhini Ramathan — only 20 years old, and with Carnatic vocal a sand castle, plays the vina, braids hair, pours a glass of water, picks flowers. "While dance is visual music," she says when giving props to the orchestra, her face accidentally half-spotlighted like Dietrich, "music is also aural dance." My companion, herself a professional Bharata Natyam dancer, spends the evening awestruck and sums it up concisely: "She's the bomb."

Later that night at the Polka de Mayo show at Bottom of the Hill, local kraut-punks Polkacide and the "Polish-Mexican Appreciation Society" celebrate "the 145th anniversary of the Polish Annexation of Mexico." The half-cocked crowd bounces and shifts like parameria in a petri dish, the air smells like joyfully drunken sweat, and around 10 band members cram the stage: grizzled and bushy-eyebrowed mad-scientist saxophonist, accordion-squeezing fräulein in a dirndl, bass player in thermal socks and a chef's hat, bald guy with metal spikes where a Mohawk should be and a string of bratwurst hanging from the leg of his leather lederhosen. They launch into "In Heaven There's No Beer": "... That's why we drink it here ... And when we're gone from here / All our friends will be drinking all our beer..." Even audience members who've never heard the song before know instinctively when to shout "Hey!"

Polkacide then launch into a standard favorite: "The Turkey Song."

Eager fans clot at the front of the stage (many wearing Polkacide's "Be'er Now" T-shirts), and all join arms in a giant hunched-over circle, kicking and singing along, snapping upright to do the song's required hand claps and ass wiggles. The accordion, it can be said, is the whoopee cushion of instruments, and "The Turkey Song" is the grown folks' answer to "The Hokey Pokey." Polka might be the happiest, most ridiculous music on earth, and punk rock polka is even more so. Viva kielbasa.

Sunday the venerable Last Gasp of San Francisco publishers celebrate their 30th anniversary in the business of putting out comics, banned books, almost-banned books, and all-around questionable material with a party and barbecue (damn that rain) at Cafe Cocomo. Camo-nets with Christmas lights shroud the ceiling of the cavernous club; palm trees and foliage line the walls inside and out; Mexican power ballads play on the sound system; industry freaks and devotees take advantage of the potluck and open bar; and Chicken John, ringleader of San Francisco's own Circus Redickulness, makes purposefully amateurish animal balloons for a throng of excitable children. Reverend Howland Owl, the default MC for the afternoon, gets onstage and assures the gathering of friends, associates, fans, and comic-book legends that, despite the subculture's waning following and the proliferation of all things Internet, "comic books are still your best entertainment value." A boyish man in a bow tie and jacket walks across the dance floor holding a toilet seat. He disappears behind a speaker.

The Reverend introduces the "Daniel Show" as a small blue trunk is brought out onstage. The lid pops open, and Bow Tie Guy amazingly emerges from it. Once upright, Daniel promptly doubles himself over and talks into the microphone, ass to the crowd, face between his legs. He introduces Bubbles the Super Rabbit, who just sits there as he encourages it to jump through a destringed tennis racket. Undaunted, Daniel wiggles himself through it, joint by joint, from head to toe, then squirms through the aforementioned toilet seat. He folds himself around himself, puts both legs behind his head, pops his shoulder seemingly out of socket, turns his arm a full 360 degrees (yecch), and ends up on the ground with the bottoms of his feet on top of his cranium before getting back into the trunk.

The Bay Area's Bluegrass Intentions provide some proficient pickin' and grinnin', pausing occasionally to introduce song topics: a fitting true-story "murder ballad" from the 1800s that was so controversial back then that it was considered a misdemeanor to even sing it, and a love song about a book. (Also fitting.)

More circus acts follow the band: Molotov Malcontent breaks a lightbulb with a hammer and is fed its pieces by a brave volunteer. He merrily crunches and swallows the shards of glass, then washes them down with a swig of Windex. "Can we get a little more pain in the monitor, please?" Chicken John deadpans. The Reverend David Apocalypse, who claims that his head is made entirely of wood, shoves first an ice pick and then a nail up his nose, and lets Chicken John break a cinder block over his skull with a sledgehammer. Chris Carny performs a card trick he stole from the Statler Brothers show, then escapes from a chained and padlocked straitjacket. Appropriately enough, Bluegrass Intentions then launch into "Shackles and Chains."

Last Gasp head honcho Ron Turner, at the performers' behest, makes a short and humble speech. "It's been a great thirty years," he murmurs, and the crowd hoots and claps louder than it has all day. All the world's a stage, it's said, but the bookish, freakish, truly "alternative" Last Gasp publishers prefer to see it as a sideshow tent. ♦

After members of Maitri's staff offer some words of welcome and a convincing plea for donations, the lights go dim and a four-piece Indian orchestra positions itself off to the side of the stage. Alarmel Valli's soothing voice flies out over the mostly Indian crowd, the sound of the bells on her ankles jingling quietly backstage. The diva introduces her first piece as an invocation to the goddess Shakti, "who represents everything from creation to dissolution, from the benign to the sublime, from the beautiful to the horrific." The congregation seems to be waiting for an audience with a venerated, wise, and beautiful muse — a fitting beginning at a benefit for women who need help getting their inner goddesses back.

Bharata Natyam, a devotional style of dance that was created in Hindu temples, banned by the British raj in the late 1800s, and revived by Indian scholars in the 1920s, provides modern interpretations of ancient routines that chops that almost rival those of Pakistani idol Nusrat Fateh Ali Khan — begins a sung poem over mridangam, violin, and cymbals, with the violin perfectly echoing her every flutter and trill like acid trails. Bedecked in jewels, flowers, and an expensive sari, eyes rimmed with kohl, Valli carries herself like a queen. Not only is she the pinnacle of grace and precision in her field, with a globe-trotting schedule and armfuls of awards and accolades — Bharatha Natyam's Nureyev or Baryshnikov — she's also known for men filling up the front rows of all her concerts because she's such a babe. It's shocking to find out she's 44 years old.

Entirely controlled, at once flowing and exact, Valli alternates between bursts of pure dance and easy-to-decipher narrative. She gets jilted by a wayward lover, gossips to girlfriends, builds

That's gotta hurt: Daniel of the Daniel Show puts himself in — make that through — the hot seat.

THE BORING, BEAUTIFUL FUTURE

THE DEBATE ABOUT MP3 TECHNOLOGY IS HEATED, ANARCHISTIC, AND HYPERBOLIZED BEYOND BELIEF — AND IT'S ALL WEDDED TO THE IDEA OF MUSIC AS A COMMODITY. BUT THE BIGGEST PAYOFFS OF MUSIC ON THE NET WILL BE ARTISTIC. BY TIM QUIRK

The music business has witnessed so many stunning developments in the past few weeks that this very sentence will probably go out of date before I finish typing it. One minute Metallica's suing Napster, then before you can say, "What dickheads!" they've collected the names of more than 300,000 Napster users they accuse of illegally trading Metallica tunes. A few days after a federal judge rules that MP3.com's Beam-it feature violates copyright laws, the company announces a new subscription service for classical music lovers, and five minutes after that Universal and Sony decide they too will develop a subscription-based service for people seeking downloadable music on the Internet.

Record companies are terrified, entrepreneurs are thrilled, and most musicians are confused as hell. A major transformation is under way in the music business, a shake-up so big pundits are resorting to phrases like "format change," "paradigm shift," and creepiest of all, "new revenue streams." Since I still cling to some of my punk rock ideals, I prefer the word "revolution," but I should make it clear at the outset here that I work for one of the dot-coms hoping to capitalize on this brave new world.

Down to business

Because the revolution has just begun and nobody has a clue how it's going to end, there's a heady atmosphere of hope, fear, and greed swirling around everyone jockeying for position in this space. Some people insist digitally distributed music will shift the industry away from long-playing formats like LPs and CDs and move it back to a single-track orientation (I've heard folks say we're returning to the days of 45s, and I've heard others say it will be more like the days of sheet music). Some people mutter that the changes will be deeper and more severe; they foresee piracy becoming so pervasive that no one will be willing to buy music anymore.

There's a bizarre, lovable chorus of voices singing. One moment Chicken Little takes the lead, but before you know it you're listening to Candide. CDs are going to disappear, and so are brick and mortar retail outlets! No, no, downloadable music is going to spur traditional CD sales! My favorite line of all so far comes from no less a personage than Seagram's chief exec Edgar Bronfman, who, in a statement that seemed goofy but was actually kind of bold, proclaimed, "We need to stop thinking about selling round things."

The curious thing about all the chatter is that, even at its most forward thinking, most of it remains wedded to the idea of music as a commodity. When analysts and panelists do bother discussing musicians and their audience, it's almost always in terms of whether the former is going to get screwed and if the latter can be convinced to stop stealing (and, if audiences can be convinced to keep ponying up the dough, who stands to get the biggest cut). But in all likelihood, the most interesting effects of the coming business shake-up are going to be artistic ones. They will indeed be profound, but they will also be a lot more subtle than most people currently suspect.

The sky is falling. Or not

Here's a true story. Like most true stories, it's amazing in a matter-of-fact way: I recently overheard two young (18 to 25 years old) men discussing how big their music collections were. The guy who won, the guy with the biggest collection, did not say that he had thousands of records, tapes, or CDs. He said, "I've got over seventy gigabytes of music on my hard drive."

That's more than 1,300 CDs' worth of songs residing, for all intents and purposes, in space. It's difficult for people like me, who grew up staring at cover art while we spun LPs, to understand the appeal of that, but it's not too hard to guess just where it leads. Napster and MP3.com might get sued out of existence, but the technology can't be disappeared. The smartest labels will adapt, because eventually everything ever recorded will be available online, legally or not. People are going to get very used to hearing what they want, when they want. And as our relationship to music changes, so will the music itself.

The utopian version of what's going on plays out something like this: idiosyncratic geniuses who can't get past such traditional gatekeepers as A&R guys, radio programmers, and jaded music journalists can now make their music available on the Internet, where kids in North Dakota towns with no cool record stores can find it, grab it, and then start sharing it with friends across the globe. In another scenario, consumers who really want that Shania Twain song they heard on the radio don't have to drive to Tower, look for a parking space, remember the title of the new CD, wait in line, then plunk down a twenty and shake their heads at how little change they get back. Instead, they can buy the one track they want online for a reasonable fee and start singing along almost immediately.

The dystopian version isn't all that different from the first, actually: people who consider themselves idiosyncratic geniuses join 35 million other wannabes in putting their music on the Net, where it continues to be ignored by kids in North Dakota towns that actually have one cool record store, only the record store now has a Going Out of Business sign on the door because everybody's using Napster to trade songs for free. All the good bands starve, and Shania Twain gets to keep making music because it's gonna be another couple of years before the bulk of her audience figures out this Internet stuff.

The current state of affairs, as it happens, is a little bit closer to dystopia — the vast majority of what's legally available either costs too much, takes too long to download, or is of dubious merit, while most of the real action involves college kids trading stuff that's already popular (I'm willing to bet that the young man with 70 gigabytes of music has the new Smashing Pumpkins record on his hard drive; I doubt he's got the new Ass Ponys. Either way, I'm sure he didn't pay a penny for any of it.) But as I said, the revolution just started, and I can't help thinking that that kind of access to music is bound to transform people's listening habits. Complaints that kids using Napster are stealing miss an important point: these are casual thieves, in no hurry to get out of the store. They spend a lot of time looking around for just what they want.

They're browsing! Music is important to them, and they're sampling what's out there in a manner that's never before been possible.

Space is the place

Right now, we're accustomed to going through several steps before "owning" a song. Maybe we hear it on the radio and decide we want to hear it more often. Then we have to go buy it. Maybe we drive to a store, or maybe we type in the title at amazon.com and check our mailbox every few days. Or maybe we have a friend tape it for us. But eventually it's ours, and we can hear it whenever we want. If we have the CD or the tape close at hand, that is.

Very soon, however, there will be virtually no lag between thinking about a song and being able to play it almost anywhere. Even now you can buy portable MP3 players with four gigabytes of memory, which is the same thing as carrying around a Discman and almost 80 of your favorite CDs. But imagine a day when even the player is redundant, when literally all songs are stored somewhere on the Internet, and wireless technology means you can type the name of a band or a song or an album into your dashboard or some handheld device at the beach, and hear absolutely anything you feel like.

What will people choose once they have instant access to everything? The cynic in me says, oh shit, another century of classic fucking rock. But that voice gets shouted down by a more optimistic one, and the more optimistic one wins because just as things are changing for fans, they're changing for artists, too.

Many artists have sensed the astonishing impact file-sharing applications such as Napster will have on the music business. So far, however, most of them are swallowing the RIAA's party line: musical compositions are intellectual property protected by copyright law; trading them without remunerating the copyright holder is akin to piracy; applications such as these are therefore the enemy. Again, though, that logic begins with the assumption that music is a commodity that is supposed to be bought and sold. Of course songs are the intellectual property of their composers, and of course they have value. But saying something is valuable is not the same thing as saying you must pay for it. Applications such as Napster and Gnutella force us to question the value of a song. What's a hit single worth to you? One dollar? Two dollars? Sony and BMG say they plan to charge around three dollars a tune when they start selling downloadable music (mostly, I suspect, to keep the Towers and HMVs of the world happy). Some Web sites sell songs for fifty cents, or ninety-nine.

What's it worth?

Personally, I've always thought songs were priceless. That's part of why I'm convinced the vast majority of musicians stand to gain more by distributing their music themselves, for free if necessary, than they do from agreeing to let record companies distribute it for them at an outrageous markup. It's a sad reality that after the average musician on a major label spends his big advance, he will never see a penny in royalties.

(Disclosure number two: I work for a dot-com now, but I used to be in a band that released records on indies and on majors, so it's entirely possible that everything I'm about to say is a wish rather than a prediction. The thing is, the system didn't really treat me too badly — my band didn't win the lottery, but we did go home with some pretty nifty consolation prizes, including a hefty publishing advance, an opportunity to spend what we thought it would take to make the records of our dreams, and a slew of "I got drunk with famous people" anecdotes that I firmly believe are worth more than that publishing advance, seeing as how I still have them.)

Possibilities

So here's why I say the future will be both boring and beautiful: major labels are not going away, and neither are managers who get 20 percent, or $200-an-hour lawyers who tell you the label just won't budge on the packaging deduction. The things they say as they smile at you will change, but they'll still be making sure their own pockets are lined first.

However, the music business is going to stop being an either/or proposition. Once you give every band in the world its own distribution channel, hooking up with a label becomes an option rather than a necessity. There will still be blockbuster acts, but I suspect we will need these more for cultural reasons than business ones — because the true beneficiaries of music's digital distribution are going to be the bands and labels that figure out how to harness the Internet's uncanny potential for niche marketing.

It's going to be much more possible for bands to support themselves without shifting a million units — maybe they distribute their work for free and support themselves touring and/or selling related merchandise such as T-shirts, or maybe the music "feels free" to the fans who download it, but the bands get paid by performing rights organizations such as BMI and ASCAP who collect licensing fees from Napster or AOL or whoever's making money gaining eyeballs (and eardrums) by offering people access to the music they want.

That's not some pie-in-the-sky scenario: the high muckety-mucks at ASCAP might be pretending they're on the RIAA's side right now, but at least a couple of visionaries within the organization are developing a passive technology that will basically watermark digital audio files so that their every movement through cyberspace can be tracked. Unlike the Secure Digital Music Initiative, which attempts to turn songs into locked boxes that can only be opened by their rightful owners (and any maladjusted hacker who relishes a challenge), watermarking begins with the assumption that digital files will be freely traded, and simply tries to count how often each one is being used — it's a fancy meter reader. And if you know anything about the archaic way performing rights organizations track air-play now, you won't waste any time complaining about Big Brother; you'll just want to know how soon watermarking will be operational so your group can start getting its fair share.

Are you likely to make a killing this way? Not very. But you will, if you want, be able to make and distribute work that does not touch a universal chord, find an audience that shares your interest, and build that audience over years without anyone asking why you haven't recouped yet. With a little legwork and a modicum of savvy, bands with any talent will be able to find an audience large enough to maintain them without signing away their lives.

Information explosion

A lot of people roll their eyes at the hobbyists filling up open directories such as MP3.com and Riffage, but I think they signal a real shift in how musicians are going to think about what gets presented to an audience. At my company, writers listen to downloadable music nine hours a day, five days a week. If you want to get a comprehensive sense of what's going on — as opposed to what A&R guys and program directors hope is going on — we're the ones to talk to. We can't tell you what the next big thing is, but we can tell you what's really happening, whether or not it's marketable.

Sure, the Internet is littered with plenty of half-assed demos by teenage garage bands, painfully unsexy R&B crooners, and rhythm-challenged rappers all dreaming of fame. But there are also hordes of people making music just to hear what it sounds like. You can find a couple thousand bands who worship Ween and Frank Zappa. You can find hundreds of young teens praising Jesus in voices as sincere or saccharine as you prefer. You can find rhymes that boggle the mind, loop libraries, instrumentals waiting for lyrics, soundtracks for video games that don't exist, a capella versions of old Toto tunes, Japanese bluegrass bands, Italian hip-hop acts, early music ensembles playing krumphorns and bombards, gamelan orchestras, toasting DJs ... the list could Napster, Napster, Napster. Sometimes you wish people would just shut up about the damn thing. Sure, the glimpse it offers us of a future where the exact music we want is just a mouse click away is pretty exciting, but the present reality isn't quite so appealing: it's hard to sympathize with the whining millionaires who claim kids are stealing their royalties, and it's just as hard to congratulate the students with unlimited broadband access who are making the most use of the device.

Because I'm a semi-elitist music journalist, I'm far more offended by the lack of anything I personally like on most users' hard drives than I am by Napster's potential to defraud multinational conglomerates such as Sony and Metallica. Telling myself I was conducting important research for this article, I downloaded Napster and typed "the Mekons" into the search box. Result? "0 Songs found." (Shameless plug for my own company: type the same thing in at Listen.com, and you'll find 41 tracks.)

Since queries for other brilliant but obscure bands yielded similarly grim results, I was tempted to just quit the program. But Napster has chat rooms, and it was late, and I probably didn't need that last beer, so I checked out the Punk room. I don't know what I expected to find, exactly. I guess maybe I thought that's where the kids with the cool shit were.

I did not find the kids with cool shit. All I found was someone from Holland downloading the new No Doubt record and a bunch of people talking about how much chem sux. Nobody believed me when I said I was writing an article for the S.F. Bay Guardian and wanted to talk about copyright infringement.

Actually, it was kind of humiliating. They called me a dumb$*&. When I mentioned I was 35 (somebody asked, I think it was CATPOWER), they became particularly cruel. They claimed that I was probably not even a real punk. When I pointed out that No Doubt was not particularly punk, they called me closed-minded.

As I said, it was late, and by now I'd opened another beer. I wanted to explain that judging people by their age was closed-minded, too. But instead I just bet them nobody there could name the original drummer for the Clash. They didn't even try to answer. They just kept calling me $*&%head.

go on forever, really. For every 10 guitarists making like Steve Vai, there's a heavy metal drummer recording his solos, and for every 10 of those there's some avant-garde jazz dude improvising on an alto sax.

And every one of those musicians, no matter how hopeless or obscure, suddenly has access to an unprecedented amount of information about who's listening. Just as an example, any 12-year-old who farts into his four-track and posts the result to MP3.com can check in each day to see exactly how many people went to his page the day before, how many people previewed his tune, and how many people downloaded it.

Again, developments like that one will mutate art and commerce simultaneously. On the one hand, the business implications of such incredibly precise statistics are hard to grasp. It's good for performers, because the more accurate and easily accessible that information becomes, the harder it is for anyone distributing music to get creative with the ledgers. But don't shed any tears for the suits — that kind of information is gold, and once you tack on individual e-mail addresses for anyone who downloaded some band's song, folks with MBAs are going start paying people much less than it's really worth to get it.

On the other hand, instantaneous feedback affects artists in ways that are difficult to measure but no less real. If you're a nobody, of course, the simple knowledge that somebody is listening motivates you to keep going. But what if you're semi-established? What if you've always claimed that you don't give a damn what people expect, you're all about making the music you hear in your head? What do you do when the universe hands you on a silver platter the opportunity to finally do so? Do you rise to the challenge? And if you do, what happens the next day, when your numbers plummet?

Let's talk about the Smashing Pumpkins some more. They're kind of big. In 1998 they made a record called Adore that was experimental in the sense that it lacked many of the musical elements that had originally helped the band get so big. And, in relative terms, it tanked. It didn't sell as well as the albums that made the band big in the first place, and it didn't get the kind of reviews that suggest that all the people who didn't buy it then would be changing their minds at some point in the future. Two years later, the Smashing Pumpkins are back with their old drummer and their old gigantic guitars. That's a good example of one way feedback affects bands.

Creative cycles

I am, of course, painting with the broadest possible strokes. In fact, I haven't listened to any Smashing Pumpkins albums all the way through. Devoted fans would probably tell me I've missed the point of both Adore and whatever the hell the new album's called. But that's just it. Devoted fans kids milling around in the back. Digitally distributed music will not ignore the kids milling around in back.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE RIAA

Dear Sirs and Madams,

I have been following your efforts to destroy Napster. Although I think the technology behind Napster is genuinely revolutionary and will change the way the world experiences music, the people who use their chat rooms have poor taste and are somewhat heartless. Also, none of the songs I personally like can be found on the damn thing. So I want to help you.

Here is my idea. It will work. Since it costs a lot less than suing everybody you can think of, I would appreciate it if you took some of the savings and distributed them to the people in bands you often claim to be protecting.

1. Drop your suit and fire all the lawyers.
2. Hire some old guy with an authoritative voice to lecture for three and a half minutes on the evils of copyright infringement.
3. Tape this.
4. Convert the tape into an MP3 file (the guy in the mail room can probably do this for you).
5. Save this MP3 tens of thousands of times, each time giving it the name of a Top 40 song you wish to protect.
6. Distribute these files to every single major-label employee in the world.
7. Instruct these employees to connect to Napster.
8. Wait one week.

I suggest you do this immediately, before groups like Negativland, or worse, poets, figure out that they can distribute their work to hundreds of thousands of innocent children just by giving it the same title as 'N Sync's new single.

Faithfully yours,
Tim Quirk

But it does promise bands who don't care about those kids a potential arena-full of front-row listeners, listeners who have always taken great glee in following the twists and turns of various musicians' visions, and who will be equally thrilled when they discover how much more quickly and intimately the Internet allows them to interact with their favorite acts. And like a bunch of physicists observing subatomic particles, those listeners will unwittingly influence the decisions artists make about what gets recorded, and how.

The same thing happens now, of course, just not as fast — but it's that very speed that's going to change how we experience music. We're accustomed to waiting at least 18 months or so before hearing a new batch of tunes from an act, and we think it's natural to track an artist's progress by comparing and contrasting the set from 1998 with the set from 2000. But that's a business cycle, not a creative one — songs come when they come. A lot of musicians can't make a good record every two years; others can't wait that long.

Offering options

So here's the weird part. All that speed will actually liberate musicians by allowing them to work at their own pace. What digitally distributed music really offers artists is options: if you've got one or several songs you want to get out there, you'll be able to release them without waiting three months for the label to turn around the packaging. If you don't think your new material is up to snuff, you won't be beholden to a major label's marketing schedule (and you can probably afford to wait, if you're nurturing a large enough fan base via your own Web site). There won't be just one business model; there will be several, or dozens, or hundreds, all adapting constantly to milk whatever cash they can out of a boggling variety of cows.

Art and commerce will always collide, and I don't pretend for a moment that this will stop in the future, or even that it should. One hundred million "artists" collectively gazing into their navels on the Internet is not automatically a good thing. But I do find the prospect more exciting than frightening, if only because such a phenomenon can't help emphasizing the Music half of the Music Business. It's not hard to imagine two tiers developing: musicians who want to be famous, and call on the major labels' marketing muscle to help them cut through the clutter, and musicians who just want to create. When you get bored of one, the other will always be there. And each will influence what the other gets up to, of course.

To the casual listener, it won't seem all that different from what we have now, which is why it's kind of boring. But I suspect there will be a lot fewer casual listeners in the future.

That's the beautiful part. ♦

Bobby Valenzuela's 1938 "Bonnie and Clyde" Chevy lowrider has a tommy gun and bags of loot in its trunk. Julio Ruela's 1939 Chevy Master Deluxe is flossed with mohair upholstery and an old turntable. Inside Tony Montez's 1948 Chevy Fleetline there's a place to hang your hat and a fan to keep you cool.

We know less about the Chevy lowrider painted on the cover of Mas alla, a six-song EP from a new crew of East Los Angeles funk instrumentalists who keep the slow-and-low car tradition alive in their name, Slowrider. The painting is by Victor Gastelum, and like all of Gastelum's work — which since 1988 has included shimmery portraits of Lucha Libre greets, a sainted Julio Cesar Chavez, and a still-life with lowrider bike in a baroque wooden frame — is a hybrid of spray paint and stencil cut from acetate film.

The Slowrider Chevy is streaked red and black, and it leaves behind a blinding white wake. Unlike classic Duke's car club lowriders, Gastelum's lowrider is without a boulevard or even a car show. There is no public space in Gastelum's painting — no Whittier Boulevard Friday night, no family barbecue, no crowd of cholos waiting for a bounce demonstration — the car is just frozen in motion, flying through a purple stormscape of puffed cloud craters and leaden planes of charcoal.

Excess and specificity are central to the lowrider aesthetic, yet Gastelum's lowrider is vague and ghostly, a color-enhanced automotive X ray that gives you form and feeling over content and artifice. Its lines are blurred, its interior a mystery — more an intimation of a lowrider than a representation of one. We don't even know how far its suspension has been lowered or where it's going. Just "mas alla," farther from here, into a visual unknown.

Before Slowrider, Gastelum sprayed a '60-something Chevy Milagrosa on the cover of Calexico's 1998 The Black Light, an album of imaginary Southwest desert noir full of dusty spaghetti-Mexican guitar strums and mariachi trumpets. Gastelum painted just the front end, a forward-marching dart of black body paint glowing with neon daiquiri ice green trim. Above it he painted the band's name in classic Chicano Gothic lettering, which left the album looking like a cropped Mexican calendar painting advertising a band instead of tires or cigarettes.

On the album's back cover Gastelum superimposed a bathed-in-green Virgin over the front of the Milagrosa, her halo suddenly resembling a hubcap — the Mexican working-class Mary who appeared before a Mexican peasant as the hood ornament on a piece of Mexican working-class art. Gastelum brings the sacred down into the rasquache profane.

As Gastelum writes in the recent collection Ciudad Híbrida/Hybrid Art: The Production of Art in Alien Territory (SCI-Arc Public Access Press), "Mixing these images and creating a new image from them is not only like being able to talk in several languages at once, but also inventing a new one in the process."

Gastelum paints no lowriders on Calexico's latest, Hot Rail, but comes up with three new stencil-spray additions to his gallery of hybrid chicanismo cool, all aflame in a tinted orange haze: a modish ex-chola, who looks to be straight out of a Love and Rockets comic, lighting a smoke; the vibrating cover image of a welder blasting a scrap of track rail; and on the back a veterano in a buttoned-up coat and ski cap. When taken together with Gastelum's images for The Black Light, these stencils continue an envisioning of urban Chicano style — lowriders, spray can graffiti placas, cholo gear — re-placed in the deserts and labor towns of a Southwest that he projects on blank screens of dueling colors: black and green, black and orange, black and red.

There is a strong sense of identity in all of Gastelum's characters, but it's an identity that's been dislocated from familiar visual contexts. Like painter Solomon Huerta's pastel back-of-the-head portraits of Chicano men, Gastelum's spray paint stencils push at what curator Rita Gonzalez recently described in Art Issues as "post-chicano" art: art born from within the aesthetic traditions of Chicano visual history that gradually — by generational increments — moves outside of them.

The only one of Gastelum's Hot Rail images with any background location is the smiling, old-timer vato loco. But he's not spraying his name on the wall or flipping switches on an Impala. He's standing against a paper-thin cathedral wall of gold and white between two obelisks of divine light, with a slight once-was-a-gangster lean and with his hands in his coat pockets. He's a proud, chest-puffed symbol of everyday divinity, heroic grace that's brute and mundane.

Gastelum gives him no legs. His body vanishes beyond the trim of his long coat. He's been taken from somewhere and brought here, pasted into a make-believe world of superhero welders and sky-streaking lowriders where it's perfectly normal for him to be a god. ♦

The pasty triumph

It was so sick, I couldn't even get aroused.

George Kuchar April 14, 2000, 5:13 p.m.

Blurring time, space, costumes, jewelry, identities, and of course sex, sexes, and sexus, Flaming Creatures is well served by the above thoughts. It was lensed with stolen, expired film stock (for an alleged $300) in 1962 on the roof of New York's creaking Windsor Theater, and there are few lines it doesn't cross, few synapses it spares. Seeing it (and video recordings of his performances) today, one could make a case for Jack Smith as America's first and only committed anarchist filmmaker-actor; Flaming Creatures, though screened since the '70s, is still legally banned in New York City, according to J. Hoberman, senior critic at the Village Voice, who has been championing Smith's work for years and will be presenting (as well as annotating) his work at Yerba Buena Center for the Arts this week.

Intended for a large screen in one theater, Flaming Creatures was a malevolent, glorious gesture to a devout underground film audience described by the director in Smith's book Wait for Me at the Bottom of the Pool as "the scum of Baghdad." "The audiences would get antsy," George Kuchar, San Francisco undergrounder, recalls. "Someone'd yell, 'C'mon, Jack!', because the scenes would seem to not end. I saw parts of Normal Love later. From this I realized that Jack didn't like to edit. If he tried to, he'd probably ruin his pictures, they'd look butchered." That very succumbing, the staring, languid nakedness, is laid out in breathless, quivering curlicues as Smith's camera navigates overhead.

The visionary, moldy visual stance — congenital, serpentine rifling through postures, eras, trashy stylings, gorgeous framings with something lovely and foul in the corner or just in the background — is Flaming Creatures' largest asset. Josef von Sternberg once stated that his films could be absorbed just as well if they were projected upside down. Jack Smith pretty much reiterates this idea a few hundred times for an eternal 45 minutes. The film's toasted white-and-black-and-white sheen peels away at decadent subjects — flurrious orgies, vampire attacks, bouncing mams spilling out of a black dress — while the luscious, jabfest camera work doesn't give or establish ground. Perspective is imploded, story is absent. Both are replaced with tainted fantasy.

As surely as the celluloid was nicked, this movie is stolen and reassembled from dreams, Hollywood Babylon spectacles, and star personality. It is dressed to kill, made to be cursed at, to hypnotize, to give the eye more faded beauty than it can gnaw. Flickering to life, it begins as a reverie: two harpies pose into the camera while a film-grain blizzard flashes around them. Elbows out, hands in hair, eyes thick as their giant, painted eyebrows. Wasted panties are around someone's waist and going down. The performers — made up as deathly, pasty, androgynous variations of a sailor, a classically draped nude, a señorita, a dowager — are giving their all as bored Stars, donating their bodies to silence and a fine, cheap found soundtrack. Flaming Creatures is, to put it tritely, a world unto itself.

Hoberman, who's bringing along other Smith jetsam as well, told me in New York that Smith coined the phrase "superstar." If Smith's name is rarely invoked in the halls of indie filmmaking, he still echoes through the work of his immediate successors — Kuchar or John Waters or Andy Warhol.

Smith was something of an underground superstar himself from 1963 to 1964, the year Flaming Creatures was suppressed in a pre-New York World's Fair crackdown. "The screenings were very well attended, and then they eventually played it every hour on the hour at the Gramercy Arts Theater," Kuchar remembered. "He'd screen Normal Love, too, but just in parts, as rushes."

phy — is being shown complete at Center for the Arts. The chief advantage of seeing it whole is realizing how open-ended and purely, sensually active a movie can be, sans plot. A prologue cues "Mario Montez" in mermaid drag lighting candles to maligned star Maria Montez amid voodoo skulls in a Turkish setting. Mario kisses cherries, his undulating fishtail nearly flickering on a plasmic, red flower carpet.

Credits list no less than three mummies, two pink faeries, a Cobra Woman and a Cobra Lady, and what Smith terms "the Mongo." The transgressive image of a black hardbody in very hot-pink tights pushes a white girl with a taffeta flower on a swing. What possesses Normal Love is the conceit that copulation and wooing are far more interesting when altered, made queer. Sex is telegraphed in some amazing, ritualized acts, such as the exchanging of sparklers and being ravished by a masked naked man with visible tan lines and hideous dime-store teeth. It's telegraphed by a Cobra femme mocking a snake amid real plants that look as fake as TV ones — and getting covered in mud. It's telegraphed by the drinking of colored milk while grazing with real cows, also by being lost in dank shade while your dress's arabesques glitter against moss and orgasmically dancing in blinding sunlight on a double-decker pink cake before being assassinated by a pinhead with a squirt gun.

In other words, the film's got extraordinary and specific gestures. Smith's primitive genius goes well beyond a camp philosophy articulated through lighting and camera angles. Whether he is quoting the Birth of Venus, Universal Horror quickies, or heterosexuality itself, there is a homemade, low-rent grace present. Rarely do raw poses open up such luster. Seldom have these decadent actions — an arm crooking, a fan scrimming a camera lens, a rose clenched in teeth, a gray stomach attacked, a prone, frankly limp cock manually shaken, an insincere air kiss, a lipstick application, a foot licked, a draggy tango dancer swirling to death, or anonymous, androgynous limbs dogpiled — meant so much.

Whether sickening or stimulating, Jack Smith lives. ❖

Hoberman on Jack Smith' features four programs running Sat/13–Thurs/18: Flaming Creatures, Sat/13, 8 p.m.; The Perfect Film Appositeness of MM and VS, Sun/14, 1 p.m.; The Complete Normal Love, Tues/16, 8 p.m.; Jack Smith in Performance, Thurs/18, 8 p.m., Yerba Buena Center for the Arts, 701 Mission, S.F. $6. Claire Denis's Beau Travail searches for oblivion. By Chuck Stephens

Anaked man slices through water like a fish. Shadows breathe and fold. Someone presses a surgically precise crease into a shirt cuff while the wheezing of a steam iron wafts its way across an arid plateau: sand, salt, sea. A men's chorus

Adhering to the skeleton of Melville's tale, Beau Travail seems to emanate from the head of one Sergeant Galoup (Denis Lavant), the alternately sullen and soulful drill instructor whose admiration for his superior officer, Bruno Forestier (Michel

it's also a film that bears powerful relationship to a specific moment in French film history. Forestier, Galoup asserts, has been dogged by a rumor since the Algerian War, and anyone who remembers Jean-Luc Godard's Le Petit Soldat knows why: Subor's Forestier was that film's mirror-gazing "man without ideals," a double agent with a singular ability to survive — all the way to his current cinematic incarnation.

Beau Travail was made for the European television network Arte as part of a series about being a "foreigner," a natural enough topic for the Paris-born Denis, who lived in Africa until she was 13 and has made the experience of cultural alienation — within France and without — her constant sings something about "a mighty phalanx hoisting up our banners."

Legs and lungs.

Those were the sorts of notes I found myself taking during Claire Denis's Beau Travail, a profoundly physicalist abstraction of Herman Melville's seafaring lust triangle Billy Budd, set among a company of French Foreign Legionnaires at a training camp somewhere in the desolate North African terrain. They rarely describe plot or motivation, those notes, but tend to concentrate on the sensuality of moments, on movements and sounds. Perhaps that's because Beau Travail, like so many of Denis's films, seems to take place in an eternal present, a place where memories, consequences, and hallucinations all have the same value, and where visual description — description, most insistently, of the male physique — is a force above all. That's the paradigm that Denis and her longtime collaborator, cinematographer Agnès Godard, have honed to the point of breathtaking sublimity, and in Beau Travail — part dance film, part desert canto — it may have attained its apogee.

Beau Travail may be the last truly great film of the 20th century, a lyrical essay on the music of men's bodies, as observed by women with electric eyes.

Subor), is thrown into disarray by the arrival of a new recruit named Sentain (Grégoire Colin). Lost to the heat-stroke of his own thoughts, which come to us in voice-overs drawn from diary shards and distracted reveries while gazing into a mirror, Galoup has cultivated a reverence for his commander that's based largely on misrecognition: he's blindly idealized the disaffected Forestier, a "perfect Legionnaire" who doesn't give a damn about his perfection and who prefers chewing the leaves of the local narcotic while his "boys" spend their disco nights in close order drills with the radiant women of a nearby village. Sentain, Galoup comes to believe, threatens to stir something like passion, or compassion, within Forestier and the rest of the unit, and a series of miniature catastrophes unfold.

Much of Beau Travail seems to be about searching for a kind of oblivion, from the boys who abandon their former names and identities to join the Legion to Galoup's final, astonishing seconds on-screen, attempting to face down the mirror and dance himself into eternity. (Lavant, here seeming to have grafted Humphrey Bogart's head onto Fred Astaire's body, remains one of contemporary cinema's most exquisite creatures.) Curiously though, concern since her debut, Chocolat, over a decade ago. More than once, Beau Travail exposes its roots. Denis was, back in the day, Wim Wenders's assistant on Paris, Texas, and it was there that she met Agnès Godard. Their work together still occasionally emits flashes of Wenders's sub-blanché, post-pop sensibilities — here a forlorn Pepsi advert affixed to the wall of an austere clay building, there the reassignment of a delicate Neil Young ditty as an abstract marching song. Everywhere, in fact, Beau Travail is a miracle of musical intuition: gasps of Benjamin Britten, puckering dance beats, and other chakra-throttling infections.

"We all have a trash can deep within," Galoup admits, and Beau Travail revels in the compost. It's a film that admits of a place where men are never thrown away, only thrown together, their bodies hurtling into space. Flesh slaps and spansks at flesh, sinews howl and burn, and everyone waits panting for the next disco inferno to send kisses of flame ripping through the night. ♦

'Beau Travail' opens Fri/12, Castro Theatre, 429 Castro, S.F. $4.50-$7. (415) 621-6120. See Rep Clock, in Film listings, for show times.

Dan Carbone gets mighty surreal as Salvador. By Brad Rosenstein

For anyone who saw his brilliant solo piece Up from the Ground, it would take little inducement to join Dan Carbone on another expedition into the netherworlds of his imagination. His latest work, Salvador Dalí Talks to the Animals in the Heaven on Top of Heaven, is now premiering at Exit Theatre as part of its Absurdist Season. It unites Carbone with a cast of seven actors and designer-director John Sowle in a surrealistic meditation on Dalí's life and work.

Given the kind of direct access Carbone has to his unconscious, this would seem like a match made in the heaven on top of heaven. Linear narrative clearly will not do for a subject like Dalí, and Carbone is in his element conjoining images from the 20th century's preeminent subverter of logic and his own compelling dreamworld. Dalí's dripping clocks and incongruously placed shellfish seem natural companions to Carbone's iconic cows and windup toys. But initially the meeting of surrealist and surrealist is a bit too much for the piece to handle.

After an inspired opening sequence in which sycophantic talk show host Zachary Strayhorn (Paul Gerrior) summons up the spirit of Dalí, back from the dead with some new paintings, the show loses itself in random sitcom and children's show parodies. These troubled metaphors for Dalí's ironic pursuit of bourgeois innocence don't come off, and it's only with the beautifully surreal introduction of Dalí's bitch-goddess muse Gala (Erica Blue), a lobster blossoming from her genitals, that the piece finds its heart and its spine.

The second half is considerably better, as Carbone skips nimbly across Dalí's tortured relationship with Gala—a strange, funny, and touching partnership that offers no shortage of surrealistic drama. As with Dalí's finest "dream photographs," Carbone is at his best when his wonderfully unfettered imagination is grounded in recognizable realities, rendered fresh by unexpected conjunctions and nightmarish precision. The piece also has an acute understanding of Dalí's carefully cultivated eccentric public persona as both distinct from and inextricably linked to his work; it subtly reveals how the artist simultaneously profited from and became the victim of his own joke.

The cast is excellent, particularly Blue as the superbly fiendish Gala, and Carbone with his blustery, randomly accented Dalí. Gerrior is sharply comic, and Vince Camillo is hilarious as the apotheosis of a hippie wishes and sucking vitality from mortals. Rebuked by the mad Josie, who killed her own newborn baby, the Skriker is shunted to the expectant Lily, who welcomes or rejects the Skriker in her many guises. Initially Churchill's imaginative conception is rich and haunting, but the play loses its narrative drive halfway through, and the script's schematic repetition and run-on fairy language grow in-

Jesus. Sowle gets the evening's madcap but mournful tone just right, his versatile sets creating dreamlike transformations with minimal means, and Nina Barlow's marvelous masks and prognathous Dalian mustaches add to the show's zippy texture. Carbone is one of the Bay Area's most original voices, and at its best this show takes you places you've never been. With some rethinking it could become astonishing, a "paranoiac-critical hallucination" to rival Dalí's own.

'The Skriker'

Caryl Churchill is certainly no slouch in the original voice department either. Her 1994 play The Skriker is a fairy tale in the truest sense, a fable embracing the ambiguous role of Celtic mythology in contemporary Britain. Gillian Chadsey is truly fantastic as the shape-shifting title character, who tirelessly invades the lives of the deeply disturbed Josie (Jennifer Taggart) and her friend Lily (Beth Donohue).

The evil Skriker and her fellow fairies, including Jenny Greenteeth and Rawheadandbloodybones, through the present-day streets, invoked by creasingly tiresome.

This Shotgun Players production is thrilling, however, with an energetic 17-member cast playing on multiple levels of Michael Frassinelli's underworldly set. In addition to Chadsey's remarkable performance, Taggart and Donohue both do splendid work. Director Patrick Dooley and choreographer Andrea Weber expand on the orchestrated chaos they formulated in The Bacchae and, together with Jake Rodriguez's visceral sound design, create some real mayhem based on Churchill's unsettling stage directions. Perhaps no image is more disturbing than a cursed passerby being forced to dance nonstop for the duration of the play, a Herculean feat wonderfully executed by Michelle Talgarow. ♦

Smog vs. Smog

Ladies, gentlemen, and those lesser, Drag City Records unwittingly presents a heavyweight bout scheduled for repeated listens. In this corner, accompanied by producer Jim O'Rourke and wearing a cloudy, purple cover adorned with lightning bolts and a wild, lynx-like kitty with a possibly defensive expression on its puss, is Smog's 1999 album Knock Knock. In this corner, accompanied by multiple producers and wearing a luminescent cover of oranges, golds, and shadows adorned with a temple, church, or stage of some sort and a tiny Bill Callahan is Smog's 2000 album Dongs of Sevotion. Bay Guardian columnist Hallelujah Fatkid and the late rapper Big Punisher are attending at ringside.

"Big Pun, what do you make of our contenders?"

"Well Fatkid, Knock Knock is in great form in terms of production. I mean this dog's got some serious legs, yo. O'Rourke was larger than Chicago in '99 with his own Bad Timing and albums by Sonic Youth and Superchuck, and Knock Knock is no brown potato chip, know what I'm saying? Smog himself never sounded this full, like he took a deep breath, puffed out his chest, and prepared to take over the world. This is some heavy shit, only he don't like looking large. Serious."

"I'm with you, B.P. The children's chorus on 'Hit the Ground Running' and 'No Dancing' is a stellar touch, so old school and ingenious. I think this is my favorite album from Smog."

"Yo, it was a total surprise for me. This is the album I always wanted Smog Callahan to make, but never thought he'd step up."

"Exactly. But despite a strong performance and perhaps the finest form in which we've seen either Smog or O'Rourke, the press largely ignored the album, neglecting to include it on year-end lists topped by Moby, the Flaming Lips, and Fiona Apple. The Village Voice's famed 'Pazz and Jop' poll clocked it in at no. 113, tying with Phish's Hampton Comes Alive."

"Man, fuck those chumps in the press. Fat Joe and I was nothing but a footnote in hip-hop until I went and died, and then those gutless, pen-sucking, scurvy-assed, carpal-tunnel hacks sat their bony asses (present company excepted) down to eulogize me and then get paid for it. I mean, what the fuck? That fat bitch Steve Earle breaks wind, and that shit makes the critics' list. And, yo, Mos Def ain't bad, but my ass is black on both sides too."

"I hear you loud and clear, Big Pun. What about the challenger Dongs of Sevotion? The album is a bit more diverse in production. John McEntire of Tortoise leads the pack, with the late Phil Bonnet (Gastr Del Sol and Dave Grubbs engineer), along with a couple of lesser-known guys, Joe Dilillo and John Towner."

"Yo Fatkid, I just want to say for the record, 'Fuck John McEntire.' I think he's wack; I think Tortoise is wack, and I think his tinkly-winky crystal-clear treble sound is too weak to speak. I'm not saying I favor Albini's muddy-ass thud, but that dude McEntire seriously needs to listen to some hip-hop. Those Chicago post-rockers need to lighten up and get fed. That said, Smog gets mad daps. The kid is sharp here, as dry and devastating as ever. 'Justice Aversion' is off the heezy, as down as almost any rhyme I ever laid out. Almost."

"I'm with you, B.P. 'Dress Sexy at My Funeral' is vintage Smog: funny and disturbing, laughter through tears. Or just dark like on 'Distance' — 'All these women have passed through me / I have turned them all to waste.'"

"Word. Raymond Carver is hurtin'. Smog Callahan is all that, and, check it out, less is more. Shout out to the chicks on 'Bloodflow' too! Those ladies had me rolling."

"You want to declare a winner, Big Pun?"

"Fatkid, I know you're not fronting. Just deliver the scilla and take home salvation two times."

"Thanks Big Pun. Rest in peace, man." ❖

Primordial ooze

The cave opened in 1969. It emerged as Cromagnon, a direct descendant of true rock and roll. Cave rock occurred, primordial by nature. The cave reopened in 1992. Some things never change. Cave Rock stays the same. The final quote would be: 'Between hard rock and a place'

Liner notes,

1992 reissue of Cromagnon's Orgasm (a.k.a. Cave Rock)

The musical underground has always been rife with tiny labels putting out tiny editions sold to, often, an even tinier handful of people. And in the beginning, circa 1964, New York's ESP was no different. Especially considering its bizarre first release, a record celebrating the controversial Esperanto artificial-language movement (for which ESP was named)!

Soon after, a random encounter led to saxophone genius Albert Ayler becoming the first actual artist on ESP. And from that moment on, this truly unconventional label, with perhaps the least commercial roster of all time, became one of the most important forces in underground music. ESP became the only real home for radical music in the '60s and '70s: jazz greats like Ayler, Pharoah Sanders, and Sun Ra; the bizarre political folk of the Fugs, the Holy Modal Rounders, and Pearls before Swine; the primitive punk of the Godz; and the far-out vocal stylings of one Miss Patty Waters all found a home at ESP. But even within this wild musical freak show, the lone album by Cromagnon made the rest of the ESP roster seem about as experimental as Frank Sinatra or Mitch Miller.

Cromagnon was the brainchild of Brian Eliot and Austin Grasmere, two Top 40 songwriters with a string of bubblegum hits under their belts. They made a truly inspired music, a sort of dadaist psychedelic folk, tribal and raw, ridiculous but enchanting. It's hard to believe that a record as completely far-out as Orgasm was recorded in 1969. Bands these days can't be this whacked even if they try, especially if they try.

Track one, "Caledonia," sets the tone for the whole record, primitive and primal but somehow totally catchy. Crackling vinyl and shortwave radio static slowly mutate into music for some glorious pagan ritual, with bagpipes, jaw harp, crickets, raspy chants, and Teutonic, almost industrial percussion (in fact, "Caledonia" was even covered later by industrialists Test Dept.). The next couple of songs are primitive percussion jams, clanging, whispering, grunting, and shouting over a soundscape of whirring and rumbling machinery and simple hand drum/clapping rhythms.

Then it starts to get really weird. "Fantasy" begins with lovely Beach Boys harmonies, and you're convinced for a moment that the first half of the record was just some sick joke, an extended introduction to the pop record about to commence. That is, until the harmonies devolve into two minutes of humming, lip smacking, and maniacal fun house laughter, which then segue into a beautiful mess of "samples," sirens, droning electronics, and gently strummed guitars. The most remarkable track is probably "Toth, Scribe I." It's actually "Caledonia" slowed down to a third of its normal tempo, creating a 10-minute rumbling morass of thunderous drones and grinding slow-motion dissonance. Finally, "First World of Bronze" ends the record with almost Gregorian vocals over acid-soaked, freak-out guitar (imagine Eddie Van Halen playing "Eruption" in the middle of mass, and you'll get the idea).

Orgasm is part of a new ESP reissue CD series on the Dutch label Calibre, packaged in beautiful slipcovers, with restored artwork and a marginal amount of extra information. If you're in need of some truly messed-up music (and you wouldn't have made it this far if you weren't), Cromagnon is definitely your cup of primordial ooze. ❖

Membrane (Delicate Ear)

So many electronic rhythm music projects nowadays seem oriented toward a singular location in the technopolitan everyday — the dance floor, for example, or the lounge, the art gallery, or the living room. Producers often look out and see the audience in categories: those who will guzzle, boogie, socialize, and/or space out to their creations, and market the material accordingly. Rarely does an artist configure a group of sound pieces suitable for all of the above. San Francisco composer John Eichenseer has done it with Membrane, the third album he's released as jhno (pronounced "j-KNOW").

jhno's first two sets chronicle the development of a unique and tempered aesthetic. On his first, Understand, Eichenseer melded aspects of indigenous folk music with ambience and jazz on a bed of techno-oriented rhythm, while on 1998's KWNO he glazed it all with drum 'n' bass and computer-generated improvisation. On Membrane, jhno seems more concerned with creating activated environments that neither shake listeners by the shoulders nor let them nod off.

The physical images evoked by the album's title almost seem to dictate the motion of the music as its elements permeate and probe each other in eerie bliss. On the opening "Prelude," a frisky rhythm punctures an ambient haze before it's smoothed out by piano chords and hiss. "Hatch" wends its tablas and bass line between rhythmic genres like a snake charmer, while "Raise and Illuminate" pinches the skin of drum 'n' bass with resolute vibraphone riffs and some delicate percussion that chaotically pounds through the song's structure.

Membrane's techier sounds even manage to come off organically (from the wolfish background howls of "Ska Pastora" through the techno-rhythm droplets of "Moment Two"), inviting you to hike through jhno's digi-Eden with a stepped-up impunity. Membrane is an invitation to step off the dance floor and onto the ground. (Ron Nachmann)

Fila Brazillia

Brazilification: Remixes 95-99 (Kudos)

When people ask me what British production team Fila Brazillia sounds like, my first impulse is to tell them to imagine a post-trip hop Steely Dan. Without vocals. Usually, my illustration is met with glassy-eyed befuddlement. This is not a bad thing — sometimes I have to remind myself that it's good to listen to music that defies categorization.

The Steely Dan comparison comes largely from both duos' love of jazzy elements, horns, and the distinct sound of the Fender Rhodes electric piano. Moreover, it is their ability to blur the line between beauty and humor in their music — a feat made even more remarkable in the absence of lyrics.

Like many recent production teams (Kruder and Dorfmeister, Thievery Corporation), Steve Cobby and Dave McSherry have earned a healthy chunk of their income remixing tracks from other, often more high-profile, acts. And like the work of these acts, the remixes on Brazilification demonstrate Fila's ability to leave their indelible mark on the work of other artists.

Sometimes, as in their funky reconstruction of the Orb's "Toxygene" single, the postproduction takes the original track into such a different direction that, for all intents and purposes, a whole new work is created. Other times the duo is smart enough to leave important elements alone — their declawing of Radiohead's creepy, edgy "Climbing Up the Walls" (a previously unreleased gem) renders it funkier but still intact.

That said, though, are you gonna sit there and A/B the original versus the remix? I doubt it. These compilations should be judged by their listenability, and Brazilification is simply a great soundtrack to a sunny Bay Area day. Check out Fila's reworking of Lamb's "Cottonwool" and go grab some iced chai. (Steve Robles)

Evelyn Glennie

Shadow behind the Iron Sun (RCA Victor)

Evelyn Glennie, the deaf (!) Scottish percussion virtuoso, has established a reputation as one of the finest percussionists in the world, touring around the globe, performing with orchestras, collaborating with some of the finest musicians and composers, receiving honorary doctorates, and winning a slew of awards.

Like many of her generation, she has ventured beyond the classical arena, working with indigenous musicians from Brazil to Indonesia, and with jazz and pop artists such as Nana Vasconcelos and Björk. Before entering into the studio for her latest, with producer and collaborator Michael Bauer, Glennie insisted that the recording was to be entirely improvised, with no second takes (though overdubbing was permitted).

Relying on her virtuosic technique, awesome musicianship, and impeccable taste and instincts, as well as on the wisdom of her producer, she has come up with a brilliant collection of percussive epigrams. Working with a modest, even focused sonorous palette in each piece — various cymbals and bells in one, small percussive doodads and noisemakers in another, a collection of music boxes, an array of found objects and struck metal, pitched mallet percussion, and more — Glennie conjures up music of power and grace, delicacy and bravado, music that is variously vivid, evocative, and evanescent.

In numerous instances, her vision is fleshed out by Bauer, who occasionally joins her in performance. More importantly, he solicits the efforts of other musical collaborators and contributors (David Motion most prominent among them) who add bits of piano, electronic keyboards, and voice, as well as crucial samples and loops. Several pieces cross over into the realm of ambient/techno/dance music. Unlike so many crossover efforts, these seem authentic and accurate, taking the popular style into regions it would not likely venture without Glennie's and Bauer's vision. (Dean Suzuki)

The Box Tops

Dimensions (Sundazed)

The Box Tops — late-'60s hit makers from Memphis — are legendary for two reasons: their smash hits "The Letter" and "Cry Like a Baby," and for spawning power pop-cult legend Alex Chilton. Chilton, the Box Tops' lead vocalist, formed Big Star — the cult band to end all cult bands — after the Tops broke up, and later he cut a slew of solo indie rock discs that are must-haves for any serious fan of the genre.

Sundazed has reissued all four of the Box Tops albums, so that Chilton fans everywhere can have the full-on Chilton experience. The fourth and last album, Dimensions, is the real charm.

It features a pair of minor hits — the soulful, rich "Soul Deep" (also a hit for R&B legend Clarence Carter) and the Big Star-comin' round the bend pomp pop of "Sweet Cream Ladies, Forward March." It's also rife with Dylan and Aretha covers, and it features Chilton at his adenoidal best, belting out these standards with real authority.

The Southern take on rock in the late '60s was a weird collage of R&B, Beatle-sounding pop, and a bemused psychedelic slant that was more than just miles apart from its S.F. relatives. The Box Tops were good ole boys who navigated these disparate genres with ease. (Johnny Angel)

My friend John keeps saying something that pretty much sums up the modern-day K-Tel consumer: "I'm nostalgic for yesterday," John says. "Hell," he continues, "I'm nostalgic for things that haven't even happened yet." That's the same K-Tel that put out such classic compilation records as Disco Mania and Rock Anthems. The Minneapolis-based company ran into a little Chapter 11 trouble back in 1987 but now seems hell-bent on capturing whatever is left of the increasingly saturated compilation market. Instead of Superstars Greatest Hits (the Original Hits by the Original Stars!), you can now look forward to seeing such gems as Gimmie Indie Rock and Goth: Music of the Shadows in a used bin near you. The thing is, K-Tel comes close to getting it right but in the end still manages to mess everything up.

Take, for example, Double Shot: Pop Alternative. You'd think K-Tel could actually pull this one off. A particularly nice run on the first CD has Juliana Hatfield's "My Sister" segueing into Madder Rose's "Beautiful John" and then into Belly's "Feed the Tree" — nice songs that I don't mind hearing at all, especially in a row. They came out in 1993, before the secret was out that none of these bands had more than two memorable songs. But they remind me of college, and of Sub Pop singles, and I get into Double Shot in a breezy alt-poppy kind of way.

But then comes the horror that is "I Kissed a Girl," by Jill Sobule. The song, from 1996, is so jarringly offensive on so many levels that it throws Double Shot into a realm of commercial kitsch so foul that the compilation never recovers: imagine, if you will, pressing the skip button only to find the B-52's "Roam" waiting for you like a dentist's chair. I give up on Double Shot. Not even the Lemonheads' "It's a Shame about Ray" can save this one.

Feeling depressed by Double Shot's tease of alt-pop Nirvana, I reach for K-Tel's Goth: Music of the Shadows. Starting out appropriately enough with Christian Death's "Mysterium Iniquitatis," Music of the Shadows does a pretty good job of getting the Goth gang all together. The Sisters of Mercy are next with "Walk Away" (what, no "Black Planet"?), and Alien Sex Fiend and Bauhaus round out the record nicely. True Goths are no doubt horrified by the inclusion of such pretenders as Faithful Dawn and mystified why no Siouxsie songs are on a "definitive" genre record. Nonetheless, you've got to hand it to K-Tel for its audacity. This one is worth checking out if only to read the mesmerizingly bad and offensive liner notes.

But wait! There's more! Get all the original hits, by the original stars, on Gimmie Indie Rock. How fantastically strange to have artists from the Vaseline to Squirrel Bait on a K-Tel compilation. All of the bands on this compilation would have died laughing if you told them 15 years ago that they would be on a K-Tel compilation titled Gimmie Indie Rock in 2000. Of course, one could nitpick over the lack of Sonic Youth, the Replacements, etc., but the fact remains that several of the best bands of the early-'80s indie rock era are represented. Dinosaur Jr. is on with "Little Furry Things," and Galaxie 500 is represented by "Blue Thunder." What's best about the CD is not the songs you've heard but some of the ones you've forgotten. "Too Far Gone," by My Dad Is Dead, and the Feelies' "Slipping into Something" are fantastic songs by bands that may have been forgotten. But you've got to wonder, who is going to buy this record? Most indie rock fans are notoriously completist, and they are certainly not going to buy this record for a Melvins song that they could already find on vinyl at their local used store for $3.

Finally, there is Digital Empire 3: Phuturism. Such a wealth of talent, such a shame that the songs are "mixed" by a nameless engineer who has no sense of flow. Let it be known that if a compilation says "continuous mix," you'd better hope that after those two words comes a DJ you know and respect. Despite some questionable segues, though, this compilation has a number of outstanding tracks. Leftfield's monster "Afrika Shox" is on, as is Richie Hawtin's "Minus Orange." Digital Empire 3 is no better or worse than the British rave comps that take up half the space at the Virgin Megastore.

Can a post-rock compilation be far off? How about a funky-fresh Ill-bient CD? I'm already nostalgic for K-Tel's Chapter 11 days. ♦

Pulp fiction The most common advice given to the would-be men and women of letters is to write about what you know, a lesson not lost on novelist Edward Bunker. The author of such hard-as-nails cult crime classics as No Beast So Fierce and The Animal Factory, Bunker was the youngest man ever sentenced to time in San Quentin. He spent 17 years in and out of the joint, witnessing race riots and worse during his tenure, eventually using his experiences as a criminal to launch a literary career. Bunker has been touted by no less than fellow pulp poet James Ellroy as "a true original in American literature." Come see this bona fide Reservoir Dog (yup, he played Mr. Blue) read from his jaw-dropping memoir Education of a Felon in a rare Bay Area appearance, and get a dose of first-person grit that would scare just about anybody straight. 7:30 p.m., Green Apple Books, 506 Clement, S.F. Boom town Suddenly, Oakland has become ground zero for the underground hip-hop explosion. At the lead are two sets of Oakland artists who couldn't be more different—save for their penchant for challenging concepts and progressive musical standards. Del the Funkyhomosapien performs some of the 128 bits of graphic lunacy on his new album, Both Sides of the Brain (the current, fashionable "it" album among the erudite pop music press). And Blackalicious now tout their full-length debut, the critically acclaimed Nia. Soulsters for the hip-hop generation, Chief Xcel and Gift of Gab are at the beginning of a whirlwind 14-day, 14-city tour throughout the West and South, but the trip to their Bay Area home base should provide some reinvigoration from the local fans who've been crucial in supporting the bay's backyard talents. 9 p.m., Maritime Hall, 450

Dis poet One of the spiritual fathers of rap music, Mutabaruka was born Allan Hope in Kingston, Jamaica, in 1952. Though his riveting voice needs no musical accompaniment, Mutabaruka, who costarred in Haile Gerima's underground film Sankofa, has given legendary live shows with the Mighty Diamonds and the band School. He rejects the term dub poet because of the wide scope of his work, but Mutabaruka's spoken word performances leave audiences on the edge of their seats as he chants down colonialism, racism, sexism, classism, and organized religion with classics such as "Garvey," "Junk Food," "I Am de Man," "Blakk Wi Blakk," and his signature piece, "Dis Poem." 8 and 11 p.m., Ashkenaz, 1317 San Pablo, Berk. $11. I.Q. test SubGenii, stand up and be counted! Tonight Circus Redickule's ringmaster Chicken John will host the SubGenius Post-Apocalyptic Devival Tour 2000. The faux old-tyme revival will help audience members through what the Church of the SubGenius calls "the post-end times" and, for the undisciplined, will provide opportunities to join the ranks of the SubGenii. There will also be a performance of "The Wizard of Bob," in which selected audience members are brought up onstage to commune with the spirit of the almighty J.R. "Bob" Dobbs, the founder and "Epopot" of the sect. The Reverend Ivan Stang, Sacred Scribe of the Church, will be performing, along with Chicken John, Attaboy and Burke, Dr. Howland Owl, the Naked Fire Babes, and Woodpussy. Justice League, 628 Divisadero, S.F. Just kidding If you are a parent who dreads Saturday—the day of the week when, if your offspring don't have anything planned, your sanity can be victim to a constant barrage of glucose-driven hysteria—sit up and take notice of Youth Arts Day. Organized as a celebration of the performing and visual arts, the festival provides a wide range of activities, including dance, puppet making, circus acrobatics, book arts, poetry, and other left-brain demonstrations, all led by Bay Area arts professionals. If the family is more inclined to spectate than participate, cross the street to the Youth Arts Festival at the M.H. de Young Memorial Museum, which features a display of more than 1,000 works of art by students (K-12) as well as a performance by the San Francisco Girls Chorus. 11 a.m.-4 p.m., Music Course, Golden Gate Park, S.F. Free. (415) 388-8009. (Bentley)

Hi Mom Another Mother's Day weekend conveniently coincides with the perfect mom outing: the ninth annual Spring Open Studio at Hunters Point Shipyard. Cruise the studios and see what local artists are up to and how they work, or bring your checkbook to make a serious acquisition. A family workshop gives parents and younger kids the opportunity to work with scrap metal and recycled art, and watch craft demonstrations. You can take a load off at the second annual Rail Fair at the Golden Gate Museum, the Bay Area's largest railroad museum, which has a full-size passenger train for visitors to ride to and from the artists' studios. Traffic-weary Marinites can enjoy their own Marin Open Studios event, which runs for two weekends. Plan your route by first visiting the gallery exhibition (open Tues.-Sun., 11 a.m.-5 p.m., Town Center Corte Madera, space 325, Corte Madera; through May 25) that features samples of participating artists' work. Hunters Point: Sat/13-Sun/14, 11 a.m.-6 p.m., Hunters Point Shipyard, end of Evans and Innes off Cesar Chavez, S.F. Free. (415) 387-5936. Marin: Sat/13-Sun/14, 11 a.m.-5 p.m., north and west Marin; Sat/20-Sun/21,

Her own spin As she proves on her most recent recording, Kicks (Monarch), jazz guitarist Mimi Fox can spin off the bebop-based licks at a dizzying clip, making good on her debt to such forebears as Joe Pass. Her approach emphasizes melody, swing, and emotional directness on such standards as "Cherokee," "In a Sentimental Mood," and "A Nightingale Sang in Berkeley Square," but her interpretations of Mel Tormé's "Born to Be Blue" (with Angela Bofill singing), "Willow Weep for Me" (putting Charlie Hunter through his paces), Paul Simon's "Loves Me like a Rock," and the folk classic "Poor Wayfarin' Stranger" demonstrate the depth and breadth of her expressive range. Tonight Fox holds center stage in a straightforward trio with drummer Deszon Claiborne and bassist Glen Richman. 8 and 10 p.m., Yoshi's, 510 Embarcadero West, Jack London Square, Oakl. $10. (510) 238-9200. (Derk Richardson)

May 16 Tuesday

Sensational Bobbe Norris released her ironically titled Out of Nowhere last fall — only the sixth CD of her career. Finally, the San Francisco jazz singer, who got her start in such beat-era clubs as the Coffee Gallery, the Purple Onion, and Jimbo's Bop City (and who momentarily broke into the big time in the late 1960s), has landed the kind of extended showcase engagement her remarkable talents deserve. Joined by husband-arranger-producer Larry Dunlap on piano and John Wiitala on bass, Norris applies her lush vocal timbres and elegant sense of phrasing to the lyrics of Johnny Mercer (with music by Hoagy Carmichael, Henry Mancini, Harold Arlen, Jerome Kern, and others) in a specially conceived show, 'Too Marvelous for Words' — a phrase that sums up the sensations Norris evokes with her heartfelt and musically delicious interpretations. Through Sat/20, 8 p.m., Plush Room, York Hotel, 940 Sutter, S.F. $20. (415) 885-2800. (Richardson)

Spoke-n for Gear up for the sixth annual Bike to Work Day and see how much horsepower your legs have. Sponsored by Rides for Bay Area Commuters and the American Lung Association, this event advocates a healthy alternative for commuters as well as a service to the environment. Not only does biking cost less than filling up that gas tank but it also doesn't emit air pollutants (besides your bad breath), and it's better than spending an hour in gridlock. Pledge to bike even just one day during the workweek of May 15-19 and automatically enter a drawing to win prizes, including the grand prize of a bicycle tour in France. Call 1-800-755-POOL or visit www.rides.org. (Tommy Tung)

Jump cuts Having long shed the banal trip-hop tag, the U.K.-Canada label Ninja Tune has become one of the major players in contemporary electronic and creative music. At the head of the pack is Kid Koala, Canada's charismatic artisan of the turntables. Fresh off his album Carpal Tunnel Syndrome, Koala proves that the DJ doesn't have to be the sideshow, as he cuts, juggles, and scratches musical routines that will leave mouths gaping in amazement. Joining Koala are two of his label mates. Amon Tobin, a breakthrough drum 'n' basser touting a new album, Supermodified, shows with his furious riddims and breakbeat science why he's one of the prime movers in drum 'n' bass evolution. And last but not least is DJ Food, master of downtempo jazz cuts that sound like they could score a mood swing. 9 p.m., Bimbo's 365 Club, 1025 Columbus, S.F. $15. (415) 474-0365. (Wang)

The Bay Guardian listings deadline is two weeks prior to our Wednesday publication date. To submit an item for consideration, please include the title of the event; date and time; venue name; street address (listing cross streets only is not sufficient); city; telephone number readers can call for more information; telephone number for media; admission costs; and a brief description of the event. Send information to Listings, 520 Hampshire, S.F. 94110; fax to (415) 487-2506 or e-mail to listings@sfbg.com. We cannot guarantee the return of photos, but enclosing an SASE helps. The very name of Karl Marx — economist, communist, philosopher, and beer drinker — sends people into fits of emotion, whether they agree with his theories or not. 'Marx in Soho,' a new play by A People's History of the United States author Howard Zinn, features the charismatic Brian Jones as Marx and focuses on important issues in Marx's life, such as his relationship with his wife, his near alcoholism, and his lifelong work as a writer and philosopher. This biographical solo show seeks to paint an honest portrayal of the man and his era, as the audience travels back and forth in time with Marx during his work on The Communist Manifesto. Profits from the show benefit various East Bay community groups, including the Middle East Children's Alliance. On Sat/20 proceeds go to Media Alliance and the National Writers Union (call 415-546-6334, ext. 370, for tickets benefiting Media Alliance; call 510-839-1248 for tickets benefiting the National Writers Union); on Sun/28, to KPFA-FM. Through June 4. Opens Wed/10, 8 p.m. Runs Thurs.-Fri., 8 p.m.; Sat., 5 and 8:30 p.m.; Sun., 2 and 7:30 p.m., Theater Artaud, 450 Florida, S.F. $18-$22. (415) 621-7797. (Joshua Medsker)

Revenge Records Showcase

Thurs/11-Fri/12, Paradise Lounge

On the heels of last year's S.F. '99 compilation (put out on the brand-new, S.F.-based Revenge Records) comes this all-out rockin', two-night crash course in the local punk rock-metal scene. The comp, in between ranting in the liner notes about the khakification of the town and all that goes with it, lays out the current who's who of local rockers in kick-ass, fast-paced fashion, proving that there's still an alive-and-kickin' underground in this cleaned-up, clenched-up city. Most of the bands on the compilation play either one or both nights of this half CD-release, half local-showcase event, at least eight bands for eight bucks a night, guaranteed. Screw that disco cover band, white boy — get drunk, smoke too much, and get on down to see how Satan's minions rock the house. See listings for the complete lineup. 9 p.m., 308 11th St., S.F. $8 a night. (415) 861-6906, www.hotbox.org/revenge. (Robin Lapid)

BILL GRAHAM PRESENTS IN ASSOCIATION WITH CAL PERFORMANCES

Holy Assassins

Fans of erstwhile rock stalwarts Bimbo Toolshed, curl y'all's hands in satanic salute: lead singer Swoopo has reinvented herself as someone called Juicy Atari, and she and four of her drinking buddies now form San Francisco's Holy Assassins. The band's dirt-rock, tight-as-a-pair-of-leather-pants assault (Nashville Pussy, Supersuckers, Dwarves, etc.) rocks back and forth, switches tempos, and blood-lets eardrums as Juicy Atari's alley-cat voice, like L7 rolled in gravel or Joan Jett shredded through a kitchen fan, adds both menace and sex. Song titles like "I Welcome the Grave" and "Stuck Pig" and a cover of Black Flag's "American Waste" pretty much tell you all you need to know. Info: (415) 920-9738. (Summer Burkes)

Up-tempo: Drew Weaver and the Alvarados are all about good grooves.

Drew Weaver and the Alvarados

Whorehouse surfin' songs

Drew Weaver and the Alvarados are the type of band that should be shielded from beer-bottle missiles and screaming groupies by a chain-link fence. Forget that bassist Eddie Van Ness looks a bit like he wrestles in no-holds-barred cage events (in a good way). These guys perform like four fellas who have played rowdy bars before — roadhouses that exist only in the movies.

A make-believe Hollywood bar would probably be a good place to find these semi-pompadoured guys too. Recall Pulp Fiction, which reintroduced hip tunes like "Stampede" and "Restless Biker," rippling surf instrumentals that, coincidentally, the Alvarados covered in their set a few weeks ago. Seeing a surf-swamp-Tex-Mex-rockabilly-honky-tonk-detective-theme band perform is certainly more entertaining than hearing it on a soundtrack.

The Alvarados played a fun, up-tempo show upstairs at Paradise. Their songs sounded familiar but felt original. A few songs were funny without being too cute, such as "That's My Wine" (also the punch line to a desert barroom joke). In addition to the happy-go-lucky rockabilly tunes about boozin' and cruisin', there were a few songs about working-class hardship, like "North of the Border," which slowly and mournfully depicted the plight of Mexican laborers.

Overall, songs ranged from fast surf to whanging, melodic rock. Most of the Alvarados' set kept to quick, rugged surf numbers: originals from the band's album El Mirage (like "Drinking, Driving Fast, and Sleeping Around") that made for fast-paced cuts with generous helpings of guitarist Mel Guccio's rattling riffs. The occasional ballads, like "Carmelita," about a heroin junkie, provided listeners with a short respite from head nodding and also allowed drummer Raoul Rockwell to rest his arms in between his usual frenetic beats.

Drew Weaver, the Alvarados' lead vocalist, held center stage. Weaver's voice, a cross between those of Elvis and Randy Travis, crooned, rocked, and rolled. The instrumental moments certainly satisfied — especially when the guys were all breaking sweats wailing away on the rockabilly cuts — but Weaver's vocals added personality to the mechanics of precision rock.

Toward the end of the Alvarados' remarkably long set (Weaver's list included 46 songs), a few folks slithered up close to the stage and began to sashay in place. None of their significant others, remaining seated, tossed their bottles forward — a testament to the persuasiveness of good grooves. The Alvarados play Fri/12, 9 p.m., Lost and Found Saloon, 1353 Grant, S.F. Call for price. (415) 675-5996. (Matthew Schneiderman)

La dolce vita

If you're convinced that you were meant to live the spicier life of, let's say, Marcello Mastroianni, then Tango #9 will help keep your delusion alive. A lustful style of music and dance that developed among European immigrants in the brothels of 1920s Argentina, tango gave expression to everything that could — and eventually would — go wrong in love. Maybe that's why tango dancers look so afflicted. Tango #9 looks to the early music of the great innovator Astor Piazzolla, who fled Argentina for Paris in the 1950s with his exquisite and thoroughly modern tango nuevo — a music for dreaming rather than dancing.

On a recent Saturday night at the cozy and luminescent Radio Valencia, band-leader-violinist Catharine Clune (Club Foot Orchestra) took the band through fiery, old-style tango numbers as well as doomed Russian folk songs and quirky, familiar Nino Rota film scores. But it was the sophisticated Piazzolla sound — somewhere between classical and jazz — that set the evening's tone. Pianist Alla Gladesheva provided minor-key staccato rhythms that were augmented by the evocative, scratchy timbres of Joshua Raul Brody's trombone. Odile Lavault's bandoneon (mini accordion) melodies captured an American's idea of Euro-romance culture.

Piazzolla's "La misma pena" featured descending melody lines over military chop-chop rhythms, suggesting a bitter-sweet, existentialist worldview. His "Tzigane tango" found the musicians involved in a tense relationship — just like classical tango dance partners. "Chao Paris" had a strange, lilting quality that culminated in a steamy trombone solo. And Piazzolla's most famous "Adios Noniño" opened with a wrenching violin-piano duet and proceeded to reach for that pitch bespeaking exile and longing. La dolce vita, indeed. Tango #9 plays Sat/13, 7:30 p.m., Radio Valencia, 1199 Valencia, S.F. Free. (415) 826-1199. (Adam Savetsky)

Dead-cat swing

Thanks to the pathetic state of local commercial radio, the average listener is unable to have immediate access to the recent flood of quality S.F. electronic music. Tragic isn't even the right word to describe the decisions made by corporate stations — criminal is more like it. If commercial radio truly relies on listener polls to develop its content, I wonder why I — and everyone else I know — have never had the opportunity to fill out a questionnaire.

Last week Dano of Red Melon Records told the Bay Guardian that you can't "swing a dead cat without hitting a DJ in San Francisco." Clearly, commercial radio has evaded the effects of cat swinging, but recently I discovered that nowadays — dead cats aside — you also can't take a piss on the street without getting busted by an electronic music producer. Drunk and pants down, I was taking my time behind a lowered Acura on Minna Street last Friday outside of Toph One's Pepper when DJ Buck rushed up behind me, also in search of an outdoor bidet. I wonder: if the program directors from Live 105 and KMEL pissed on the street alongside local dance music producers more often, would they suddenly decide to start programming serious dance music shows? The following is a list of local producers close to whom I probably peed:

"He thinks that he is a Viking, and has challenged me to a barbed wire-cage match to the death!" juju revealed.

DJ Garth of Grayhound Recordings Smooth like Metamucil and deep like colon cancer, Dimitri from Paris's new mix CD, A Night at the Playboy Mansion, is exactly the sort of mainstream, pseudo-disco crap that gives house music its embarrassingly cheesy reputation. The CD insert spells out the pink champagne and shiny muscle-T implications of this fondue sound: "Weekends that never end ... Hardcore clubbing ... Dimitri rules ... Party is life." Yeah, whatever — bobbing for Mt. Fuji-shaped silicone in a scabby Hugh Hefner hot tub is not really my idea of a quality house music night, but then again, I'm spoiled with the real thing in S.F. (KMEL and Live 105, are you following me here?).

No, San Franciscans don't have to deal with limp leftover versions of imported disco riffs — especially not when Garth is providing us with the real shit. This week Garth of the infamous Wicked crew (which also includes Markie, Thomas, and Jenö) releases The Cisco System, a compilation of local producers on his own Grayhound label. The CD features exceptional tracks from locals such as Rocket (Garth and Eric James), the Mirror Boys (Thomas, who now lives in N.Y.), DJ Rasoul, and Dano. Like an all-nighter at a Wicked party, the music bumps into psychedelia, Nag Champa disco, and dirty, dirty 21st-century funk.

Last week at Heaven — a nonhouse underground monthly produced by Wicked and DJ CB (a.k.a. Clay) — CB, Garth, Markie, Lorin, Brother, and Kool MJ played sweaty breakbeats, dance hall, reggae, and electro in celebration of the Cisco System release (note: Garth sneaked in a few house tracks toward the end of the night). Keep ears peeled for next event.

juju of Phunckateck When asked to select any DJ on earth for the purposes of a good-natured wrestling match, juju left Dimitri of Paris out of the ring and went straight for the Norwegian drum 'n' bass producer K (a.k.a. Polar). "He thinks that he is a Viking, and has challenged me to a barbed wire-cage match to the death!" juju revealed. "I will crush him!!!!" Interesting.

Last week juju and Tee Bee took center stage at Phuncktion, juju and DJ Noel's weekly party at the Top, and played sexy, roots-heavy, and organic drum-sounding sets while the local drum 'n' basserati wandered about (no one wrestled). But don't let the casual nightclub setting belie the facts; juju is producing an endless flow of tracks on drum 'n' bass labels like F-111 (Warner Brothers), DJ Abstract's Pneuma Recordings, Deep Secret Recordings, Phunckateck Communications, Thermal, and his own label, Phuturo. juju recently coproduced a baby.

DJ Buck Not only is S.F. native DJ Buck a congenial person to pee in front of but he's also an amazing producer and DJ. And those who squabble over being "down from day one" will recall Buck as being one of the first crop of local DJs to make international waves. In '93 he was the first American invited to play at the enormous U.K. Tribal Gathering, and since '91 he has worked as a traveling DJ, playing everywhere from Jakarta to London, and from Paris to Waco, Texas. This past September Buck played at Beijing's very first rave.

As part of the original Freshly Squeezed Records crew and the Third Floor Productions team in S.F., Buck helped lay down the fabric for the current dance music upsurge. Along with DJ Noel (now of Phunckateck) and the late Cory Leuder, Buck ran the old-school house party Church on Sundays at the old DV8 in 1991. He was an original Toon Town DJ and played at other legendary local parties — a Rave Called Sharon, Osmosis, and Juice. And to make it even better, Buck has an enviable birth name: Kuyumptiwa Kopavi Grok Tink. ❖ links and divisions between the Asian Pacific Islander-American and Chicano/Latino communities get explored in this collaboration by Asian American Theatre Company, Latina Theater Lab, Culture Clash, and 18 Mighty Mountain Warriors. The evening of comedy sketches, songs, and monologues is hit and miss, but at its best it explodes some pernicious stereotypes with energy and wit. Dena Martinez renders a racist multicultural grandmother with great insight, Michael Chih Ming Hornbuckle is very funny as a tough Asian teacher setting troubled white kids straight, and Wilma Bonet is hilarious as a Puerto Rican geisha wanna-be. Ellen Sebastian Chang's direction is slack, and many of the comic ideas are undercooked, but the show's irreverent spirit is infectious. (Rosenstein)

Dancing Monsters Mission Cultural Center, 2868 Mission; 835-8767. $8-12. Fri/12-Sat/13, 8pm; Sun/14, 7pm. Junk Theater presents a play about a young boy being raised by heroin addicts.

► Don't Make Me Look Too Psychotic Banannam Place Theater, 50 Banannam Place; 986-4607. $12-14. Fri-Sat, 8pm; Sun, 3pm. Through Sun/21. Violently unhealthy relationships are the driving force behind Bruce Pachtman's hilarious new solo show. Pachtman developed this autobiographical piece after dating a particularly incendiary woman. Bruce and Gloria have a lot in common, like drinking problems and intimacy issues. Gloria controls him through sex and eventually starts drinking again, giving him no choice but to leave. Pachtman's job as a child care worker and his virtually nonexistent relationship with his family also figure into the action, adding some straight-ahead drama and explaining some of his background. Although the show is autobiographical, it's never uncomfortable or awkward watching Pachtman perform. Don't Make Me Look Too Psychotic is gut-bustingly funny, which is no small feat considering the seriousness of the material. Pachtman's characterizations are perfect, and he knows when to stop talking about himself and move the story along. Plus, it's a great story. And that makes all the difference. (Medsker)

Edward II Geary Theater, 415 Geary; 749-2228. $11-55. Opens Wed/10, 8pm. Call for show dates and times. Through June 4. ACT presents Christopher Marlowe's tragedy on the 14th-century king.

Fosse Orpheum Theatre, 1192 Market; 512-7770. $30-75. Tues-Sat, 8pm (also Wed, Fri, and Sun, 2pm; Mon/22, 8pm). Through Sat/27. This Tony Award-winning musical, now in a touring version at the Orpheum, traces the trajectory of the great Bob Fosse's choreography, and implicitly, of the man himself. Although not bound to chronology, the 29 dances painstakingly reconstructed or reimagined by Chet Walker and Ann Reinking endeavor to show us Fosse's world in all its shapes and moods, ranging from such icons as "Big Spender" to forgotten kinescope fragments. It's a great idea, and in the course of the show we see Fosse crafting his own idiosyncratic dance language to express an increasingly mature vision. The 28 dancers are wonderful, and codirectors Richard Maltby, Jr. and Reinking, who co-conceived the show with Walker, have arranged the pieces with a salubrious ebb and flow. It's entertaining, but many of these storytelling dances seem strangely unmoored out of context, and Fosse's edgy personal vision gets considerably toned down. (Rosenstein)

Get Me Rodd Keith!! Exit Theatre, 156 Eddy; 566-2578. $12-14. Fri-Sat, 8pm (also Mon/15, 8pm). Through Sat/27. Remember those magazine ads saying "Send us your poems and we'll send you back a hit song"? The song-poem industry was a 1970s scam, and Joshua Pollock's fictionalized "quasi-musical" (written with Sean Owens) is based on a legendary figure in this armpit of the music business. Keith was a session musician who aspired to the heights, but his sole genius lay in creating oddly catchy tunes for the hopeless poetry sent in by aspiring lyricists. The piece begins well, intercutting over-the-top satire of this venal enterprise with performances of some of the actual music it spawned, but the camp joke runs out early in the endless second act. A number of local band members are in the cast, and musically the show cooks. The acting is another matter, although whenever deadpan singer Phil Worman or Owens is onstage, this bizarre pastiche starts to fly. (Rosenstein)

Goodbye and Goodluck and The Jewbird A Traveling Jewish Theatre, 470 Florida; 399-1809. $20-25 (Thurs. pay what you can). Thurs-Sat, 8pm (also Sat/12, 2pm); Sun, 2 and 7pm (no 7pm show Sun/14). Through June 4. This collaboration between A Traveling Jewish Theatre and Word for Word stages two short stories by American Jewish writers, both reflective of the New York City immigrant experience. Grace Paley's "Goodbye and Good Luck" concerns a memory Rosie (Patricia Silver) relates to her niece, about her youthful attraction to a matinee idol of the Yiddish theater (Corey Fischer). In Bernard Malamud's "The Jewbird," a parable of anti-Semitism and Jewish self-hatred, a talking bird named Schwartz (Fischer again) invades the lives of a New York family. Director Wendy Radford misses a number of rich possibilities in staging the Paley story. David Dower does better with the Malamud, but frankly neither of these lightly charming stories makes for terribly compelling theater. Fischer has fun in his two plum roles, but it's Sheila Balter's sharp, funny supporting work that leaves the strongest impression. (Rosenstein)

The Illusion New Langton Arts, 1246 Folsom; 789-8558. $8-20. Fri-Sat, 8pm (also Thurs/18, 8pm). Through Sat/20. The Actor's Collective presents Tony Kushner's play, a reworking of a classic French fairy tale.

New Wrinkles Downstairs at the Phoenix, 653 Geary; 621-7797. $20-22. Fri-Sat, 8pm. Open-ended. This "mid-life musical review" is by Morris Bobrow, Rita Abrams, and Gerold Nachman.

Oxygen Eureka Theatre Company, 215 Jackson; 788-SHOW. $15. Wed/10-Sat/13, 8pm; Sun/14, 3pm. The Eureka Theatre Company presents a work-in-progress performance of Carl Djerassi and Roald Hoffman's play about a science-based conflict among members of the Nobel Prize Committee.

► The People's Violin The Marsh, 1062 Valencia; 826-5750, ext 4. $15-22. Extended run: Thurs-Sat, 8pm. Through July 1. Charlie Varon's latest show takes the form of a documentary, in which filmmaker Sol Shank delves into his tortured relationship with his father, Sidney Shank, a famous psychotherapist. Sidney's death launches Sol on a cinematic odyssey that will encompass revelations about his father's past, Sol's own failures as a husband, father, and filmmaker, and ultimately to questions about Sol's core identity as an American and a Jew. It's a pleasure to see Varon's solo virtuosity back at work, and the wit characteristic of Varon and his longtime collaborator, director David Ford, shines here despite the predominantly serious tone. But Sol quickly emerges as a solipsistic whiner, and the play's compelling propositions regarding Jewish American identity never acquire enough dramatic flesh to make them sizzle. Varon is incapable of being anything other than talented and interesting, but The People's Violin ultimately proves a disappointment. (Rosenstein)

► Raised in Captivity Shelton Theatre, 533 Sutter; 289-2260. $15-20. Thurs-Sat, 8pm; Sun, 7pm. Through Sun/28. Nicky Silver's plays not only provoke loved/hated it responses; they can also land you in both camps at once, being crazily entertaining portraits of characters who drive themselves, each other, and the audience to frenzies of exasperation. That said, this fairly recent work (which was staged a couple years back by ACT at the Magic) is one of Silver's best, and Colman Domingo's Inquiline Theatre production manages the difficult task of sustaining its hyperventilating, absurdist-yet-serious tenor with few missteps. Estranged twins Sebastian (David Scamardo) and Bernadette Bliss (Ashley Hayes) meet again at their mutually loathed mother's funeral (she was killed by a projectile shower-head). Since his lover's death 11 years before, Sebastian's only "social contacts" have been with his disturbingly possessive shrink (Linda Lowry) and, via mail correspondence, a death-row convict (Andrew Bayers). Hysterically insecure Bernadette's threadbare sense of stability evaporates when her husband, Kip (Tom Jermain), abruptly decides to quit dentistry for Art's sake. Each character's personal brand of dysfunction — be it agoraphobia, self-mutilation, bulimia, or all-around paranoid misanthropy — converges with the others to make a beautiful cacophony when they (nearly) all end up under the married couple's roof. In typical Silver style, the hectic fights and ranting monologues here glitter with razor-sharp black humor, but they also articulate a genuinely pitiable, harrowing pain. Silver's frenzied, ver-

Sonya Delwaide

Fri/12-Sun/14, Dance Mission Theater

It comes as no surprise that choreographer Sonya Delwaide is surrounding herself with some of the Bay Area's finest dancers. Delwaide is a virtuoso performer, and her choreography challenges dancers with its technical and emotive demands. Her concert "Déjà Entendu (Already Heard)" features the terpsichorean expertise of guest artists Brian Fisher, Brandon Freeman, Felipe Sacon, and Yuki Fujimoto of ODC/SF, Erika Johnson of Diablo Ballet, Jadson Caldeira of Compagnie de Danse L'As-tragale, Suzanne Gallo, and Frank Shawl. Also, 10 young yet accomplished dancers from Berkeley Ballet Theater appear. Only one of the dances in the show has already been seen. The rest are premieres that mine the historical-emotional depths of folk songs from Finland, Norway, and Delwaide's own French Canada. This is transcendent dance and stellar craft, the likes of which should not be missed. Fri.-Sat., 8 p.m.; Sun., 7 p.m., 3316 24th St., S.F. $15. (415) 826-4401. (Sima Belmar) bose style can easily seem self-indulgent and pseudo-shocking in imprecise hands. But Domingo keeps the cast's collective blood pressure at boiling, stopping just enough shy of caricature to allow some brutal pathos. (Dennis Harvey)

Single With Kids El Teatro de la Esperanza, 2940 16th St; 255-2320. $10. Thurs/11-Sat/13, 8:30pm; Sun/14, 7:30pm. June 8, re-opens at Theatre Rhinoceros, 2926 16th St; 861-5079. Same show times. Through June 18. Cheryl Simone wrote and stars in this play about a crazy day in the life of a single mother.

The Skriker Warehouse Performance Space, 1850 Cesar Chavez; (510) 655-0813. Fri-Sun, call for times. Through June 4. See "Hello Dali," page 62.

The Sound of Music Golden Gate Theatre, One Taylor; 512-7770 or 551-2000. $17-69.50. Wed/10-Sat/13, 8pm (also Wed/10, Sat/13, and Sun/14, 2pm). Though the famous film and Rodgers and Hammerstein score make any production of the Sound of Music automatically familiar, this touring version of the Broadway revival carves out its own, albeit flawed, identity, with a few added songs and tweaked plot points. The direction by Susan H. Schulman often feels rushed, particularly in the monologues of Maria (played by perky musical theater veteran Meg Tolin), which seem intended to show exuberance but come across as hurried. Richard Chamberlain is a competent but bland Captain von Trapp. Consequently, the emotional highs and lows of the story don't really come across. Ultimately, though, the production succeeds in the populous mode seen before in this "Best of Broadway" series, helped along by some splendid sets and costumes: it's neither challenging nor powerful work, but it's entertaining, easily digestible theater-food-product. Highlights include an icily charming turn by Rachel De Benedet as the Captain's refined fiancé, talented kids, and some arrestingly beautiful choral singing by the nun ensemble, which opens both acts and closes the play on a stellar note. (Ann Brody Guy)

Speed-the-Plow Exit Stage Left, 156 Eddy; 602-4387. $10-14. Fri-Sat, 8pm. Through Sat/27. Teatro Shalom presents David Mamet's dark comedy set in Hollywood's film industry.

Teatro ZinZanni: Love, Chaos, and Dinner Le Palais Nostalgique Pier 27 and 29, Embarcadero at Battery; 438-2668. $125. Wed-Sat, 6:30pm; Sun, 5:30pm. Through July 6. This mix of "love, chaos, and dinner" sounds irresistible: a warm welcome into a beautifully restored art nouveau cabaret, a five-course meal served by a madcap wait staff, and close encounters with talented dancers, comedians, singers, and acrobats. But despite all the delectable ingredients, it takes most of this four-hour evening for things to gel. The leisurely spaced courses are interspersed with some fairly uninspired audience-participation comedy. It's not until the last hour that the show's big guns — Wayne Doba's wild tap-dancing waiter, the incredible body-juggling trio of Les Castors, and the erotic trapeze tango of Hélène Turcotte and Luc Martin — set the place on fire. I know it seems churlish to be lukewarm about such a hardworking crew and a fine meal. But at $125 a pop, not including drinks and tip, it seems fair to expect a lot. (Rosenstein)

Two Days of Grace at Middleham Theatre Rhinoceros, 2926 16th St; 861-5079. $15-18. Thurs-Sat, 8:30pm; Sat, 5pm. Through Sat/27. First Seen presents Toni Press-Coffman's play, which parallels a 20th-century gay relationship with the story of King Richard III and his wife.

Wit Curran Theatre, 445 Geary; 512-7770. $32.50-58. Tues-Sat, 8pm; Wed/10, Wed/17, Wed/24, 2pm; Sat-Sun, 2pm. Through Sun/28. Watching a John Donne scholar die of ovarian cancer doesn't sound like anyone's idea of a good time, but that reductive description doesn't begin to do justice to Margaret Edson's Pulitzer Prize-winning play. Very funny, bristlingly intelligent, and overwhelmingly moving, Wit deserves every one of its accolades and then some. I didn't think anyone could better Kathleen Chalfant's New York performance, but Judith Light is absolutely brilliant, approaching the role of the acerbic Dr. Vivian Bearing from a completely fresh perspective. Edson's interlacing of Donne's exquisitely difficult poetry with Bearing's appalling cancer treatments creates a brutal but revelatory tension; the resulting consideration of life and death is artful and deeply human. Leah C. Gardiner's razor-sharp production is based on the late Derek Anson Jones's original direction. This beautiful play and Light's stunning performance are absolutely not to be missed. (Rosenstein)

Bay Area

Fiddler on the Roof Contra Costa Civic Theatre, 951 Pomona, El Cerrito; (510) 524-9132. $6-15. Fri-Sat, 8pm; Sun, 2pm. Through Sat/27. Contra Costa Civic Theatre presents the classic musical about a small community in Russia.

Let My Enemy Live Long! Berkeley Repertory Theatre, 2025 Addison, Berk; (510) 845-4700 or 888-4BRTix. $19-48.50. Wed/10, 7pm; Thurs/11-Fri/12, 8pm. Travel, writer-performer Tanya Shaffer confesses, is her all-purpose escape route when life gets too messy. Fleeing a disintegrating relationship, Shaffer went to West Africa on a humanitarian mission that failed, so she decided against all advice to take a trip up the Niger River to the legendary village of Timbuktu via pinasse, a motorized canoe overloaded with local passengers, goods, and one bewildered white woman. Shaffer is a wonderfully skillful actor and storyteller, and Baba Duru Demetrius's brilliant percussive rhythms partner Shaffer as she etches the constant reassessment of her cultural assumptions, particularly after the boat sinks and the three-day journey stretches into weeks. Yet even though Shaffer's multicultural ironies are rich, to my mind her fitfully dramatic tale simply isn't compelling enough to support her ambitions. It's an interesting trip, but even for Shaffer, hardly a life-changing one. (Rosenstein)

Mother Hubbard Black Repertory Group Theatre, 3201 Adeline, Berk; (510) 652-2120. $5-12. Fri/12-Sat/13, 8pm; Sat/13, 2:30pm. The Black Repertory Group presents Ishmael Reed's irreverent satire of gender politics.

Sweet Charity Dean Lesher Regional Center for the Arts, 1601 Civic, Walnut Creek; (925) 943-SHOW. $20-23. Call for performance dates and times. Through Sat/13. Contra Costa Musical Theater presents Neil Simon's musical based on Fellini's Nights of Cabiria.

The Wake-Up Crew La Val's Subterranean Theater, 1834 Euclid, Berk; (510) 464-4468. $5-10. Fri-Sat, 8pm. Through June 3. After an alienated year away, James (Steven Klems) returns to Santa Cruz to hook up with his college buddies, who in the interim seem to have become superheroes with the task of saving the world. Zay Amsbury's script leaps and lurches, but it's often quite witty in immersing its slacker characters in a miasma of comic-book force fields and impending doom. At its heart the play is actually a sweet reflection on enduring friendship and the responsibilities that come with maturity. The fairly collegiate cast struggles to do these serious underpinnings justice, but they and director Josh Costello, have a field day with the comedy and the kick-ass combat scenes, which pitch the actors around the tiny La Val's stage with fearless abandon. Christopher Morrison did the amazing fight choreography, and he also delivers the best performance as a perennially freaked-out magician. A very silly evening, but great fun. (Rosenstein)

The Woman in Black Marin Theatre Company, 397 Miller, Mill Valley; (415) 388-5208. $24-40. Wed-Sat, 8pm; Tues and Sun, 7pm; Sun, 2pm; Thurs/18 and Thurs/25, 1pm. Through June 4. The Marin Theatre Company presents Stephen Mallatrat's British thriller.

Angus Balbernie Venue 9, 252 Ninth St; 289-2000. Thurs-Sun, 8pm. $10-15. You can't beat success. Last year idiosyncratic British man of the theater Angus Balbernie sold out his A Thousand Grey Birds at Footloose. No wonder he was invited back for another residency, the result of which is his new piece 7pm Rumour, in which he collaborates with local dancers Brenton Cheng, Angela Bausch, and Krista DeNio. At the heart of this dance theater piece are two literary works: Half-Hanged Mary, about a 17th-century witch hunt, by Canadian writer Margaret Atwood, and The River Potudan, by early-20th-century Russian novelist Andrei Platonov. Both of these writers have a propensity for the surreal and the absurd, so it remains to be seen what the music, by the Hungarian Balvanos Ensemble (a trio that apparently plays "a combination of improvised jazz, classical and Eastern European folk songs"), can contribute to the mix. dance theater, a lively blend of the political and the personal, a fluid journey to the emotional through the physical and back again. Their dance works evoke and penetrate the multifarious strains of the human condition. As choreographers, dancers, and educators, they exhibit an inspiring and growing level of sophistication and integrity. (Felciano)

Mary Sano and her Duncan Dancers California Palace of the Legion of Honor, First Floor, Rodin Gallery no. 10, Lincoln Park, 100 34th Ave; 750-3658. Fri, 7pm. Call for price. This modern piece, Dances of Flowers, pays homage to the artwork of Georgia O'Keeffe and Isadora Duncan.

Sonya Delwaide Dance Mission Theater, 3316 24th St; 826-4401. Fri-Sat, 8pm; Sun, 7pm. $15. See Critic's Choice.

The Field ODC Theater at Performance Gallery, 3153 17th St; 863-9834. Sun, 8pm. $5-10. Fieldwork is a presentation of new works in progress workshopped during the Field's 10-week peer feedback program. It's on Mother's Day, so moms are admitted free of charge, making it very easy to "treat" your mom to more than a Hallmark card.

Sacred Temple Dance of India Cultural Integration Fellowship, 2650 Fulton; 626-2442. Sat, 7:30pm. $10-12. Vishnu Tattva Das presents a solo Odissi dance performance.

Smuin Ballets/SF Verba Buena Center for the Arts Theater, 700 Howard; 978-2787. Wed and Fri-Sat, 8pm (also Sat, 2pm); Sun, 2pm. $30-35. The local ballet company performs Quattro a Verdi, Pinocchio, and the world premiere of The Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra.

SOTA 2000 Spring Dance Concert Cowell Theater, Fort Mason Center, Marina at Laguna; 441-3400. Fri-Sat, 8pm; Sun, 7pm. $7-15. SF's own School of the Arts presents its 18th annual spring dance concert under the direction of Elvia Marta. The dancers perform works by artists-in-residence Arturo Fernandez, Cheryl Chaddick, Juan Pazmino, Erin Merk, and Michelle Martin, as well as student choreography.

Bay Area

Chitresh Das Dance Company and Gamelan Sekar Jaya Showcase Theater, Marin Center, Avenue of the Flags, San Rafael; (415) 472-3500. Sun, 4:30pm. $15-25. Sekar Jaya brings ketjak, the Balinese vocal chant, and Chitresh Das brings kathak, the classical North Indian dance — two great art forms that go great together — to their collaborative work in progress, Subali-Sugriwa, Ketjak Meets Kathak. The work relates an excerpt from the Ramayana, the Hindu epic tale of feuding brothers who live in the land of the Kishkindas, the monkey-human race. Not just anybody could pull off this sort of artistic adventure. Sekar Jaya and Chitresh Das surely can. (Belmar)

Works in the Works Eighth Street Studio, 2525 Eighth St, Berk; (510) 524-9346. Sat-Sun, 7:30pm. $8. Through May 21. There is no better way to hold off those Monday-morning blues than by indulging in something that keeps your head going on Sunday night. How about that East Bay spring staple (since 1980) Works in the Works? Sponsored by Choreographers Performance Alliance and Eighth Street Studios, the eight-week series presents choreography in progress, usually half a dozen pieces in various guises each evening. The performances are followed by often lively discussions moderated by experienced East Bay dancers. This Sunday features Sharon Armstrong/Beneath the Mask, Lea Beck and Andres Guzman with Paul Bogle and Stacy Hill, Hope Coffin, Lisa Kitchen, New Urban Dance Company/Shelly Chapple and John Butterfield, and Randy Rutherford. Special Saturday show features Linda Bair Dance Company, Lea Beck, Jeanne Disney, Jose Ivan Ibarra, Etherealize/Leyya Tawil, and Minoo Hamzavi. (Felciano)

Mat Callahan

Wed/10 and Fri/12-Sat/13, various venues

Mat Callahan is known to many San Franciscans as the onetime bandleader of the Looters (and later, the Wild Bouquet), as well as for his work founding and sustaining Komotion, the alternative art space that was once a cornerstone of the Mission District. Callahan, who now lives and works (as a producer) in Bern, Switzerland, has collaborated with Bern-based artist Mariann Müller to create Testimony, a collection of Callahan's song lyrics and Müller's illustrations. The book is the sometimes stunning result of a years-long dialogue between the two, beautiful to look at and of particular interest to the many music fans who followed Callahan's work over the years. He'll arrive — guitar in hand — to sing and discuss his work. Wed/10, 7 p.m., Modern Times Bookstore, 888 Valencia, S.F. Free. (415) 282-9246; Fri/12, 7 p.m., Walden Pond Bookstore, 3316 Grand, Oakl. (510) 832-4438; Sat/13, 8 p.m., Baobab (music and party), 3388 19th St., S.F. (415) 643-3558. (J.H. Tompkins)

Tues-Sun, 9:30am-5pm (until 9pm every Fri through Fri/12). $7, $5 seniors, $4 for 12 to 17, free for 11 and under (free second Wed). "Georgia O'Keeffe: The Poetry of Things." Works focusing on the artist's depiction of objects. There's plenty to enjoy here, from an explosive 1920s series of works depicting blood-red canna flowers to the white-on-white stillness of the bleached bones, feathers and shells that became O'Keeffe's main inspiration in the mid-1930s. What comes across clearly is the amazing consistency of her vision, as well as its clarity and strength. Through Sun/14. (Coleman) "Legendary Lithography: Prints from ULAE." Works from the Universal Limited Arts Editions print workshop. Through May 28. "Artists' Books from ULAE." Books by Robert Motherwell, R. Buckminster Fuller, and others. Through June 18. "To the Rescue: Eight Artists in Archive." Ethnically diverse artists, selected by curators Marvin Heiferman and Carole Kismaric, were set loose in the photo archives of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee — a humanitarian relief organization founded in the early 20th century to aid people displaced by war — and asked to respond with a new artwork. The resulting exhibition is an engrossing if uneven group of eight installations as interesting for the revealed artistic process as for the art itself. (Documentary film conversation Thurs/11, 7pm). Through June 8. (Helfand) Mexican Museum Fort Mason Center, Bldg D, Marina at Laguna; 441-0404. Wed-Sun, 11am-5pm (first Wed, noon-7pm). $4, $3 students and seniors (free first Wed). Fri-Tues, 11am-6pm; Thurs, 11am-9pm (closed Wed). $9, $6 seniors, $5 students, free for members and under 13 (free first Tues; half-price Thurs, 6-9pm). "Short Distances and Definite Places: The Photographs of William Gedney." Whether photographing a coal miner's family in eastern Kentucky, hippies in Haight Ashbury, or the elevated subway outside his cold-water flat in Brooklyn, Gedney approached his subjects with the tenderness and delicacy of a gardener who just wants to see plants flourish. Through Tues/16. (Coleman) "High Minded: Conceptual Art in Moving-Image Media." Video works and installations from the early '70s through the late '80s. Through May 30. "Sol LeWitt: A Retrospective." Wall drawings, photographs, and more from the artist's career. Through May 30. "Selections from the Permanent Collection of Architecture and Design: Adams/Morioka." Through June 20. "Structure and Surface: Contemporary Japanese Textiles." Through June 20. "Germaine Krull: Photographer of Modernity." Featuring approximately 130 photographs, films, and examples from Krull's archival documents. Through July 30. "Paul Klee: Recent Acquisitions of the Djerassi Collection." Through Oct 24. "Magritte." Dolby Chadwick 266 Sutter, Fourth fl; 956-3560. Tues-Sat, 10am-6pm. Jim Phalen, new paintings. Through Sat/20.

Crown Point Press 20 Hawthorne; 974-6273. Tues-Sat, 10am-6pm. "Structures," works by Chris Burden. Burden engages in the subject of bridges with a variety of media: photogravure prints, massive working drawings, and a couple of bridge sculptures made with vintage Erector Set pieces. Burden infuses the notion of play with a weight of industrial realism and the fulfilling nature of industriousness and construction. Through Sat/20. (Helfand)

Fraenkel 49 Geary; 981-2661. Tues-Fri, 10:30am-5:30pm; Sat, 11am-5pm. Vera Lutter, recent work. Lutter uses the camera obscura to reproduce and re-create the outside world as few of us have ever imagined it before. The exposure takes days, or even weeks, and the result is a negative image in which the sky is black and trees and buildings are white. In this strange, dark world, the abstract idea of movement takes on a vivid physicality; the dynamic and the static leave very different indexical imprints behind. Through Sat/13. critic's choice: art

Magritte

Through Sept. 5, SFMOMA

If one of the main aims of surrealism is to disorient the viewer, then perhaps René Magritte failed as a master of the genre. Sure, he visualized things you don't find every day — men raining from the sky, bread floating in midair, hair growing out of shoes — but he did so with such clear-eyed poise that his images seem oddly comforting, as though they've arrived on the canvas fresh from our own dreams. Or is it just that they've entered our visual lexicon through endless reproduction? SFMOMA's new retrospective is the first overview of Magritte's work in the Bay Area in more than 30 years, and it does a great job of showcasing both the variety of his themes and his virtuosity as a painter. Sixty-three works are arranged according to the artist's lifelong fascinations — there's a room full of visual word games, one in which objects appear out of scale to their environments, and another that explores the female body as an object of desire. Among the iconic works on display are the 1929 piece The Treachery of Images (known for its inscription "Ceci n'est pas une pipe") and The Rape — possibly the clearest depiction of sexual objectification in 20th-century art — in which a woman's breasts, navel, and pelvis become her facial features. Another famous work, Galconda, is a revelation up close: reproductions don't make it clear that the tiny bowler-hatted men falling from its gray sky are all individuals with distinct features. As groundbreaking as these works are, there are lesser-known pieces that are equally fascinating. The Central Story is one of the first works in which Magritte painted a head wrapped in cloth, and it's thought to refer to his mother's suicide. It's interesting, too, to follow Magritte's development from a young cynic — one who could paint an empty picture frame in 1928 and call it The Delights of Landscape — to the older who depicted a fluffy white cloud and a giant glass in a pretty pastel landscape and called it The Heartstring (1960). A love poem addressed to the natural world, The Heartstring proves that even old surrealists can be sentimental fools. Fri.-Tues., 11 a.m.-6 p.m.; Thurs., 11 a.m.-9 p.m., 151 Third St., S.F. $5-$9; half-price admission Thurs., 6-9 p.m.; free first Thurs. (415) 357-4000. (Sarah Coleman)

381g 381 Guerrero; 255-1821. Fri-Sun, noon-6pm and by appt. "Stills," works by Laura Bacon and Laura Sensabaugh. A connection between photography and painting is cleverly teased out in this show: Bacon's billboard-size canvases use the snapshot aesthetic to create a sense of the significance of small moments; the same aesthetic informs Sensabaugh's luscious photographs of seedy motels and Vegas-lounging friends, which are clearly influenced by the work of photographer Nan Goldin. Through Sun/14. (Coleman)

Washington Square 1821 Powell; 291-9255. Wed-Thurs, noon-8pm; Fri-Sun, noon-5pm. "The Word," works by various artists. The three artists here clearly care about text, and in different ways their works examine its place in our culture. In Susan Friedland's large textile pieces, contrasting notions such as East/West and spiritual/digital blur together; Jeanette McCulloch's colorful mixed-media pieces incorporate advertising slogans and signage into busy collage works that reflect the way we're daily barraged with words; and Emily Payne's carved blocks of 1930s-era hardbacks glued together are as emotionally resonant as they are visually stunning. Through Sun/21. (Coleman)

Jim Campbell

Through Sat/20, Hosfelt

The ways that we look at and perceive things are undergoing a technology-induced evolution. We cannot help being affected by our constant exposure to video images and their increasing relationship to digital paradigms. What does it mean, for example, that our snapshots, taken with a digital camera, are essentially hunks of impersonal codes that can easily be altered? How sentimental is that? Jim Campbell, an artist who has long dealt with notions of perception and technology, is engaging just such issues in his recent exhibit of illuminated, computerized works. The most striking and successful works here are a series of wall pieces that rely on and beautifully abstract the light-emitting diodes that compose moving images on Jumbotron screens. One work looks like a randomly blinking matrix of red bulbs; another, with an overlay of frosted Plexiglas, seems like a soft-focus play of pulsing colors, something like those 1970s stereo speakers with lights that flickered to the beat. But if you back away from these attractive objects, their content becomes much clearer — the first is a running figure, and the second is a video clip of a boxing match. Campbell, employing his computer programming skills to process video footage into these varied configurations, inverts the idea that the closer we get to something, the greater our understanding becomes. With these visually dazzling works, we're forced to consider that the opposite holds true in an age when our faces are poised inches from computer monitors. Other pieces in the exhibition deal with the passage of time (he conflates Hitchcock's entire Psycho movie into a single image that averages tone and density) and the ways that images lose their meaning when broken down to their digital color bits. But what's most impressive about these pieces is the way that Campbell balances scientific practice with a refined sense of beauty and wry wit. Tues.—Sat., 11 a.m.—5:30 p.m., 430 Clementina, S.F. (415) 495-5454. (Glen Helfand)

critic's choice: film

'The Sick Six: Six of the Most Important Surf Movies Ever Made'

May 13–July 23, Yerba Buena Center for the Arts screening room

A proper surf movie (which, I assure you, does not star Frankie or Annette) highlights the fact that surfing is probably the best sport to suck at. There's an innately fluid beauty to it, so that even if you spent six hours in the water without ever catching a good wave, it would still be six hours well spent, in quiet camaraderie with nature and in awe of those who can tame it with grace and power. Yerba Buena Center for the Arts offers up a comprehensive overview of the sport and the lifestyle with "The Sick Six: Six of the Most Important Surf Movies Ever Made," screening in conjunction with its "Surf Trip" exhibition (see 8 Days a Week, page 70). Guest-curated by Ben Marcus, former editor at Surfer magazine, the series also tracks the evolution of the surf video. The 16mm surf movies of the early '60s feature extended shots of longboarders riding uncrowded and undiscovered breaks (background music provided by the Beach Boys). And then there's the extreme sports action of '90s surf videos; those are more like aquatic versions of skateboard highlight reels (background music provided by punk band du jour). The classic 1966 film The Endless Summer documents the idyllic lifestyle of surfers on a global

from Hawaii to Australia. Loose Change, the most recent flick in the series, is the kind that hordes of sunburned surfers in southern California have already snatched up at their local video store, hoping to watch and learn from the pros. Modern-day surf heroes like Rob Machado and Kelly Slater (a world champion many times over, considered the Michael Jordan of surfing) poke fun at themselves in short skits (dudes, don't quit your day jobs!) interspersed between adrenaline-fueled shots of the kids pulling awe-inspiring aerials and 360s across a churning wall of water. The endless shots of waves and wave riders may make some viewers antsy, but surfers and nonsurfers alike will come away with a better sense of the "stoke" behind the sport. See Rep Clock for shows and times. (Robin Lapid) and later by force of arms. In March of that year the well-armed, well-equipped Italian forces were overcome by an army of Ethiopians under the leadership of Emperor Menelik II and his wife Queen Taitu, who served on the battlefield as a field commander. The Italians gave up their plans for Ethiopia, while shock waves reverberated throughout the world at the news that an African nation had successfully repelled its European invaders. Filmmaker Haile Gerima begins and ends his powerful documentary about this decisive battle by invoking the idea of myth and the importance that myths have in providing a national identity. Using oral histories as well as retracing the footsteps of the Ethiopian patriots, he movingly elevates those who stood

Battlefield Earth Scientology guru L. Ron Hubbard scripted this sci-fi action adventure set in A.D. 3000. John Travolta stars as the leader of a revolt as humans break the bonds of captivity under alien rule. (1:57) Century Plaza, Grand Lake, Jack London.

The Big Kahuna See Movie Clock, page 114. (1:37) Bridge.

Bossa Nova Healthy and wealthy urbanites weave in and out of each other's lives in Bruno Barreto's romantic paean to Rio de Janeiro in its sunnier state — no hint of Pixote's horrors are to be found in these shimmering images. Eventually all the film's lovelorn souls intersect the burgeoning affair between a widowed American English instructor and a middle-aged lawyer recently separated from his wife. Language, and the difficulties inherent in translating idioms and colloquialisms from one culture to another, becomes a metaphor for love and the confusion that occurs in our usually less-than-nimble attempts to profess our affection for another person. The film is filled with characters reaching out and trying to express themselves using some kind of cloak, never getting across what they really mean, from a young tailor who uses the music on his headphones to express himself to a woman pursuing love on the Internet. Bossa Nova is a little clumsy at times, but then so are people in love; I suppose I can give a little leeway to a film with its heart in the right place. (1:35) Embarcadero, Shattuck. (Taylor)

Center Stage If you're like me — a complete sucker for dance movies à la Fame, Flashdance, and Staying Alive — you'll love this teen slick-cum-dance world drama that's got enough blood, sweat, tears, and bunion-footed inspiration for even the most cynical, "I don't dance" type viewers. Like Fame, it centers on a few young students (including Zoe Saldana, Ethan Stiefel, Sascha Radetsky, Susan May Pratt, and S.F. Ballet's Amanda Schull) at the "American Ballet Company" — a rigorous, dangerously competitive boot camp for ballet dancers. Director Nicholas Hytner (The Object of My Affection, The Madness of King George) and writer Carol Heikkinen bring a good mix of sophistication and teenybopping to the fairly predictable story, and even though some of the 98 Degrees-sounding tunes made me slightly nauseated, the tingly high I got watching Center Stage will probably lure me back for seconds. (1:53) Jack London, Kabuki, Metreon, Oaks, 1000 Van Ness. (Gachman)

The Girl Next Door "I'm horny, I go to work. I need affection, I have my cats," adult film star and documentary subject Stacy Valentine explains. Filmmaker Christine Fugate roams territory already covered by the oft-aired MTV special I'm a Porn Star, with the added bonus of being able to freely show buck nakedness. Housewife turned adult film star Valentine makes for fascinating material: she's blond, she's busty, and she starts sentences with the phrase "the great thing about plastic surgery is..." Fugate sets up a contrast between Valentine's humble Midwestern past and doting parents and the actor's life in L.A., aiming to show that the star of Red Vibe Diaries has depth and a soul, you know, just like you and me. Stacy's troubles with her boyfriend, her sporadic desires to leave the industry to become a makeup artist, and the need for constant cosmetic alterations (if you've ever wanted to see a breast implant shoved into place or a liposuction needle sucking flesh, now's your chance) add teeny wrinkles of despair to her life. Truth be told, there's really nothing important going on here, but the salacious subject matter meets all criteria for voyeuristic entertainment. (2:02) Lu-miere. (Eddy)

Held Up Jamie Foxx and Nia Long star in this comedy about a couple whose relationship falls apart on a romantic vacation. (1:31) 1000 Van Ness, Shattuck. Human Traffic Plot is secondary (or, nonexistent) in this tale of five Welsh kids and their weekend of clubs, drugs, sex, drugs, clubs... First-time writer-director and former club kid Justin Kerrigan is more intent on fashioning true-to-life vignettes of McJob-induced pallor and tediously extended shots of ecstasy-induced high jinks (which Go did to better effect). Jip (John Simm) has to overcome his sexual slump; Koop (Shaun Parkes) thinks his girlfriend (Nicola Reynolds) is cheating on him; Lulu (Lorraine Pilkington) is sick of men; and Moff (Danny Dyer) is a loser who loves drugs and still lives with his mum! Har har! The film has its moments, but unless the idea of some bloke barging into his best mate's flat the morning after and repeatedly yelling "Wotcha! It's on!" really cracks you up, or you have been on ecstasy and can relate, or you are on ecstasy and will relate to the innate hilarity of the word "Wotcha!" I'd advise you to just say no. (1:35) Embarcadero. (Lapid)

Screwed Dognapping capers equal funny, funny stuff, or so Norm Macdonald, Dave Chapelle, and Danny DeVito would have us believe. (run time not available) Century Plaza.

Ongoing

Adrenaline Drive Shinobu Yaguchi's film has a title more revved up than its low-budget action, which wouldn't qualify for a drag race against Gone in 60 Seconds. It's really a comedy about two shy individuals discovering each other under the dire circumstances of stolen money landing in their laps and the Yakuza thugs anxious to collect it. The chase begins when Satoru, a rental car clerk, rear-ends a Jaguar and winds up paying with broken fingers. Luck strikes with an explosion that decimates the gangsters, except for one who hobbles after Satoru and Shizuko. The two go on the lam in a playful getaway that comes with goofy villains and plentiful scenes of running. The everyday dialogue and long takes aren't stimulating, but at least the antics snap their fingers at you. (1:51) Four Star, Galaxy. (Tung)

• All about My Mother (1:41) Opera Plaza, Shattuck.

• American Beauty (1:58) California.

• American Psycho Mary Harron (I Shot Andy Warhol) and Guinevere Turner (Go Fish) see the comedy of Bret Easton Ellis's novel American Psycho — and if he didn't mean the joke quite the way they took it, well, less power to him. The production is all satire and low slash, with humor mined from Ellis's purposefully tedious jumble of brand names and pomo pop crit prose. Though there are plenty of dismembered limbs to sort your way through, much of the brutality occurs offscreen — American Psycho saves its fangs for the necks of Wall Street's self-impressed men. Patrick Bateman, as played to sculpted perfection by a Claymation Christian Bale, becomes real only by exfoliating in the shower and stomach crunching to a soundtrack of anal-porn tapes. The casting is half the joke on the original, with Reese Witherspoon essentially playing Election's Tracy Flick five years later, and Chloë Sevigny, fresh from her liberated femme turn in Boys Don't Cry, as the sympathetic secretary. Though not as self-consciously virtuosic as its brother in anti-male-themed pieces, Fight Club, it's easier to laugh with — coming at the right time for '80s archaeology, when the culture has almost forgotten the era of Walkmans and the phrase "no can do." (1:40) California, Metreon, 1000 Van Ness. (Gerhard)

• The Basket Rich Cowan's sweet little movie ties together World War II-era xenophobia, the hard life of farmers, the gossip ways of a small town, opera, and a newfangled sport called basketball. When the local minister adopts two German war orphans, folks in Waterville, a tiny Pacific Northwest community, greet the foreigners with fear, suspicion, and prejudice. Also new in town is Martin Conlon (Peter Coyote), a high school teacher, classical music buff, and former hoops coach from back east who terrifies traditionalists with his Hoosiers meets Dead Poets' Society lesson plan. The Basket has more than its share of scenes filmed in glowing, golden nostalgia-o-vision, and "basketball is a metaphor for life" is hardly a new storyline. However, Coyote is effective as a man who's trying to overcome a shady past, and Karen Allen does a nice supporting turn as a beleaguered farmer's wife. (1:44) Kabuki, 1000 Van Ness. (Eddy)

• The Cider House Rules (2:09) Opera Plaza, Orinda.

• The Color of Paradise Over a holiday, the father of a youngster at a school for the blind begrudgingly takes the boy (Mohammad) back to their home in the mountains of northern Iran, where he lives with his other two children and his mother. Mohammad is in heaven attending school with his sisters and spending the day with his grandmother in their picturesque surroundings, but his father attempts to abandon his blind son, viewing Mohammad only as a weight needing to be cast off. Director Majid Majidi's last film, Children of Heaven, also centered on kids, and although he has once again focused his lens on the lives of children, the story's most pivotal character is actually Mohammad's father, Hashem. His selfishness and the destruction it reaps give the film most of its dramatic tension, while his eventual change of heart provides for its release. Because of the rural setting and the plain mise-en-scène it would be easy to patronizingly praise the movie as a great "simple" film, but look carefully and you'll see it reveal itself as a masterfully directed, complex piece of filmmaking with beautiful cinematography and lush sound, leading toward a powerful final image. (1:30) Albany, Embarcadero. (Taylor)

• Committed The Rollerblades now surgically implanted into her psyche, Heather Graham glides through Lisa Krueger's second feature at the speed of bounce, an off-the-hook in-liner on a mission of virtue. Committed's solar system uses Graham's Vaseline smile as its axis, the story line revolving around and evolving from her ability to emit single-mindedness. To Graham's Joline, a promise is a promise, and when her marriage promise is tested by the small fact that her Zoloff-quality boyfriend has abandoned her and left no forwarding address, she treks cross-country from New York to Texas in a search and stake-out to bring him to his senses. (Manny and Lo) returns to a topic apparently at the heart of her filmmaking, the impossible desire for permanence. The use of the Southwestscape is simplistic — dubiously featuring Mexican Americans as deep spiritual guides — but Krueger's one-of-a-kind hyperbolic irony is the real spiritual base of the film. Her Joline isn't really crazy; she just can't compute the hypocrisy people are expected to operate under in 2000. And why should she? Krueger, treating her devoted wife character as more prophet than psychotic, proves that no filmmaker better understands how strange these days truly are. (1:37) Opera Plaza. (Gerhard)

Cotton Mary Sir Thomas Macaulay once said that the British plan of education for India should result in colonial subjects who were "Indian in blood and color, but English in taste, in morals, and in intellect." If anyone could have wholeheartedly embraced this rhetoric, it's Cotton Mary, the Anglo-Indian protagonist of Ishmail Merchant's eponymously named film, played by world-renowned cookbook writer and actor Madhur Jaffrey. Mary takes it upon herself to care for a local British baby whose mother is incapable of nursing, but her calling — she insists that the infant is "God's child" — exposes the disturbing heights of Anglophilia and self-hatred in the colonized Indian. Mary's detached relationship to her pedigree curiously takes place through everyday choices, with her English cotton dresses, lavender soap, short hairdos, and denial she's ever eaten rice and curry with her fingers before. The film unfolds in classical Merchant Ivory fashion, that is, dramatically, with well-sketched characters who are neither lovable nor hateable. (2:05) Rafael. (Summi Kaipa)

► East-West Despite its banal title, East-West (Est-ouest), directed by Régis Wargnier (Indochine, A French Woman), is an emotional, moving story that eschews clichés. The film takes place in 1946, when Stalin coaxed Soviet expats back to the motherland by promising them a secure future as participants in postwar reconstruction. Alexei Golovin (Oleg Menshikov), a doctor living in France, embraces Stalin's promises and returns home with his French wife, Marie (exquisitely portrayed by Sandrine Bonnaire), and their young son, Seryozha. The promise, of course, turns out to be empty, and the family is forced to live in a cramped communal house with no hope of escape. The film spans more than a decade, focusing on Marie's struggle for personal freedom, her emotional break from Alexei, her love for the young, equally strong-willed Sacha (Sergei Bodrov Jr.), and her desperate pleas to a French actor with a conscience (Catherine Deneuve). Without falling into genre-heavy specifics, East-West, nominated for Best Foreign Film at this year's Academy Awards, elegantly explores the emotions of a woman fighting for a life. (2:01) Clay. (Gachman)

► East Is East Despite a potentially cheesy opening scene, this comedic take on religion and cultural assimilation turns out to be a charming, unique look into the conflicts of a Pakistani family living in 1970s England. George Khan (played with beautiful complexity by Om Puri) can't seem to relinquish the role of ultimate patriarch, though he's married to Ella (Linda Bassett), a feisty, outspoken British woman. Ella respects her husband's religious beliefs, but when George banishes their oldest son for skipping out on an arranged marriage, she becomes the link between George's ideals and their children's reality: disco, cigarettes, long hair, and hip clothes. As the family steps further over George's boundaries, he becomes violent and irrational, breaking down the fragile, idealized family structure that he created. Director Damien O'Donnell, who recently won a BAFTA award for Outstanding British Film of the Year for East Is East, loses some of the more serious scenes in awkward comedic displays, but overall he's created an entertaining movie that poses some interesting questions about race, religion, and culture. (1:36) Act I and II, Embarcadero, Piedmont. (Gachman)

► Erin Brockovich Maybe it's a guilty pleasure — OK, it's a guilty pleasure — but I'm sure that a film in which Julia Roberts plays a single mother who somehow ends up defending a small Los Angeles community against PG&E in a billion-dollar lawsuit, all the while wearing the skimpiest in "hey, why do you think God gave us breasts?!" attire, has a certain obvious appeal. Of course it is true, as one critic put it, that Erin Brockovich is just a Civil Action with Julia Roberts's cleavage, but the two-plus hours feel-good tale somehow reels you in completely. As the sassy, short-tempered, blunt-talking heroine Brockovich, Roberts forces herself into employment as a filing clerk at Albert Finney's small-time law firm in order to provide for her kids. With her oft-displayed feminine wiles and some inspirational pluck, she subsequently discovers that PG&E has been contaminating a local town's drinking water and sets about trying to kick some major corporate ass. Director Steven Soderbergh manages to wrangle an involving story out of a pretty predictable plot, and Finney, as the often-exasperated lawyer, provides an excellent foil for Roberts. (2:11) Kabuki, UA Berkeley. (Lapid) ► Everest (0:45) Metreon Imax.

► The Filth and the Fury The Sex Pistols and their story have provided rich and wonderful grist for theory, practice, influence, and gossip, from Greil Marcus to British cult studies writer Dick Hebdige to Mexican filmmaker Gregorio Rocha. The story is as well known as it is fascinating. What Julien Temple's The Filth and the Fury manages to do differently is bring a new context to the story of the Pistols. While much has been made of the particular sociological conditions of mid-'70s Britain that contributed to disaffected working-class angst and the subsequent rise of punk rock, the discourse has been mostly regulated to books, articles, and old-school VH1-type docs. Temple, on the other hand, makes generous and experimental use of archival news and advertising commercials of the time (not to mention clips from Laurence Olivier's memorable Richard III film performance) to effectively visualize the dreary British zeitgeist punk rock and the Pistols rebelled against. And not merely content to reference appropriate and corny visual signifiers of the times, Temple reappropriates images from his own film The Great Rock and Roll Swindle as well. (1:48) Lumiere. (Jim Mendiola)

Final Destination (1:33) Colma, 1000 Van Ness.

The Flintstones in Viva Rock Vegas If you find yourself in a theater watching this prequel to the 1994 hit, then you are probably a child, someone accompanying a child, or somebody who is terribly lost, another casualty of the multiplex labyrinth. If you're in the first two categories, then you'll probably be OK, but anyone in the third category doesn't stand a chance, because from the first brontosaurus fart to the last groan-inducing, prehistoric pun, this spastic, sugar-rush of a fantasy where Fred meets Wilma and Barney meets Betty is one for the youngsters. Mark Addy and Stephen Baldwin take on the roles of young Fred and Barney, and although Addy's performance evokes Albert Finney a little more than Jackie Gleason, both display adequate cluelessness, while Kristen Johnston and Jane Krakowski bring a little more charm to their respective roles as Wilma and Betty. In spite of this, the special effects and production design reign and should provide an appropriate backdrop to the noisy din of the theaters where it screens. (1:40) Century Plaza, Emery Bay, Empire.

Jack London, Kabuki, Metreon, 1000 Van Ness, UA Berkeley. (Taylor)

Frequency In the post-Sixth Sense era, director Gregory Hoblit (Primal Fear) strikes while science fiction and the paranormal are still hot with this "what if" fantasy thriller that yokes theoretical physics with a precious father-son relationship. Catching the wave of an electric field anomaly, John Sullivan (Jim Caviezel), a cop in 1999, phones home to 1969 via Dad's ham radio. By sharing information from the future, John saves his father, Frank (Dennis Quaid), from dying in a fire — but consequently alters the past, endangering his mother (Elizabeth Mitchell). Quaid shines with Harrison Ford-like gallantry, a combination of dedicated firefighter and Dad of the Year. Toby Emmerich wrote the exciting screenplay, and Hoblit directs without flinching from the potential hazards of temporal dimension plausibility and the risky crossbreeding of suspense, sci-fi, and family drama. (1:58) Century Plaza, Emery Bay, Grand Lake, Jack London, Metreon, 1000 Van Ness, Orinda, Stonestown, UA Berkeley. (Tung)

or Suzuki's Branded to Kill, from which Ghost Dog frequently quotes: now there's a contract out on Ghost Dog himself, and much ba-da-bing, ba-da-boom ensues. If the reference-mongering ended there, Ghost Dog would be yet another burdensome addition to the post-ironic culture heap that's already shoveled down on us every day. But Jarmusch isn't content with a narrow circle of textual felicities, and soon everything from Mary Shelley's Frankenstein to W.E.B. DuBois's Souls of Black Folk has been emptied into this crucible of hit-mania. There is so much, even beyond its cagey and knowing efflorescence of references, that's wonderful about Jarmusch's new film that it's a shame its vision of the afterdeath remains so muddled. Despite the tang of a feminist future that congeals around Ghost Dog's end, the film remains much less convincing in its evocation of an unwritten, and perhaps "progressive," future than in its remix of an overwritten but pleasantly pop-sloppy past. (1:54) Lumiere, Shattuck. (Stephens)

➤ Gladiator His bulk shifted back to the right places after The Insider's flab-out, Russell Crowe plays Maximus, a general of the empire in A.D. 180. Ailing emperor Marcus Aurelius (a bored Richard Harris) commands that Max take the throne — a succession plan that pointedly skips Marcus's biological son, kitten-with-a-whip Commodus (Joaquin Phoenix). Really displeased, the latter kills Dad and announces himself emperor. Maximus, meanwhile, is toted off as a slave by Proximo (the late Oliver Reed), owner and trainer-in-chief of a Moroccan Gladiators "R" Us. Sooner or later it'll be payback time. But to survive that long, Max must outlive various WWF-type Bludgeonators, spike wheeled-chariot drivers, tigers, and trapdoors on the blood-sporting arena circuit. His martial skills duly lead to Rome, where Commodus is irked no end to be upstaged once again. Gladiator has the physical heft and scale of a true epic; it's seldom laughable, which is saying a lot, and reasonably entertaining. But unlike that of Hollywood's prestige sword-and-sandal epics of yore, its solemnity isn't earned by a complicated, intrigue-laden scenario. Despite solid supporting players (Derek Jacobi, Amistad's Djimon Hounsou), there are really only three characters worth scratch in the undercomplicated, team-penned script, and nothing much happens — Colosseum carnage aside — until Max finally gets his shot at this-spear-wound's-for-my-wife-muthafucka! revenge. (2:30) Alexandria, California, Century Plaza, Emery Bay, Empire, Grand Lake, Jack London, Metreon, Metro, 1000 Van Ness, Orinda. (Harvey)

➤ Gossip Three glam Ivy League undergrads (Lena Headey, James Marsden, Norman Reedus) have a horrible brainstorm: as a semester "project" for a class on collapsing media ethics, they'll spread a slanderous lie about a "rich blond bitch" fellow student (Kate Hudson), then track its wildfire progress from ear to ear on campus. The rumor soon acquires nastier details than intended, spurring a chain reaction of battery, arrest, suicide, homicide investigation, and excavated prior misdeeds. OK, so this is trash — shamelessly contrived "high-concept" trash that may leave a queasy aftertaste, given its exploitation of possible date rape as a plot hinge. But as trash goes, it's pretty high-grade. Gregory Poirier and Theresa Rebeck's lean, fairly clever script is polished to the nth degree of glossiness by TV (NYPD Blue, ER) turned first-time feature director David Guggenheim. So what if there's one twist too many, not to mention several gaping plot holes. Gossip has more than enough good qualities to compensate: good performances, a great wide-screen look, and a hurtling pace that make it this year's reigning guilty pleasure to date. (1:30) Jack London. (Harvey)

➤ High Fidelity The geeks who haunt used-record bins, looking for the obscure holy grails of vinyl recordings, live by a strict samurai code of aesthetics: "It's what you like, not what you're like, that matters." Nick Hornby nailed their insecurities and ability to dilute the world into Top Five lists in his novel High Fidelity, and damned if he didn't have John Cusack in mind when he wrote up Rob Gordon, the thirtysomething record store owner who loses his girlfriend (Iben Hjejle) and goes through a painful bout of self-awareness. It's Cusack's show from the get-go: he coscripted the screenplay and gives the loser-in-love Rob a sense of noble frustration at his own inability to grasp concepts like other people's needs or how someone can live with a crappy record collection. And High Fidelity hits on all cylinders across the board: great supporting performances (Jack Black and Todd Louiso stand out as his know-it-all coworkers), solid direction from Stephen Frears (Dangerous Liaisons), a perfectly written script that lifts Hornby's best lines, and an obsessive record-lover's dream soundtrack. Jabbing but never cutting, Fidelity makes a thoroughly enjoyable romantic comedy out of the notion that breaking up may be hard to do but growing up is even harder. (2:00) Colma, Metreon, 1000 Van Ness, Piedmont, Shattuck, UA Berkeley. (Fear)

I Dreamed of Africa From the first moment the title unfurls across the screen against a score of soaring strings, it's obvious that I Dreamed of Africa will be nothing more than a bid for a post-Oscar Kim Basinger to be viewed as a Serious Actress at the expense of everything else. Even the beautiful vistas of Africa serve no other purpose than to maximize the land's primitive "otherness" as a showcase for the (white) protagonist's inner strength, though the whole affair is really no more exotic or enlightening than a trip to your local mall's Banana Republic. The gorgeous landscapes highlight little except the film's rhythmless editing and some stale readings of tortuously awful dialogue, all amid a tragedy-every-two-minutes story built for those moments of overemoting presented as acting. It may be too early to dub I Dreamed of Africa the worst movie of the year, but it's hard to imagine a worthier contender heading down the pike; in the food chain of film, it rests slightly below the steaming remains of a wild animal's lunchtime meal. (2:02) Century Plaza, Emery Bay, Jack London, Kabuki, Metreon, 1000 Van Ness, UA Berkeley. (Fear)

► Into the Deep (:35) Metreon Imax.

► Kadosh Amos Gitai's sober, contemplative Kadosh (Sacred) plays out as a love story set in one of modern-day Jerusalem's strictest Orthodox Jewish communities, where men rigorously study the Talmud and a woman's sole purpose in life is to bear children. As each delicately crafted scene unfolds, the drama focuses on the struggles of two sisters to keep their emotions and desires neatly within the confines of their religion's unrelenting rules. Rivka (Yael Abecassis) shares a deep love with Meir (Yoram Hattab), her husband of 10 years, but since the couple has no children, the rabbi (who's stereotypically portrayed as a fanatical, callous pillar of religion), adhering to the belief that a childless marriage is illegitimate and a barren woman useless and disgraceful, orders Meir to "take a new wife." Rivka dutifully leaves, falling into silent despair. Her younger sister Malka (Meital Barda) finds herself forced into a loveless marriage with Yossef, a frenzied, slightly over-the-top paradigm of the sexually repressed male aggressor. Kadosh easily could have fallen into sappy, antireligion melodrama in the hands of a less skilled directing and writing team. But Gitai, and cowriter Eliette Abecassis, herself from an ultra-Orthodox family, obviously care deeply about the material, and the result is a quiet, subdued glance into an isolated, cruel world. (1:50) Four Star. (Gachman)

► Keeping the Faith Since Edward Norton already proved his strength as an actor (Primal Fear), he can now flex his biceps

as a filmmaker. Spawned from a tradition of paperback religious jokes, the script by Stuart Blumberg gives Judeo-Christian conflict a light treatment by fashioning a story about Rabbi Jake (Ben Stiller) and Father Brian (Norton), best friends enchanted by their old playmate Anna (Jenna Elfman). Stiller does an outstanding balancing act of comic talent and finely tuned acting. Throw in Elfman and Norton and you get an excellent date movie that doesn't miss one note. Props to the first-time director, who deftly handles love, friendship, and religious faith in this grown-up and charming romantic comedy. (2:09) Emery Bay, Metreon, 1000 Van Ness, Presidio, Shattuck. (Tung)

The Last September If the idea of yet another period piece about filthy rich, whiny, oh-so-repressed Brits gets you squirming, head for the hills. Not to say that all such tales deserve your deepest cynicism, but this one definitely merits a little eye rolling. It's a visually pretentious coming-of-age story set in 1920s war-torn Ireland. Very dramatically called "the end of a world" in the opening sequence, the fighting ended the Anglo-Irish aristocracy, heirs of English immigrants who considered themselves Irish. Directed by Deborah Warner and based on Elizabeth Bowen's novel, this slow-as-molasses film tries to correlate love and war, but the convoluted story is all over the place. Just about the only positive thing I took away from this film was the realization that Maggie Smith should play Susan Sarandon's mom one day. (1:44) Opera Plaza, Shattuck. (Gachman)

Love and Basketball (1:58) Colma, Emery Bay, Galaxy, Metreon, UA Berkeley. Luminarias Directed by Jose Luis Valenzuela and written by his wife, actor Evelina Fernandez, Luminarias tells the story of four Latina friends and the funny, confusing, and oftentimes sobering day-to-day complications of navigating life in an increasingly multilingual, multicultural Los Angeles. Andrea is a 40-ish career woman juggling a successful law practice and a son and husband at home. A born-and-bred East L.A. homegirl, Andrea has a picture-book marriage that quickly falls apart when husband Joe leaves her for a white woman. While knowingly rooted in the conventions of Latin American melodrama, the film expands beyond these limited genre constraints to tell a more complex story about the contemporary Latino community. The result is an honest exploration of multicultural citizens told through multicultural eyes and not through the filter of the dominant white discourse. (1:41) Kabuki, Oaks. (Jim Mendiola)

Mifune Handsome Kresten (Anders W. Berthelsen) is yanked from his ultrayuppie Copenhagen life and wedding bed (on which top-riding bride Sofie Gråbøl pounds him like a piston in the film's best scene) by his estranged father's death, forcing him to revisit his dirt-poor rural home and village-idiot brother Rud (Jesper Asholt). Meanwhile, call girl Liva (Iben Hjejle), dodging cretinous obscene phone calls, answers Kresten's ad for a live-in housekeeper. Naturally, love blooms. Like many another romantic comedy before (particularly the très Hollywood Melanie Griffith-Ed Harris bomb Milk Money), Søren Kragh-Jacobsen's Mifune gives us a happy ending without much concern for real-world details — like, what's gonna fund life on the farm now that everyone's quit their day job? Duly named for the late Japanese star Toshio — whom Kresten imitates to Rud's terror and delight — Mifune is a mostly pleasant packet of quirky contrivances, likably performed and fairly funny. But it stabs at more complex shades feel artificial and imposed: why does Liva feel "used" after initial sex with Kresten, whom she likes? A late, minor burst of Straw Dogs menace at the hands of some local yokels seems gratuitous, not to mention unconvincing. (1:39) Cobna, Opera Plaza, Shattuck. (Harvey)

The Most Terrible Time of My Life "My name is Maiku Hama. I'm a private eye," announces the protagonist of Kaizo Hayashi's The Most Terrible Time of My Life. Hama (Mystery Train's Masatoshi Nagase) keeps shop on the second floor of an old theater, where films filter from projector to screen through his office. Fitting imagery, considering that Hama's existence is drenched in cinematic reference. His flashy clothes, classic car with California plates, and terse, Bogie-style voice-overs mesh perfectly with the film's black-and-white photography, immediately evoking vintage crime cinema. But this is no Maltese Falcon; this is modern-day Yokohama, and it's not long before the first yakuza-engineered dismemberment enters the picture. Though he's a former juvenile delinquent, Hama's basically a good guy — his dream is to send his little sister to college, and he can't stop himself from stepping in to defend Haitin Yang, a Taiwanese immigrant who's run afoul of some local gangsters. Though die-hard fans of 1960s Japanese B-grade crime flicks might fault the film for relying on, rather than innovating, standard-issue genre clichés, Hayashi's genre-torquing work, the first in a trilogy centered on the Maiku Hama character, makes for stylish entertainment. (1:32) Four Star.

My Dog Skip (1:33) Oaks, Orinda.

Not of This World The characters in Giuseppe Picconi's Not of This World are on the same wavelength of uncertainty, sadness, and wistfulness, but they all lead incredibly different lives. Caterina (Margherita Buy) is a nun who becomes distracted from the straight and narrow when she discovers an abandoned newborn, Ernesto (Silvio Orlando) owns a successful dry-cleaning business, but he's paralyzed with loneliness, and Teresa (Carolina Freschi) is a somber 20-year-old who isn't sure what she wants — all she is certain of is that she doesn't want her child. Caterina, and Ernesto once he decides he is probably the baby's father, become attached to the infant, but he's quickly adopted, causing a quiet crisis for both older characters. Operating under muted colors and dreary, rainy-day lighting, the story shifts between each conflicted life, pausing longest on Caterina. In this somewhat ponderous film, Buy is excellent as a deeply spiritual woman who suddenly and unwillingly questions the very thing she has built her life around. (1:44) Kabuki. (Eddy)

in this heart-stealing romance. After the architect Rueland loses his zoologist wife, Elizabeth, in a car accident, he fills the void by designing a gorilla habitat to complete her last wish. Recovering from cardiovascular surgery, Grace Briggs (Minnie Driver) intersects her reclusive life with Bob's one night at her family-owned restaurant. They have yet to learn that their attraction is due partly to Elizabeth's heart, alive and kicking in Grace. Subsequently, she fumbles with guilt and a Frankenstein complex from the organ transplant, and Bob predictably runs away (for a while) from the strange twist of fate. Bonnie Hunt writes, directs, and plays Grace's best friend, Megan, in a well-acted story that is charged with the chemistry between Duchovny and Driver but dallies with a mediocre plot of two lonely hearts with nothing else at stake. (1:56) Colma, UA Berkeley. (Tung)

The Road to El Dorado History gets rewritten again as DreamWorks steps back into Disney's ring to battle for animated feature supremacy and takes on the legend of El Dorado. Two ne'er-do-well Spanish con men with strangely Anglicized accents (courtesy of Kevin Kline and Kenneth Branagh) stow away on Cortez's ship and stumble into the famed city of gold, complete with noble savage natives, a decidedly non-waiflike female gold digger (Rosie Perez), and a power-hungry priest (Armand Assante). One could fault Road for milking a story rife with imperialism and genocide for a few franchise bucks, but most kids don't know from revisionist history: they simply want clever animal sidekicks, some thrills, and maybe a Tim Rice-Elton John composition or two. There's groovy psychedelic animation for the adults, too, but no proper climax (where's the big square-off with Cortez?) and some slow patches make this animated Hope-and-Crosby flick no real circle of life. (1:23) 1000 Van Ness. (Fear)

Romeo Must Die A great action scene, no matter how creatively choreographed or how amazing a sight to see, loses more than half its impact if it isn't positioned in a narratively strategic manner: I'm not asking for involved plot twists, or even what we call story, just a nod toward the mythic archetypes in conflict will do. Andrzej Bartkowiak's Romeo Must Die casts myth, story, and, well, any nod toward reality to the wind with its first scene — a knockout nightclub brawl (with some gratuitous porn Asian lesbianism thrown in for good measure) in which we have no idea who the combatants are or what's at stake. And they say Hong Kong movies don't make any sense. Is this where we've come, or just where digital editing has brought us? Yes, Romeo has some great action (my personal favorite set piece being Jet Li's duel with Aaliyah against the Chinese female assassin). Delroy Lindo and Aaliyah act their way into about a third of a coherent film (not an action movie, though). The movie pretty much dodges its promising black-Chinese gang-conflict material, going for a cheese-ball Saturday-morning-cartoon NFL-stadium plot instead. The rest is a mish-mash, which is not totally disappointing: the lack of any white protagonists lends it a curious dynamic. The only part that really works, though, is the opening credits. (1:58) Emery Bay. (Lu)

Rules of Engagement Marines, heroism, a courtroom, a little alcoholism, and a few bad guys — the combination's definitely nothing new, but this latest addition to big-budget, testosterone-fueled movies turns out to be surprisingly enjoyable. It's a true story (always a plus with these hero-worship pics) about the heavily decorated Col. Childers (Samuel L. Jackson), who's put on trial for murder by the U.S. government after a rescue mission in Yemen goes sour. The colonel coaxes his recently retired friend, attorney Col. Hays

Hodges (Tommy Lee Jones), to defend him, despite Hodges's weak reputation in the courtroom. Childers saved his friend's life in Vietnam, and there's that code of honor thing, so Hodges takes on the task. There's an annoying, affected performance from Guy Pearce as the bad prosecutor and a Stepford-like Anne Archer, but director William Friedkin (The French Connection, The Exorcist) lays off the exaggerated machismo and the lousy one-liners enough to make Rules of Engagement a pretty entertaining popcorn flick — courtroom scene and all. (2:07) Emery Bay, Metreon, 1000 Van Ness.

Sweet and Lowdown (1:35) Red Vic.

The Terrorist (1:35) Four Star.

3-D Mania: Encounter in the Third Dimension This ostensible "journey through the history of 3-D cinema" is really just an excuse to package up some eye-poppingly great original computer animation created for the Imax 3-D format. That's the good news — the animation really is terrific, even if its creators don't show a lot of conceptual imagination (i.e., whether we're being chased by dinosaurs or tunneling to the earth's core, every sequence wants to give you a case of roller-coaster-like vertigo). The bad news: to get to the good stuff, you have to endure much extremely annoying live-action "comedy." Executing slapstick routines so lame even most children (clearly the intended, overly pandered-to audience here) will find them corny, Stuart Pankin plays the bumbling, wacky, lovable mad scientist-type Professor; he also does voices for the Prof's wisecracking, adorable digitized robot-sidekick, Elvira, who would have been a much more tolerable MC, barely appears long enough to justify her billing. It's also disappointing that the 40-minute featurette only sees fit to spend two minutes max on great but eye-blink-short clips from 3-D's 1950s heyday — there's way too much sub-Mystery Science Theater here, and not nearly enough retro camp. Nonetheless, those pretty-dang-thrilling animation segments make this padded thrill ride worth the ticket price. Metreon Imax. (Harvey)

Time Code This unabashed a gimmick movie turns out to be Mike Figgis's most satisfying exercise in quite some time, and a fairly exhilarating novelty to boot. With actors improvising their dialogue to a synchronized story outline, Time Code consists of four continuous shots occupying one quadruple-split screen for 90-odd minutes as the numerous character threads in each overlap and crisscross. Stellan Skarsgård plays an L.A. film executive whose behavior is reeling out of control. His wife (Saffron Burrows) wanders downtown L.A. streets, pondering just how to extricate herself from her husband's sinking psychological ship. Meanwhile, wealthy Jeanne Tripplehorn will do anything to keep wildly untrustworthy lover Salma Hayek; for her part, Hayek will do anything (and anybody) to secure an audition for the lead role in the latest epic from Skarsgård's company. If Time Code's Hollywood satire feels familiar, and its dramatics sometimes contrived, it scarcely matters — with four handheld, high-def video-cam images unfolding simultaneously, there's always something going on to distract you from a temporary weak link. Whether it represents the future of (digital) cinema or just an amusing one-time-only prank, Time Code is major fun. (1:36) Embarcadero, Shattuck. (Harvey)

28 Days Aggressive partyer Sandra Bullock goes to rehab in this comedy/drama that aches to earn platitudes of "I laughed! I cried!" but comes off more like "I scratched my head in complete befuddlement!" Director Betty Thomas (Private Parts) backs Bullock with an able supporting cast, but Steve Buscemi, Elizabeth Perkins, Marianne Jean-Baptiste, Viggo Mortensen, and Diane Ladd might want to leave this kinda touchy-feely but kinda train-wreck film off their résumés. Bullock is appealing as always, and she's clearly working hard to show dramatic range as a haunted, pill-popping alcoholic. However, in a film of nonstop off-beat moments, only a few, such as the therapy group's soap-opera obsession, elicit more than nervous laughs from the audience. Overall, not the best work we've seen from scribe Susannah Grant (Erin Brockovich); her weirdly paced 28 Days never hits its stride, effectively offering a paint-by-numbers illustration of why "rehab comedy" should not become the hottest new film craze. (1:43) Colma, Kabuki, Metreon. (Eddy)

U-571 There's a special place in the cinema of manliness for the submarine movie, a genre composed of nothing but tense glances and pressurized claustrophobic spaces. U-571 both fails and succeeds by these pre-set standards of testosterone-soaked conventions, delivering a generic, basic Submarine Movie 101 story of a ship commander (the cheekbones formerly known as Matthew McConaughey) whose crew is forced to take over a German U-boat and then skirt back to safety. Since virtually everyone, sub flick-savvy or not, knows what's going to happen from one second to the next, director Jonathan Mostow (Breakdown) need only worry about engineering the film like the well-oiled machine of its title for maximum adrenaline payoff. The narrative becomes just a shorthand way to connect one lantern-jawed, steely glare to the next go-boom! moment, which makes U-571 a thrilling ride that happily meets popcorn expectations and exits the memory the minute you walk out the theater door. Up at the Villa Fantastic Actors Struggle to Transcend Mediocre Direction! If this new Philip Hass (Angels and Insects, The Music of Chance) film got a front-page headline, that would be it. The film is adapted from W. Somerset Maugham's novella, which focuses on Mary Panton (an engaging Kristin Scott Thomas), a young, penniless British widow who's leaning toward a loveless but financially secure marriage until she meets someone more interesting. And stepping into the role of the very foppish, upper-class 1930s-era playboy who sets her heart aflutter is ... Sean Penn? As Rowley Flint, the dark horse of the Florence social scene who sees Mary through murder and scandal against a backdrop of emerging fascism, Penn inhabits the role with the usual deftness, but his talents (as with most of the cast, particularly a flamboyant Anne Bancroft) get squandered under Hass's claustrophobic direction. Maybe with a bit more spontaneity behind the camera, the characters would have had some room to breathe. (1:55) Albany, Kabuki, Vogue. (Gachman)

♦ The Virgin Suicides Truth to be told, collective Ginsu knives were fully prepared to greet Sofia Coppola's maiden full-length project. However, working with source material (Jeffrey Eugenides's luminous but prose-heavy, dialogue- and action-light 1993 novel) that might challenge far more practiced adapters, Coppola's made a coming-of-age seriocomic that's closer in spirit to Truffaut than to American Pie (or even John Hughes), one that suffuses 1970s suburban adolescence with poetry, mystery, and nonjuvenile humor. Kirsten Dunst plays the most outgoing among five willowy-blond Lisbon family daughters. They hold an entire middle-class neighborhood's stock of boyhood in hormonal thrall, but their restrictive, haplessly out-of-step parents (Kathleen Turner, James Woods) try to keep these all-American beauty roses under glass, turning a fable of desire into one of tragic loss. Reading the book, you can more easily imagine how its Fitzgeraldian lushness might die on the vine than flourish on-screen. Yet Coppola's note-perfect translation is every bit as wistful, funny, and sensuous as Eugenides's original. Bemusedly fond yet unkitschy about the '70s, it's a delicate intoxicant of a movie, a midwestern Me Decade madeleine. (1:37) Act I and II, Colma, Galaxy, Metreon, Piedmont. (Harvey)
Where the Heart Is Hugely pregnant waif Novalee Nation (Natalie Portman) is abandoned mid road trip by her mulleted boyfriend. After she gives birth in the local Wal-Mart, she becomes a mini-celebrity in a tiny burg overrun with eccentric characters. There's Lexie Coop (Ashley Judd), a nurse who names her ever expanding brood of children after snack foods; kooky yet kindly Welcome Wagon lady Sister Husband (Stockard Channing), who gives Novalee a place to stay; and Forney Hull (James Frain), the town's resident weird genius and unlikely love interest. The film takes place over five years as Novalee builds a life for herself and her child, Americus, and predictably, triumph over tragedy plays on repeat. Mawkish, mushy, manipulative — Where the Heart Is is all of these things, but thanks to a strong cast, it's markedly less nauseating than a garden-variety Oprah Book Club adaptation. While Portman's Ivy League breeding keeps her from being completely believable as a hick, the sentimental story line doesn't hamper her ability to engage and entertain. (2:00) Alexandria, Century Plaza, Cinema 21, Emery Bay, Galaxy, Jack London, Metreon, Stonestown, UA Berkeley. (Eddy)

Jet Li Film Series The final film in a six-week series highlighting Hong Kong action star Jet Li's pre-Romeo Must Die résumé is the filmed-in-San Francisco Dragon Fight. Four Star.
♦ Noir 2000 The usual noir parameters (approx. 1942-1958) get stretched like a Slinky for three weeks at the Roxie, incorporating some earlier, later, TV-shot, and otherwise not-exactly-noir titles — which happen to be among the most fascinating finds here, so shelve that purist impulse. The series continues this week with John Frankenheimer's disorienting 1966 Seconds (Thurs/11), with Rock Hudson as a "normal" citizen with a secret identity (enough said); and a Monogram double bill (Fri/12) of Dillinger (1945), featuring the great Lawrence Tierney, and the shocking Allot- ment Wives, with Kay Francis as a much more glam crime queenpin. Moving into neo-noir terrain, there are never enough opportunities to appreciate Scorsese's Taxi Driver (Sat/13), and fans of The Talented Mr. Ripley may want to check out the very different 1960 French version of that story, Purple Noon (Sun/14). Next are some noirish TV rarities: Mon/15 brings numerous short 1950s tele dramas, including the amazing James Thurber-derived "One Is a Wanderer," with Fred MacMurray a long way from My Three Sons as an L.A. man mired in utterly banal, uncontrived despair; Tues/16 features The Outsider, a 1966 ABC Movie of the Week starring Darren McGavin in a warm-up for his wisecracking, hapless "Night Stalker" private-eye role. Directed by then-unknown Michael Ritchie, this variably routine and fascinating mystery must be seen for a creepy LSD-freak-out scene that no doubt sent many original viewers into a serious bummer. The whole shebang ends May 17-23 with a new-print revival of Roman Polanski's classic '74 noir update Chinatown. Roxie. (Harvey)

Power play: Danny DeVito gives a quiet, subtle, almost mournful performance as a seasoned salesman.

'The Big Kahuna'

All talk, no action

The name of John Swanbeck's film might also be attributed to its star, Kevin Spacey, whose Oscar chessboard is coming along nicely. The title, however, does not refer to Spacey's character; in this case "the big kahuna" is a powerful potential business partner eagerly sought by businessmen Larry (Spacey), Phil (Danny DeVito), and Bob (Peter Facinelli). The trio spends much of the film holed up in the hospitality suite of a Wichita hotel, advising, arguing, insulting, confessing, shooting the shit, and plotting how to land their prize client. A play before it was a film, the story relies heavily on talk with very little action; though rather stagy, the single set and constant chatter allow complex characters to emerge quickly. Larry and Phil are seasoned salesmen, both jaded by their suit-and-name-tag lifestyle. "I feel like I've been shaking someone's hand one way or another my entire life," Phil admits. By contrast, neophyte Bob, whose Baptist beliefs emerge as an essential plot point, is still optimistic about the business. Over the course of one evening, the men learn more than perhaps they'd care to about the nature of their jobs, their coworkers, and themselves. The earlier scenes, which crackle with bitter wit and fresh conflicts, play way better than the sludgy, seeing-myself-for-the-first-time stuff near the end. As one might expect, Spacey, who also coproduced, crunches scenery in the film's flashiest part; it's a variation on his blackly humorous American Beauty role, and he expertly works a dour, cranky, know-it-all facade. Facinelli, a relatively unknown actor, holds up all right, but it's DeVito who does the best work here, with a quiet, subtle, almost mournful performance — the likes of which I'll guess isn't repeated in DeVito's other film opening this weekend, wacky dognapping caper/Norm MacDonald vehicle Screwed. (Cheryl Eddy)

Aries

March 21 - April 19

Devotees of decadence, rejoice. Expensive goodies are about to be yours, all yours, so you can gloat over them and show them off to all your friends and whine conspicuously about how much you paid. It's a materialist sort of week.

Taurus

April 20 - May 20

The Electric Lynx (assisted by ExtremoMan and BizarroGrrl) have located and destroyed the super-villain who was trying to take over the world with a Taurean Enhancement Transducer. The Transducer itself has been destroyed, but its influence is taking some time to dissipate. So you'll still be much more opinionated, stubborn, lazy, sexy, and/or greedy than normal, but this temporary increase in your Super-Bovine powers won't be nearly as blatant as it was last week.

Gemini

May 21 - June 20

Religious insights abound this week, so if you're one of those meditative, spiritual Geminis, you'll be blissing. If you're the other kind of Gemini, you'll be deriving your inspiration from worldlier sources: sunsets, dot-com commercials, exceptionally well-filled swimsuits.

Cancer

June 21 - July 22

Sunday is Mother's Day, and since Cancer is associated with maternity, you owe yourself a little nurturing. Make up for those areas Mom neglected. Go ahead and allow yourself to watch trashy videos and slouch and eat your cookies before your broccoli, and make sure to love yourself unconditionally throughout.

Leo

July 23 - Aug. 22

When people think about class, they tend to limit themselves to income, which is misleading. People who have the same amount of money can be in completely different social subcategories, with separate success symbols, mating standards, and concepts of politeness. Watch out for socioeconomic cultural gaffes this week.

Virgo

Aug. 23 - Sept. 22

This week let us examine the emotional depths of a Virgo. A Virgo's heart is something like a spreadsheet, with several thousand rows of data fields stretching out as far as the eye can see, and the sheer emotional complexity involved in day-to-day living requires so much of your attention that you can occasionally seem cold and heartless to others.

Libra

Sept. 23 - Oct. 22

Mother's Day is Sunday, and whether you're a red-hot mama or a mean mutha, odds are good that you, like many Librans, have a less than perfect relationship with Mom. But don't let that stop you from putting the fun in dysfunctional. This week, love the mother figures in your life for who they are, and try not to contrast them with your idealized maternal notions.

Scorpio

Oct. 23 - Nov. 20

Astrologically speaking, this is about as bad as it gets. Unless you're one of those perverse Scorpios who like it when things are tough, in which case your life is peaking right now and it won't get any better. And maybe you're one of those Scorpios who can't decide whether you're having a dark night of the soul or the time of your life. The answer is yes.

Sagittarius

Nov. 21 - Dec. 21

Pluto is in Sagittarius these days, compelling everyone to tell the truth. Especially you. Especially when it gets you in trouble. After all, denial and accusations are merely stages people must experience along the road to self-honesty. And it's been illegal to burn people at the stake for several decades now. Go ahead and express your opinions this week.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 19

The only actual, real live vodun houngan I ever met was a Capricorn, and this may be attributed to the fact that others might be content holding still, but Capricorn has to keep on climbing. Being a Capricorn must therefore feel like a constant uphill climb at times. It's a good thing you're uniquely well suited for climbing, but even a seemingly tireless Capricorn must occasionally rest. This week you'll reach a nice, wide ledge with a spectacular view.

Aquarius

Jan. 20 - Feb. 18

Ex-president Ronald "Is He Dead Yet?" Reagan, a fellow Aquarian, was renowned for his nonstick Teflon coating. I'm not sure if all Aquarians are Teflon-coated, but this is your week to find out. Keep your attitude cool, keep a smile on your face, and let it all slide off.

Pisces

Feb. 19 - March 20

People who list all the qualities they desire in a friend or lover are sure to be disappointed. Sometimes the backward strategy can be more effective. Decide what flaws you can live with, then actively seek out people afflicted with your acceptable imperfections. Do some social reverse engineering this week. ❖

HEAVY PETTING

Bea

No one will deny that this is one cute kitty! Bea is middle aged at eight years old and really is in her prime. She's a tortoiseshell Domestic Short Hair who will be in your lap in a matter of seconds to demand the loving that she so much deserves. She does get a little startled by noises, so a home on the quiet side may be best. She's spayed and housebroken and ready to go home with you and be your one and only.

When you adopt Bea from The San Francisco SPCA, you'll get all the fabulous goodies that always come with pets from The San Francisco SPCA: a free first medical exam from a local veterinarian, temporary identification tags, and a medical assistance plan. All this and an amazing kitty for $35 (including tax).

The San Francisco SPCA, Maddie's Pet Adoption Center
250 Florida Street (off 16th Street), San Francisco, CA 94103

Wonder drugs

Dear Andrea:
I heard that taking Tribulus terrestris can increase the size of your penis and testicles as well as the volume of ejaculation. Is this true? If it is, is it safe to take this?

Love, Hopeful

Dear Hope:

I'd never heard of the stuff, but Andrea's Instant Etymology Engine took one look at "Tribulus terrestris" and came up with "earthly trouble." The AIEE isn't all that reliable, but that's neither here nor there. What's important here is that there's no chance in hell that this obscure herb can do whatever it is that whoever you were listening to said it would. Why do I get the feeling that your informant was in the herbal supplement business?

According to an herbal-database thingy I consulted, T. terrestris is some sort of tropical trailing vine whose only notable feature is a high potassium content. Great — but if you really need potassium, you could eat a banana.

I note that this stuff is thought to be an aphrodisiac by the Chinese (just like tiger penis and about a million other random preparations) and was considered a diuretic by the ancient Greeks. The Greeks were often right, but then again, they believed that women "quicken" (i.e., fertilized) men's eggs and that the flesh of tyrants turned to lice. Shall we move on?

Sorry, but while all sorts of sexual dissatisfactions may now be banished by prescription, magic grow-a-penis pills are going to be a long time coming.

Love,
Andrea

Dear readers:

Does anyone remember William Gardner Knight? As you probably don't recall, the not particularly well-known character actor crashed his plane back in '98, and the role of Viagra in the crash was seriously investigated. The question was whether the erection pill's rare (but very famous) blue/green color-distortion effect might have caused Knight to miscalculate. In retrospect this seems unlikely, as it turned out that he crashed his homemade plane into a tree (presumably green, but still). Neither the Food and Drug Administration nor the Federal Aviation Administration, as far as I know, had anything to say about the wisdom of flying with a raging hard-on.

Meanwhile, Viagravision may soon be a thing of the past. Bristol-Myers Squibb scientists announced in April that they have identified the compounds that will likely lead to a new generation of Viagra-like drugs, with even fewer side effects. Good news, although Viagra Classic is both effective and remarkably safe. Nearly all deaths can be attributed to drug interactions (nitroglycerin or nitrous oxide) or to strokes and heart attacks during strenuous sex. Elderly men with circulatory problems form the core group of Viagra users, after all, and at least those died happy. Still, the warning labels have since been revised, and doctors are now reputedly being more prudent about who gets the magic beans.

Viagra works by blocking the action of an enzyme (PDE5) present in the penis and other erectile tissues. It seems to do the same to other forms of PDE that occur all over the body. This may cause such odd (if occasionally diverting) side effects as turning red and seeing blue. The new drugs, which are still a long way from being developed, let alone released, will target PDE5 specifically and leave the others alone. They appear to be even more efficient at their assigned task (blocking PDE5) as well, so one is tempted to predict that Super Viagra will be coming down the pike any year now. Personally, I can't wait.

At least there's something to keep us busy in the meantime. Well before the new PDE5 blockers (or Pfizer's as yet unnamed Viagra for Girls) hit the streets, several new topical blood-flow enhancers will be approved and available, no doubt over the Internet. These are basically new versions of an old drug, alprostadil. Long sold as Caverject and Muse, alprostadil works well, but its earlier delivery methods (sticking a needle in your dick and shoving a pill into it, respectively) were simply appalling. You have to assume that a lotion-based engorgement agent is going to sell a bit more briskly.

Even cooler, many of these new drugs will be made for and marketed to women. On second thought, they sound great, but I can't say I'm looking forward to the ad campaigns. Feminine hygiene ads are bad enough, without our having to suffer through "Femprox because." I'm willing to broker a deal with the many companies rushing these products to market: send certain journalists samples, and they'll promise not to make fun of whatever fuzzy, slow-mo, couples-running-through-a-field-of-daisies crap you come up with.

Love,
Andrea

OUR TELEPERSONALITIES

Knows How to Have Fun - I'm Lexy, I'm a 32 yr. old, very attractive, multiracial female. I'm a Sagittarius which means I'm fun-loving & outgoing. I'm into having fun & sometimes I'm into being a homebody. It depends on what mood I'm in. I don't smoke, don't do drugs & I very rarely, but occasionally, drink. I'm looking for a fun-loving, outgoing male who's at least 32 yrs. old to about 51 yrs. Someone who's at least 5'11", has a good sense of humor & knows how to have fun without being outlandish. Box 4222.

Wanted: Real Gentleman - I'm looking for a real gentleman - someone who has good values, who's honest, caring & compassionate. I'm Hispanic. I'm 5'2", have big, brown eyes & a beautiful smile. I'm a very caring & loving person. I love the outdoors & I love to play golf. I'd like to meet a man who has good values & see if we have anything in common. I don't want any games or any drugs. I'm a very casual drinker as well as a non-smoker & I'd like the same. Box 2488.

A Woman of Substance - I'm a woman of substance. I'm a woman who's substantial in body, mind & spirit. If full-figured women are not for you, please skip this right now. If you're not scared away, you'll find a woman who's intelligent, funny & fun to be with. I'm ultimately looking for a life partner, but I know that takes time. Box 4399.

Dinner's Ready - I know how to bring things to a rapid boil or keep them simmering for hours. I always begin a meal with something that will whet your appetite & stimulate your taste buds. I end it with an absolutely luscious, tantalizing, decadent dessert. I believe it's true when they say the way to a man's heart is through his stomach. I'd like to meet a non-smoking man who'd appreciate my talent & who might like to come regularly for dinner & every once in awhile even stay for breakfast. Box 1096.

An Urge to Merge - I have a need & an urge to merge. I'm a big, beautiful, very full-figured woman who loves sex & loves to indulge in it - but safely. I'm looking for a discreet relationship in the San Francisco area. Anything goes as long as it's safe. Box 1077.

Travellin' Man - This is Leonard. I'm 6'1" & 220 lbs. I'm a non-smoker & a light, social drinker. I'm also multiracial, being Caucasian & black. I have a variety of interests & I love traveling. I work for an airline, although I'm not a pilot. I have flown to & visited Europe, Asia, North America, the United States & other places. I really enjoy the company of someone that can share those experiences with me. I have a variety of interests in other areas as well. I'd appreciate someone who could complement my personality, as I'd hopefully be able to complement hers. Box 9671.

Loves Life - This is Don. I'm Asian. I'm 5'11" & weigh 170 lbs. I'm 34 yrs. old. I live & work in San Francisco. I enjoy the usual things like movies, dining out, walks, outdoor activities & sports. I'm looking for someone who's in good shape, has a good sense of humor & just likes to enjoy life. Box 8209.

Friends First - I'm Ed. I'm 5'9" & 150 lbs. I have light-brown hair & blue eyes. I'm a security officer at night. I have a small business of doing gardening in the daytime. I have Thursday nights off. I like surfing, fishing, camping & I like the outdoors. I like to go to the beach in the summertime & sometimes in the winter. I'm looking for a friend to have fun with & possibly a relationship later on. Box 4794.

Moonlight Serenade - This is Ted. I'm in a bit of a melancholy mood. I'm listening to some Tony Bennett. He's singing songs about being near. I'm thinking about a loved one & dream of dancing. I'm thinking about late nights in the stern of a nice, big boat, looking up at the moonlight. Who wants to join me on that midnight, moonlight serenade? Box 5015.

Family Man - My name's Alex. I'm 49 yrs. old. I live in the Hayward area. I'm a single dad. I like to go for long walks. I like dining out & pretty much anything else. I'm 5'10" & weigh about 200 lbs. I'm Hispanic, have brown eyes & black hair. I'm looking for a female who's between 32-49 yrs. old with her weight proportionate to her height. If you're a single parent, that's great. If you're interested, leave a message & I'll get back to you. Box 4091.
